THE Sentinel, referring to the amazing progress of Eureka, makes the following remarks: It is a fact not generally known that Eureka is provided with seven separate and distinct graveyards. It is but a little over six years since the first graveyard was started in Eureka, and now there are attached to it seven comfortable and well-appointed hotels for corpses. What an evidence does this fact present of the marvelous progress made by our town in the short space of six years! The future of a town with seven graveyards is assured.

THE thermometer in Atlanta doesn't fool around and play with the north wind. A young man who attended church with his sweetheart on Sunday attempted to sit the sermon out with a paper shirt-bosom, but was not altogether successful. It is said that when he came out, waving his rattan, his appearance was such as to give rise to a suspicion that a saleratus bombshell had struck him in the stomach. The girl said she had accepted an invitation to take dinner with a friend.

"How do you like your new minister, Madge!" asked one very stylishly dressed young lady of another, in a Highland car the other day. "Oh, he is just splendid," she replied with animation. "You ought to see him, Maud. He is so handsome, and he prays so beautifully, and reads the hymns in such a lovely way; and besides, Maud, there was a dreadful scandal about him in the place where he preached before he came here."

PATIENT to his doctor—"And it is really true that I shall recover?" "Infallibly," answers the man of medicine, taking from his pocket a paper full of figures. "Here, look at the statistics of your case; you will find that one per cent. of those attacked with your malady are cured." "Well," says the sick man in an unsatisfied manner. "Well you are the hundredth person with this disease that I have had under my care, and the first ninety-nine are all dead."

THE Servians have been driven out of Gurgusovatz; Harvatovitch has fallen back on Alexinatz; Sevenyearsovitch has defeated Crackyerjawgatz, and Pulldownyervestovitch has inflicted a crushing blow to Wipoffyerchinoski.—Providence Press.

SERIOUS political disturbances occurred at Charleston, South Carolina, on the night of the 6th instant. The rioters held possession of the main thoroughfare of the city from midnight till sunrise.

A POLITICAL riot occurred at Stony Hollow, New York, September 7, in which seven Democrats and four Republicans were wounded. The trouble was inaugurated by the Democrats.

ACCOUNTS of the atrocities said to have been committed by the Turks after the late battle exceed in fiendishness anything yet published, and are of a nature to horrify mankind.

THE fight between Goss and Allen on the 7th was won by the former on the twenty-first round by a foul, previous to which the fighting had been in favor of Allen.

MARRIED.

At Havilah, Kern county, September 11, by Rev. M. Marron, Hon. THOMAS MAY, of this place, to Miss MARY GRAHAM, of Havilah.

She sang, "The flowers of May, sweet flowers of May."
He sang, "The sweetest month of all the year, Mary May."
They sung no more: but queried she, "what did you say?"
"Nothing; I only dream," quoth blushing Thomas May.

"Oh, dream some more," she said, "dream some more just that way.
"Well let this be no contrary dream," said bold Thomas May.
She blushed some more but said it should be Mary May.

PROBATE NOTICE.

IN THE PROBATE COURT OF THE COUNTY of Inyo State of California. In the matter of the estate of Benjamin Weaver, deceased. Order to show cause why Order of Sale of Real Estate should not be made. James D. Blair, the Administrator of the estate of Benjamin Weaver, deceased, having filed his petition herein, duly verified, praying for an order of sale of the personal property and the real estate of said deceased, for the purposes therein set forth.

It is therefore ordered by the Hon. John A. Hannah, Judge of said Court, that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased appear before the said Probate Court on Saturday, the Fourteenth Day of October, 1876, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the Court Room of said Probate Court at the Court House in Independence, County of Inyo, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said Administrator to sell the whole of the real estate and personal property of the said deceased, or so much as shall be necessary.

And that a copy of this order be published at least once a week for four successive weeks in THE INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in said Inyo County.

JOHN A. HANNAH,
Probate Judge.
Dated September 13, 1876. n32614

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 16.....1876.

THANKS.—Although we found it impossible to visit but a few on Bishop last week, yet, we were placed under pleasant obligations to the aforesaid for substantial favors, in the way of business, and generous hospitality which will not soon be forgotten. In this connection we will take occasion to repeat THE INDEPENDENT's liberal offer at the commencement of the present volume: "Do the best you can for us and it is all right." In quite a number of cases subscriptions have run without payment from three to six years—our creditors, if no one else, can realize the ruinous mode of doing business in this way. Payment in advance is published in our terms, but in numerous instances among our old time subscribers, bills are not presented until the year is run up. We trust all such will kindly remember this on receipt of their bills and not lay the accounts aside, thinking we are premature when really it is overstepping an established rule.

COUNTY COURT.—Thos. Hawkins, indicted for horse stealing, was arraigned last Saturday, and the trial set for Thursday. At that time, his counsel, W. P. George, entered a plea of not guilty, and asked for time to procure witnesses. The case was then continued to 1 o'clock on Friday, but in the meantime prisoner's counsel had worked himself into a sort of a "spairitual" passion during which he avowed there was no use for him to make any contest in the matter, as there was a ring formed here which was bound to convict his client anyhow; when the case was called on Friday the counsel was non est, having previously departed for his residence in the country. The Court then appointed R. M. Briggs, Esq., prisoner's counsel, and on his motion the case was further continued till the 23d proximo, as mentioned elsewhere.

MATTERS SOCIAL.—Whatever may be said of other affairs, social matters hereabouts have been quite lively the past week. It was founded on a matrimonial basis, however. First came Casper Cohn, of Lone Pine, with his estimable bride, whose unusual attractiveness induced a very warm and heartfelt welcome from the numerous friends of the happy bridegroom in this place, culminating in a social but impromptu dance here and a reception ball at Lone Pine. Then came quietly and unobtrusively enough Receiver Tom May with his charming bride, from Havilah, the lady being welcomed back as an old acquaintance and very desirable addition to social circles.

THE BEND CITY BRIDGE.—This bridge has become impassable, much to the loss and inconvenience of wood haulers and many others. It will require several hundred dollars to put it in repair, or at least, a sum greater than the Road Commissioner is justified in expending out of the regular road fund. In view of this fact, and the self-evident needs of the case, a petition is being circulated praying the Board of Supervisors at their next meeting to vote a special appropriation for the purpose. As the next meeting is a special one, notice is given in this issue that this matter will then be taken up for consideration.

WILL CELEBRATE.—We hear that Co. "D," at the Post, contemplate giving a ball on the 13th or 14th of next month, the anniversary of the organization of Honor (Military) Lodge, I. O. G. T., which institution, by the way, is well worthy of such recognition in return for the inestimable good it has wrought to many individuals. It is but proper to state that the subject of the anniversary ball has been merely broached, not decided.

"TAKING STOCK."—The clerical force at Harris & Rhine's have been busily engaged for two weeks past in "taking stock"—and it is not a very small take either. Panamint Brown was heard to say that he didn't mind the ladies' department, but the warehouse was a terrible shock on his nervous system. It will require another week to complete the invoicing.

DOING WELL.—We have the pleasant information that the Kearsarge mill is making a very successful and encouraging run upon Rex Montes ore. We have no particulars further than that four or five thousand dollars worth of bullion will, in a day or two, be shipped as the result of the week's run.

J. B. SWEARINGEN, proprietor of the Bishop Creek Hotel, is enjoying a large patronage. The building has been thoroughly renovated, a commodious dining room opened and an addition of a ladies' parlor, etc., in contemplation. Bishop Creek can now boast of a first class hotel.

RECORDER ELECTED. — Pursuant to call, a meeting was held at Rowley's store last Monday for the purpose of electing a Recorder for the Kearsarge Mining district. J. W. Symmes, who has been Recorder of the district almost time out of mind, was re-elected to the position.

A SOUL was made happy the other morning—the radiant posessor of which was invited by a friend to take a cocktail; he was so astonished, and it sounded so sweet he had the friend repeat it two or three times. Those thrilling moments!

ADJOURNED. — Judge Hannah adjourned the County Court yesterday till the 23d of Obtober to give Hawkins, held for grand larceny, an opportunity to procure witnesses from Mono county.

ESTRAY NOTICE.—Any one interested in the wanderings of a herbivorous, hoofed quadruped of the genus equus is referred to the "New Advertisements."

NOT TRUE.—As it was stated that Mrs. McClure, late of this place, had died shortly after her arrival in San Francisco, it is but proper to state, which we do with pleasure, that the rumor was unfounded. A private letter to a friend in this place received a day or two since, states that Mr. and Mrs. McClure had given up the idea of going East to reside and had gone into business in the Bay city.

TO MEET.—The Board of Supervisors are to meet on the 2d of October to levy tax rates for the ensuing year, and to transact special business mentioned elsewhere. Should the Governor's election proclamation be received in time, the election business for this county will also come up; otherwise a special meeting for this purpose will have to be called.

CIVIL SUITS.—There were a couple of civil suits tried before Justice Schalten in the past few days, both of local interest, and one of which threatened to have a very uncivil sequel, but as nothing came of it, and as we cannot undertake to give the whole facts just now, we await further developments before entering upon particulars.

ANNIVERSARY BALL.—The Mexicans propose to celebrate the 66th anniversary of Mexican national independence by a grand ball at Lone Pine to-night.

RETURNED.—Mrs. A. G. Cook, who has been to San Francisco to visit her children, arrived home this morning, bringing the little ones with her.

DARWIN ITEMS.—We take the following from last Saturday's News:

The near completion of the Modoc furnaces, the probability of a mill at Lookout, also one at Lee district, and the certainty of the old and some new companies starting up in and around Darwin, augurs well for good and lively business times here this Winter, and we believe that but a few weeks will have elapsed before such times are fully inaugurated.

Mr. S. Linkton, late Superintendent of the Coso Con. Mining Company, has resigned his position, and goes to Nevada to take charge of some mine there. Chas. W. Leach, foreman of the Coso Con., is now acting as Superintendent, and W. E. Stronach, who is now in charge of Al. Briggs' store during his absence, is acting as Clerk for the Company.

L. F. Shepard, who was formally in charge of the Defiance furnaces, has been placed in charge of the New Coso furnaces. It is hoped, and we believe, that a greater amount of bullion will now be turned out. Stockholders here wonder why the New Coso Company are not paying dividends, instead of levying assessments. There is no reason why the mine should not, but it don't.

James Morton, of Merced City, one of the heavy owners in the Minneatta Belle Mining Company, at Lookout, says that the company will immediately make arrangements for the construction of a ten-stamp mill to work their ores, as it is believed that they can be handled to much more profitable advantage than by the furnace process. The Modoc ores are of the same character, to a very large extent.

Detective Hume was here during the week, endeavoring to spot or obtain a clue that may lead to the robbers who lately went through Wells, Fargo & Co.'s treasure box, below Mountain Springs station. Now that Hume has taken the matter in hand we don't believe that Inyo county will be quite so good a field for such sports as it has been in the past.

HELP THE BOYS.

There has recently been established in San Francisco an institution called the "Youths' Directory and Boys' Shelter." It is under the patronage of Bishop Alemany, and is maintained by gratuitous contributions. Its manager is Ambrose P. Dietz, whose office and address is 520 Bush street. Its object is most praiseworthy and in that belief we call attention to the following letter from Mr. Dietz, which fully explains the aims and purposes of the institution. It is dated on the 12th:

EDITORS INDEPENDENT—In furtherance of a good cause, please inform your readers, especially in the rural districts, that we constantly have on hand a large number of strong, active, honest, responsible young men, from 15 to 21 years of age, most of whom were born in this country (no hoodlums nor puny striplings) who are ready and eager for any opportunity to render faithful service by contract at the rate of fifty cents per working day, beside board and lodging, with fare advanced, the latter to be deducted from their first earnings. We make no charges to employers or employees. This institution is maintained by gratuitous contributions.

Help our boys against the encroachments of the Chinese coolies in their competition for labor. In the battle of life and the struggle for existence on this coast, let the fitter race, the higher type of humanity, survive.

Respectfully yours,
A. P. DIETZ, Manager.

WILL EXPLAIN.—It is stated in our exchanges of the 13th that Tilden has prepared for publication a statement concerning his income tax returns. It will be published in a day or two. Presumably it will be offered as a clear vindication, and, owing to the position of Mr. Tilden before the world at this juncture we sincerely hope he may be able to clear himself beyond a shadow of doubt.

THE action of the California Grangers relative to the shipping of wheat is announced to have resulted in a failure.

THE Servians appear to be completely demoralized, the army being reduced to a mere mob.

OUR MONO LETTER.

BENTON, Cal., September 13.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Things in general are bearing a somewhat brighter look; business has livened up, and everybody is looking forward to continuous good times.

MINING,

The different mining companies and private individuals are prospecting their claims with renewed vigor. At present the Diana, Blind Spring, Apache, Kearsage, Illinois and the Chinaman are in course of active development. The Indian Queen mill, at Hutch's Cañon, started up on the 9th for a short run. This celebrated mine is as good as ever, but the water level has been reached and machinery will have to be placed upon it before further developments can be made. Dudley Hoyt is the Superintendent, vice John Howell. Mr. Hoyt is a capitalist and a thorough going miner and mill man, and from the efforts of himself and his able assistant, H. M. Levy, the Queen may be considered an assured success.

BULLION.

Shipments of bullion from this camp, through Wells, Fargo & Co., amounted to $41,541 17 for the month of August.

SUICIDE.

Last Saturday a Chinamen was found suspended by the neck upon Blind Spring Hill. He had been ill for some time, and probably became insane, during which time he committed the fatal deed. He was buried in the Benton cemetery, all the Chinese and many white men attending the funeral.

SICKNESS

Still prevails, and several of our citizens are lying upon sick-beds. Dr. Griswold, our able and conscientious physician, has his hands full; but from present indications there is no serious danger.

POLITICAL.

Saturday evening Frank Almon addressed the Tilden and Hendricks Club upon the political issues of the day. The meeting was a grand success—the speaking exeellent, and Frank was voted an able and eloquent orator.

Sunday, John Shively, Chairman of the Hayes and Wheeler Club, addressed the public in an able manner, meeting the approbation of all good Republicans.

GONE BELOW.

G. W. Cross starts to-morrow for a visit to the Bay, in order to give his money a chance. During his absence Dan. Ashley, a general favorite with the public, has full charge of the ambrosial cocktail business.

LAW.

Justices Decker and Cross still hold their levees upon law matters. The former now has several cases upon his docket, two of which are of some importance, as they hinge wholly upon law points. Speaking of these, your correspondent would like some of the legal fraternity to crack the tollowing nut:

Suppose a summons is served upon a defendant, and in an hour afterwards he notifies the plaintiff that he is willing to have the case tried upon the following day. Plaintiff protests, and says that he cannot appear until the legal time has expired (see amendments to the Codes.) The Justice says that plaintiff will have to appear, as he has received notice by detendant; plaintiff does not appear upon the following day and the case goes by default; plaintiff appears at the expiration of the five days and demands judgment, but is informed that the case had gone against him by default. [We could solve that problem one way or the other, no doubt, but we will refer it to gentlemen more learned in the law.—EDS.]

SPECIAL.

Oceans of Oil.

[From the S. F. Journal of Commerce.]

The natural resources of California are only beginning to be known and developed. It has been known for about 10 years that there was evidence of the existence of coal oil in the southern part of the State, and occasionally there has been considerable excitement over the fact, and claims have been bought and taken up. But no organized effort has been made until very recently to develop this commercial industry.

THE PENNSYLVANIA OIL MEN

wonder why this has not been done long ago; and, when asked why they have not done it, reply that they have enough to do at home. But they are now beginning to turn their attention to the matter, and look for lands to develop. This should encourage our own people to take hold of this industry, and not allow the profits to go into the hands of Eastern capitalists. If they should only save the freights across the continent, that would be a handsome profit. The cost of development is not great compared with the mining industries, as $25,000 is considered the outside figure for a coal oil claim. The work hitherto done has been of the rudest kind, owing to ignorance of the subject. But steam is to take the place of spring poles in drilling, and the railway will drive out the wagon; oil will be piped to the refineries, and daily come nearer to the consumer. It is true that coal oil production is something new on this coast, but where it exists in paying quantities this can be no argument against the development of so important an interest.

THE DEMAND FOR OILS

is on the increase all over the world, and particularly in Germany. And while this is true, it is also a fact that the yield in Pennsylvania (the only illuminating oil producing region of any importance) is not equal to the consumption. And within the past two months coal oils have greatly increased in value. The present yield of Pennsylvania oils is about 60,000 barrels per day, while there is a demand for 90,000 barrels per day. This deficiency in the supply is now met from the large tanks filled when they were flowing wells; but these cannot last forever, and there must be

A NEW SOURCE OF SUPPLY,

while oil men have searched the world in vain for a new supply when the old shall fail. Thus far the California oils are the only oils of any merit whatever for illuminating purposes. And no country could be more favorably located for supplying China, Australia and India than California. The principal oil region thus far discovered in this State is in the northwest corner of Los Angeles county, and extending into Ventura county, another great outlet. This oil region is about fifty miles square in the two counties. The claims, running from 20 to 160 acres, have all been taken up by different companies. But only one,

THE CALIFORNIA STAR OIL COMPANY, which has a refinery on their claim, has done anything in the way of development; and they have a well yielding forty barrels per day. This well was struck about six weeks ago; and the company has leased one-fifth of a claim of which the remainder is held at $120,000. The oils of this company are now burned nightly at the saloon of Oscar Lewis, 132 Sutter street, and their illuminating properties are equal, if not superior, to the oils of Pennsylvania. The latter contain 33 per cent. of illuminating properties, while our's contain 60 per cent.; and the California crude oils have a gravity of 40°. These oils are now on exhibition with the Mechanics' Institute Fair. The San Fernando may be reached by rail and water. It is thirty miles from Los Angeles, and five miles from the railway. The only flowing well is 165 feet deep, while from 500 to 600 feet would be the greatest depth required at any point on the oil belt. In Pennsylvania they are obliged to sink from 600 to 1,400 feet before striking the oil. But there the wells have to flow, and have to be pumped, while in California the flow is believed to be perennial. The Ventura for miles, and have been for years, and can be traced along shore as far as Santa Monica. The San Fernando district is covered with numerous flowing springs along the oil belt—bubbling up out of the shale, and showing a large deposit of oil. This indicates a great pressure, and great quantities of oil at a great depth. The oil is adjacent to the Santa Clara River Valley, in cañons and in the foothills of the San Fernando mountains, from 600 to 800 feet above the sea level. The best time to work these wells is in the Winter, but there is a sufficient supply of water for drilling purposes in the Summer and plenty of timber.

OIL REGION

HE WAS NOT TO BE CAUGHT.—"Dick, my boy," asked a Chicago broker of his office-boy the other evening, "I believe I shall have to reduce your salary a little." "Reduce!" echoed the young assistant; why I only get two dollars a week now." "Well, then," continued the broker, "what do you say to dropping the salary entirely and taking a half interest in the business?" The boy could not be caught in that way; he was too shrewd a lad. He had kept a good track of business and had seen how things were running, and so, instead of thoughtlessly accepting the man's offer, he quietly but firmly replied: "If it comes to that, sir, I believe I shall have to leave."

VON SCHMIDT has constructed a dam up near the headwaters of the Truckee river. When the water becomes low he shuts down the gates of this dam of his and thus locks up the water without so much as "by your leave" to those having as much right to it who happen to be down the stream. This thing occurred a few days ago, and in less than twenty-four hours the river had fallen two feet—causing a suspension of business all along the river. When the headwaters are shut off we have but the Little Truckee and a few other unimportant streams to supply us.—Reno Journal.

SNOW.—A slight fall of the beautiful put in an appearance here last Wednesday, and lasted fifteen minutes. The weather during the day was very cold. Snow on the 6th day of September, even in this locality, is rather early. Although on the 7th of September, three years ago, there was a fall of snow here. —White Pine News, Sept. 9.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 16.....1876.

The Perils of the Mine.

[From the Virginia Chronicle, August 30.]

About 9 o'clock last night, while the cage of the central compartment of the Ophir shaft was being hoisted, and when it had reached a point about 1,100 feet from the surface, there suddenly came a tremendous strain on the cable, and before the steam could be shut off the coupling connecting the nine-inch shaft, upon which the three reels of the north engine revolve, broke like so much glass, and sent the fragments whizzing through the works. Pieces of heavy iron were scattered on all sides, as if a ten-inch shell had burst in the midst of the works. The "spider" or reel upon which the cable was wound, liberated from its fastenings, spun backward, cutting through the heavy planks like a buzz-saw, and then breaking itself to fragments. One piece of iron, 300 pounds in weight, was shot through the air, just missing the main steam-pipe. Had this pipe been broken, the steam would have scalded all the men in the building. The wire cable, with its immense weight, went down the shaft like lightning after the coupling broke, and spinning from the spider with fearful velocity, tore away its fastenings, and, for a few seconds, the cord whipped about the place in a way that threw the men into a state of

TERROR AND CONFUSION.

Men were rushing in every direction, dodging the flying missiles and crawling under the timbers to avoid the cable, which was plied like a lash through the air, and falling with strokes that resounded like the booming of a gun, and shattering the lighter timbers of the gallows frame to fragments, until it disappeared down the shaft and piled 1,600 feet of its length on the cage below, which, as already stated, was 1,100 feet down, hanging by the safety clamps. During this scene of danger and confusion the engineers never moved an inch from their posts, and although other men sought places of safety behind the heavy timbers which was nearest them, not a man left the building, and the instant the cable flashed out of sight down the shaft, measures were taken to send relief to the man whose life was supposed to be endangered in the cage of the south compartment. It was thought that the mass of cable in the center deparment had burst through and crushed the cage at that point in the south compartment. The north cage was immediately lowered, and about 1,100 feet down the shaft was apparent. The south cage containing one man, in being lowered had reached a joint where the pressure of the swelling earth had forced the guides inward, cramping the cage and preventing it from going down. The engineer had no means of knowing this, and continuing to lower, piled about 400 feet of cable on top of the cage. This accumulated on the cage until it forced itself through the skeleton timber into the central compartment, in which another cage was coming up. The upward bound cage became entangled in the cable, and getting fast threw a terrific strain on the coupling of the reel above ground, which resulted in smashing both reel and shaft into a hundred fragments. The cage then fell back on the safety clamps, and as ton after ton of the cable came down sank lower and lower, but still clinging to the girdes, until 1,400 feet rested upon it, when it came to a standstill.

THE REAL CAUSE OF THE ACCIDENT

REPAIRING DAMAGES.

Superintendent Curtis was immediately sent for, and with his usual energy set about the work of repairing. The broken reel was cast aside, and the south engine made to work with double reel. The cables and cages were raised this morning, the broken timbers replaced, and by noon everything was running as usual. The damage will not exceed $1,000. So long as no lives were lost Captain Curtis feels that the damagee did not amount to much after all, and holds no one to blame for it. The coupling was perfectly sound and contained no flaw.

PRESENT DOING.—Don't live a single hour of your life without doing exactly what is to be done in it, and going straight through it from beginning to end. Work, play, study, whatever it is—take hold at once, and finish it up squarely and cleanly, and then attend to the next thing, without letting any moment drop out between. It is wonderful to see how many hours prompt people contrive to make of a day; it is as if they picked up the moments the dawdlers lost. And if ever you find yourself where you have so many things upon you that you hardly know how to begin, to take hold of the very first one that comes to hand, and you will find the rest all fall into file and follow after like a company of trained soldiers, and though work may be hard to meet when it charges in a squad, it is easily vanquished if you can bring it into line. No man ever largely succeeded who just looked his work in the face.

AN extraordinary story has just reached Virginia from a rancher living in the vicinity of Walker Lake. It appears that about two weeks ago a teamster was engaged in cooking his breakfast, when he says he discovered a monstrous snake attempting to enter the tent where he was preparing his meal. He droppped his frying pan and instantly fled. He went to Belleville, about twelve miles distant, and procured assistance. They all returned to the tent, but could discover nothing but a trail on the ground, resembling the track of a three-foot log, which led into a marsh called Teal's marsh. The whole neighborhood is greatly excited now, and there are lots of horsemen scouring the country in search of the great serpent.—Carson Tribune.

THESE new styles of paniers do away with newspaper bustles, and a journal must run on its merits alone.

WHAT holds all the snuff in the world? No one nose.

THE Watkins Express is responsible for this: "A few Sundays ago we heard a preacher of the Gospel, who holds forth over there in Chemung counnty, make use of this vigorous comparison: 'A hypocritical Christian can no more get into heaven than a raccoon can climb a stovepipe with a tea kettle tied to his tail.'"

TWENTY Brooklyn ladies voted on the question: Has a young lady the right to kiss a gentleman with whom she takes an evening drive? There were nineteen affirmative votes. The one negative vote was cast by a woman with red hair and a glass eye.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 7.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Our streets begin to present a more homelike appearance since the cool weather is bringing home our old stagers and their families who have been spending the Summer in the country and at the watering places. The tide of Centennial visitors appears to be upon the increase and I am not exaggerating when I say the streets are literally thronged with them. Nearly all of them, particularly the young bucks, when they go to the Treasury department will persist in standing at the door where the ladies are at work. One sentimental youth yesterday asked the doorkeeper at the main entrance if he might go in and see the girls? He went in and planted himself at the door of the currency division and feasted his kyes with much evident satisfaction.

Our nautical visitors the Dublin and Cambridge crews also visited the Treasury and it is said the intricacies of greenback manufactory did not seem to interest them half as much as the comeliness of many of the ladies employed in the bureau, and if the expressions of these men of muscle and brain are to be taken as sincere, they regard the feminine portion of the Treasury department as the fairest and best feature of our Republican form of government. These gentlemen are having much attention shown them and appear to be highly pleased. A boat race will take place this evening when our citizens will have an opportunity to witness the rowing of the two most celebrated boat crews in the world. I don't wish to be at all cynical, but I must say that in a sea rough way, I doubt if these smooth water rowers would stand the slightest chance in a race with a boat's crew of man-of-wars-men.

Gen. Bristow has renewed the lease for his house in this city which looks as though he contemplated remaining here for some time.

Some one last night set fire to a very nice frame house belonging to ex-Secretary Belknap—it was completely distroyed.

The President is at the Centennial; he took much interest in the exhibition of live stock yesterday.

We have nothing of importance from Crook or Terry. The Indians at the Standing Rock Agency are not at all pleased with the change made by Col. Carlin at that post in suspending the post trader who is accused of issuing 250 cattle to the Chief, Kill Eagle, who so arranged matters that the hostiles got the most of them. Capt. Johnson who was put in charge of the Agency after the suspension of the post trader, held a council with the chiefs and leading men in all numbering about one hundred. The council was a stormy one and much loud and impatient talk was indulged in on the part of the Indians. One great cause of trouble at Standing Rock is the fact that the Indians have been short of supplies every Winter and their supplies were so delayed this Summer that they became absolutely destitute. It is a great pity that some plan cannot be devised to keep faith with them and at least pay the pittance we promise for the lands we take from them by violence.

An International Medical Congress is now in session in Philadelphia; distinguished delegates from all parts of the world are present, and much light is expected to be thrown upon many abstruse subjects in the field of medical science.

The exportation of American beef to England is attracting much attention. The Jersey City Abattoir Company have made another large consignment by the Cunard steamer Algeria. The experiments made by this company have proved remarkably successful and the beef has brought high profits in the English market while selling one hundred per cent. lower than the home raised article.

An important decision was recently made in the Lebanon county, Pa., Court by Judge Henderson. A man was indicted for assault and battery on a neighbor because he claimed the fruit on the overhanging branches of the tree overhanging the prosecutor's lot. Judge Henderson said that every owner of land is the owner of it from his line upward as far as he desires to lay claim to it. This being the law the prosecutor had a right to the fruit on the branches overhanging his lot. He might even have sawed the branches off. This information may be useful to persons residing in cities, towns, or villages.

SAXON.

A TRADITION OF SARATOGA LAKE. There is an Indian superstition attached to this lake which probably had its source in its remarkable loneliness and tranquility. The Mohawks believed that its stillness was sacred to the Great Spirit, and that if a human voice uttered a sound upon its waters, the canoe of the offender would instantly sink. A story is told of an Englishwoman, in the early days of the first settlers, who had occasion to cross the lake with a party of Indians, who, before embarking, warned her most impressively of the spell. It was a silent, breathless day, and the canoe shot over the surface of the lake like an arrow. About half a mile from the shore, near the center of the lake, the woman, wishing to convince the Indians of the erroneousness of their superstition, uttered a loud cry. The countenances of the Indians fell instantly to the deepest gloom. After a minute's pause, however, they redoubled their exertions, and in frowning silence drove the light bark swiftly over the waters. They reached the shore in safety, and drew up the canoe, when the woman rallied the chief on his credulity. "The Great Spirit is merciful," answered the scornful Mohawk; "he knows that a white woman can not hold her tongue!"

MCFARLAND'S RUINED LIFE.—Daniel McFarland, who is known to fame as the slayer of Richardson in New York some years ago, turned up in Chicago a few days since. After his release from the penitentiary he went to Colorado, where he has been living for the past two years. His friends have tried to assist him, but he seems to be unable to do anything for himself. Since his arrival in Chicago he has been living on the charity of some of his old friends and acquaintances. The other evening he was discovered by a policeman in the act of crawling into a window in the law office of E. W. Evans, No. 90 Washington street, and taken to the armory on suspicion of being a burglar, but produced the key of the office, and said that he had been sleeping there for the past few nights, but that he could not open the door. He did not look like a common thief, although the officers at the station were ignorant who he really was, and he was placed in the witness room to sober off.—Chicago Tribune.

GOVERNOR TILDEN EXPLAINS.—The New York Herald, of Sept. 13, has the following: The following is the line of defense advanced by Governor Tilden in 1861, the period of the alleged false returns of his two brothers, Henry and Moses, lately deceased. They were in the chemical manufacturing business, in Lebanon, but became financially embarrassed to such a degree that ruin was inevitable unless prompt and ample relief came to them. At this crisis Governor Tilden advanced at different dates large sums of money, amounting to several hundred thousand dollars, out of his earnings, which were lost. These, he claims, left his income at the figures in his sworn statement, and this is the defense to the charge of perjury. The document, when published, will, of course, be more voluminous; but it is believed that the essential points are embraced above.

THE NEW YORK GOVERNORSHIP.—The Democratic State Convention of New York met yesterday at Saratoga and nominated by acclamation Lucius Robinson for Governor. Mr. Robinson is doubtless a prominent citizen of the Empire State, but we do not just now recall anything regarding his history. His availability as a candidate can be better judged when we get the comments of the Eastern press. The convention seems to have united on him with remarkable unanimity, which at least speaks well for his popularity. This ends the unfortunate muddle in New York, and at the same time removes from the national canvass a condition of affairs which threatened at one time to prove a serious obstacle to the success of the Democracy in that State. Eureka Sentinel, Sept. 14.

THE next President of the United States will be inaugurated on the 5th of March, the 4th being Sunday. The infrequency of the fourth day of March of every fourth year falling on Sunday is the reason why that particular day was selected for the inauguration of a President. This event has occurred once or twice since the foundation of the Government, and will not happen again for a century.

THE MUSTANGS ON TIME.—Francisco Peralto, at Buffalo, N. Y., on the 4th instant, again attempted on the Buffalo Park track to ride against time 160 miles in eight hours, using thirty mustangs. He accomplished the feat, with eleven minutes to spare. About 2,000 persons were present.

Singular Property of Tomato Leaves.

We have never heard of any complaints of "curled leaf" on peach trees on this side of the mountains, but the following which we find in the Scientific American, may be of use hereafter, nevertheless:

"I planted a peach orchard," writes M. Siroy, of the Society of Horticulture, Valparaiso, "and the trees grew well and strongly. They had just commenced to bud when they were invaded by the curculio (pwlgon), which insects were followed, as frequently happens, by ants. Having cut some tomatoes, the idea occurred to me that, by placing some of the leaves around the trunks and branches of the peach trees, I might preserve them from the rays of the sun, which were very powerful.

"My surprise was great, upon the following day, to find the trees entirely free from their enemies, not one remaining, except here and there where a curled leaf prevented the tomato from exercising its influence. These leaves I carefully unrolled, placing upon them fresh ones from the tomato vine, with the result of banishing the last insect and enabling the trees to grow with luxuriance. Wishing to carry still further my experiment, I steeped in water some fresh leaves of the tomato, and sprinkled with this infusion other plants, roses, and oranges. In two days these were also free from the innumerable insects which covered them, and I felt sure that, had I used the same means with my melon patch, I should have met with the same result. I therefore deem it a duty I owe to the Society of Horticulture to make known this singular and useful property of the tomato leaves, which I discovered by the merest accident."

THE GREAT MYSTERY.—The body is to die. No one who passes that boundary comes back to tell. The imagination visits the land of shadows, sent out from some window of the soul over life's restless waters, but wings its way back without even a leaf in its beak as a token of merging life beyond the closely bending horizon. The great sun comes, goes in the heavens, yet breathes no secret of the ethereal wilderness. The crescent moon cleaves her nightly passage across the upper deep, but tosses overboard no signals. The sentinel stars challenge each other as they walk their nightly round, but we catch no countersign which gives passage to the heavenly music. Between this and the other life there is a great gulf fixed, across which neither foot nor eye can travel. The gentle friend whose eyes were closed in their last, long sleep, long years ago, died with rapture in her wandering eyes, a smile upon her lips, and hands folded over a triumphant heart; but her lips were speechless, and intimated nothing of the vision that enthralled her.

DEMANDING DAMAGES.—Some five or six weeks ago, two Shoshone Indians, a buck and a squaw, were accidentally killed by being run over by the cars on the Salt Lake division of the Central Pacific Railroad. A report now comes from Ogden that the relatives of the deceased Indians demand remuneration, for their loss from the railroad company. This request is made through the Indian Agent at Salt Lake, who, we are informed threaten to tear up the track and obstruct the road in the event of a refusal on the part of the company to comply with their demand. The Indians base their claim on the allegation that the death of the two members of their tribe was not the result of accident, but was caused by a brakeman throwing them off the cars. Our informant says the case has caused considerable commotion at Ogden.—Silver State.

SYNDICATE MINE.—This mine, so expressively named, is situated in Bodie Mining District, and is owned by H. M. Yerington, Captain T. G. Taylor and Messrs. Hall and Rose of Aurora. This company has a mill on the ground that cost $60,000, and are now taking out and crushing ore, the bullion from the last clean up now being in the mint at Carson City. The Bunker is another valuable mine in the same district, lately purchased by Daniel and Seth Cook of San Francisco. The mining prospects of Bodie are decidedly looking up and bringing themselves into deserved prominence.—Gold Hill News, Sept. 15.

ONE of the strongest Chinese haters in the United States, who guided the Caucasian League on to glory, and is a prominent leader and treasurer of the new Order, was seen to-day bargaining with two Celestials. They had some difficulty in coming to terms, as the Chinamen wanted a dollar a day, and the hirer only wanted to give seven bits. The contract was closed, and a short time afterward this solitary enemy, with four hundred million Chinamen, stood on the top of a wood pile, and like Cæsar commanding his legions, ordered his soldiers to duty. Try and practice what you preach, "is a motto for every man."—Truckee Republican.

A MANUFACTORY for the extraction of sugar from watermelons is about to be started on Andros Island, situated in the delta lying between the San Joaquin and Sacramento rivers. Mr. F. A. Rowe, of San Francisco, has taken the matter in hand. The machinery is on the way overland, and it is expected at Sacramento within a week.

THE Shanghai papers state that the famine is threatening the entire province of Chiuli, two-thirds of Shantung, the greater portion of Honan Ngan-hui, and certain districts of Mongolia. The tract of country suffering thus terribly from drought has a population which may be estimated in the aggregate at 70,000,000.

A DISASTROUS engagement occurred on Tule River the other day between the forces under command of Andy Miles and those led by Isaiah Byrd. The battle lasted some time, and many little incidents occurred which we have not the pen to describe. Reports are, that Mr. Byrd, senior, received a bullet over the eye, which glanced off without entering the brain, while Mr. Byrd, junior, was badly used up in a fist to fist encounter with one of his enemies. It is reported that Miles fired at Byrd without being assaulted; that the bullet plowed a furrow across the frontal bone, knocking the old gentleman down and rendering him senseless for some minutes, during which he lay violently struggling on the ground. The parties are neighbors, and have been for some time on bad terms.—Visalia Delta, September 14.

AT the opening of a new Roman Catholic church in Bradford, England, to the erection of which a number of Protestants had subscribed, the officiating priest remarked that it was right for Catholics to receive such contributions, but they could not in turn give to Protestant churches, because they believed the fundamental principles of Protestantism to be wrong.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 23.....1876.

THE NEXT ELECTIONS.—There are but two State elections to come which will materially affect the great national contest in November. On the 10th of October, Ohio and Indiana will cast their votes for Governor and a Legislature. The result of the elections in these States will prove a prediction, to a certain extent, of the result of the Presidential fight in November. Singularly enough, each one of these States claims one of its sons as candidates in the National election; and what is more singular, and has not happened before in the history of the country, these candidates are Governors of the two States. Thos. A. Hendricks rules Indiana, and Rutherford B. Hayes is the executive of Ohio. Thus the two men will be pitted against each other on the second Tuesday of October, and the one who wins the great fight may very confidently count on his election by the people at large in November.

IMPORTANT TO NOTARIES PUBLIC. Among the important laws passed on the last day of the late session of Congress is the following, which will be found of interest to parties having business with United States Courts:

Be it enacted, etc., That Notaries Public of the several States, Territories and the District of Columbia, be and they are hereby authorized to take depositions and do all other acts in relation to taking testimony to be used in the Courts of the United States, take acknowledgments and affidavits in the same manner and with the same effect as Commissioners of the United States Circuit Courts may now lawfully take or do.

AN ADJUSTMENT.—The coal miners of Pennsylvania who were on a "long strike," have at last submitted to the terms proposed by their former employers—a reduction of ten per cent.—and gone to work again. The break-up in the coal combination, which compelled the monopolists to loosen their grasp upon the accumulated millions of bushels of coal, held for speculative purposes, is supposed to have had much to do with the reconciliation. It was some satisfaction for the miners to feel that if they must work for reduced wages it was for men who had themselves experienced the bitterness of adversity.

AMERICANS VICTORIOUS.—The international rifle match at Creedmoore, which was finished on the 16th, resulted in the American team getting away with the baggage, beating the Irish team 22 points. The total score for both days stood as follows: Americans, 3,126; Irish, 3,104; Scotch, 3,063; Australian, 3,062; Canadian, 2,923. After the shooting ended and the result was announced, deafening cheers for the American and Irish teams, which appeared to be the favorites, rent the air. The best shots of both teams were also cheered individually.

JENNIE BONNET, a comely French girl and the daughter of a broken-down actor, was shot dead near San Francisco on the 18th instant. The assassin fired through the window, killing the girl as she sat in her chair. She was known as the "Frog Catcher," that having been her means of livlihood for some time past. Her mysterious death produced quite a sensation in San Francisco.

ANOTHER GONE.—Henry A. Wise, another of those noted men whose names will ever figure in the history of our country, has passed away. He died at his home in Virginia last week, at the advanced age of 70 years. His death had been anticipated for several weeks, he himself, in response to a political invitation, having written that he never expected to leave his room alive.

THE New York Herald says: "Any nomination the Convention could have made would have given the Democratic party a stronger candidate for Governor than it is possible to obtain now after Mr. Seymour's final refusal."

FOR TILDEN.—It is said Gen. Bidwell is out for Tilden and Hendricks. We suppose he couldn't forgive Sargent and those fellows for abusing him so like a pickpocket when he was the Independent candidate for Governor.

WILLIE DAVIS was accidentally shot by his little brother in Los Angeles on the 15th, with a small pocket pistol, dying in a few hours after receiving the shot.

A NEPHEW of Brigham Young is editor of the Salt Lake Tribune, the Gentile newspaper, and he calls his beloved uncle "an avaricious old hound."

A COMPANY has been organized in Oregon to construct a railroad from Portland to connect with the Union Pacific Railroad at Ogden.

POOR ECONOMY.

There were a vast number of leaks in our National Treasury that needed stopping very much, and our late House of Representatives are worthy of commendation for undertaking the contract. But like most radical reformers they got over zealous,. and carried the joke a little too far, a fact that is becoming manifest, even this early. There were hundreds, perhaps thousands in the aggregate, of useless deadheads in the several department offices, drawing good pay and doing absolutely nothing except to occupy desk room in return. Still greater sums than their salaries amounted to have been regularly stolen or the same as stolen, in various other ways. It was a good thing to cut down appropriations so far as necessary to put a stop to these leaks, for that was the only way they could be stopped. But the cutting down, even after the check interposed by the Senate, was a little too extensive for the general good. Here, for instance, is the Patent Office, an institution of the very first importance to every industry of the land, and yet one that has always not only been self-sustaining, but has always paid a handsome revenue toward the support of other Departments. In both these particulars it stands alone, a notable exception, among all our government offices or departments. Though employing a large force, and under a system of management that has never yet been impeached for lack of integrity or usefulness, it has barely been able to keep up to its work. With its fullest force it has as a rule required nearly two months to reach and pass upon an application in its regular order of filing. Now its force has been cut down just one-fourth, and already its work is four months in arrears. At the same ratio it will soon be a year or more before any future applicant for a patent can hope to receive a decision upon it. The ultimate result will be that important interests involved will compel a reinstatement of the original force and enough extra perhaps, to make the final cost far exceed the present picayune saving, saying nothing about the loss entailed upon legions of individuals by the delays in obtaining patents. But the meanest thing the Government has to answer for by reason of this spasmodic effort at retrenchment is the fact that all Government animals kept in service of whatever kind are henceforth to be allowed but just simply half rations—that is to say, just half enough to eat; all not kept for actual necessary use—and by general orders, none others are to be given even reduced rations—are to be turned out to graze or starve as circumstances may allow. "Government mules" have often been remarked for the extent of "cheek" they display, but under the new regime they will become so thinned down and so thinned out by short rations, they will have no cheek left worth speaking about.

Another point of retrenchment touching this military branch is that by which it becomes necessary to issue all the old, antiquated clothing, that has, since the adoption of the new uniform, been warehoused for condemnation because not conforming to regulation pattern and also, because of poor material. As these old breeches, coats, shoes, etc., begin to appear on parades, our army will look as funny, not to say grotesque, as did Falstaff's braves in their varegated patterns and colors. However, "the boys in blue," can as they come out in their varied uniforms, console themselves with the reflection that it is not dress that makes the man; and while standing in attenuated lines on grand occasions, and admiring each other's varied rigs they can take some more comfort in knowing economy did not undertake to reduce their numbers by starvation as in the case of the horses and mules. As yet each soldier is allowed the same rations as heretofore, but when old retrenchment gets full swing with his big broom, which will not be till after the 10th of October next, it is very likely the beans in each ration will have to be counted out with much greater precision than has been the custom hitherto.

A WHOLE FAMILY FOUND DEAD.—A family of Swedes, consisting of a man, wife and a small child, was found dead on the 9th instant, in an old house on the farm of Mayor Gentry, near Sadalia, Missouri. The theory is that the man and woman died of sickness and the child fell into a bucket of water, upon the death of the parents, and was drowned.

THE total interments from yellow fever at Savanna on the 9th amounted to twenty-five. Sympathy for the sufferers is being expressed in substantial form by citizens of the principal towns and cities throughout the country.

VICE PRESIDENT COLTON informs a San Francisco reporter that it cost an average of $70,000 per mile to build the Southern Paaific railroad.

TURKISH ATROCITIES.

But few of our readers, we imagine, have given much thought to the circumstances of the eastern war, now raging in Europe. Here, in distant America, the points at issue have but little interest, since. to Americans it is of small consequence how the "balance of power" is maintained in Europe. But there is a question of humanity, or lack of humanity rather, involved that is beginning to invest this Turkish-Servian war with great interest to all civilization. Henceforth when a synonym for all that is mean, utterly brutish and savage, is required, it will no longer be the Apache, Sioux or other wild man of any sort, but simply, the Turk. That name and nation—existing on the very cradle of civilization, embraces all and everything that is atrocious and barbarous. A vast horde of these human brutes—a disciplined army officered in good part by men of civilized nations—goes forth not to put down insurrection actually begun, but merely suspected. They have fallen upon a town containing thousands of defenceless woman and children and unarmed men and left not one alive of any age, sex or condition that came within their reach. No; the lives of the little babes were literally crushed out and trodden under foot before their life in this world had begun.

The Turks not only murdered unborn babes in a manner too horrible to print, but impaled prattling little ones on bayonets and thus marched about the streets to the music of their dying cries. Hundreds of those miserable Bulgarians were crowded into one small church and there slowly roasted alive. Still other hundreds were killed or helplessly crippled and piled up six feet deep within the stone inclosure of the churchyard and left to rot. During the several days it took to complete this work several hundred young girls were kept on the hights so they could see their kindred thus butchered and at the same time subserve the vilest uses of the brute soldiers, one after another, till life was about to depart from their victims when it became the duty of the last man to cut off her head. In one pile were the headless trunks of some two hundred of these wretched girls. In the one town here referred to some 7,000 people were butchered one way and another. This happened three months ago. It was by no means the only instance in kind since the Servian war begun.

Next to the Turks, England is held responsible for their atrocities. But for England Russia would have enterposed long before this, and probably not have left a single Turk in Europe. As a matter of even handed justice not one should be left alive ever to renew his deviltries even Turkey in Asia. Such a people, educated as they are by a religion which leads them to guage their hopes of future salvation in proportion to the number of Christains they slay, have no more right to live and defile the earth than so many gore stained hyenas. But why is England responsible for these things, some may ask? Simply for the reason that England's interests impel her to maintain the integrity of the effete Ottoman empire. She must do this to prevent Russia or any other first class power from getting control of the Bosphoros. But for English interest in that Russia could have driven the Turk from Constantinople long ere this and of course in that event neither Servia, Montenegro or Bulgaria would now be subject to Turkish rule and butchery.

It is some comfort to know that the English people at large begin to feel their responsibility in this matter, and are taking measures to stop the Turk—even if it should end in the partial ruin of their own commercial interests by the ruin of the Turkish empire. English Commissioners have gone to see for themselves that the stories of those atrocities are true, and through these Commissioners the facts are becoming known; and now England through her Ministry tells the Turks that no more of these things will be permitted. England can do no less and escape the execrations of mankind. Should that great power be compelled for humanity's sake to withdraw her support from Turkey, the latter will be at the mercy of Russia, and in that event will certainly soon cease to exist as a power in Europe.

THERE is a very bitter feeling existing among the Black Hills miners against the Peace Commissioners, and the other day, when they were going from Cheyenne to Fort Laramie, they were hooted at by the incoming miners, who told them they hoped the Indians would take their —— scalps before they got through with their cowardly peace mission.

A PORTION of General Crook's command on the morning of the 9th instant, struck a village of hostile Sioux, and after a sharp battle captured it and destroyed a large quantity of provisions, arms and ammunition.

THE TRIAL OF JOHN D. LEE.

A special dispatch from Salt Lake to the San Francisco Chronicle, under date of the 16th instant, gives the following report of the trial of that Mormon cutthroat, John D. Lee. A notable feature is the weakness of the prosecution:

In the Beaver Court this morning, Jacob Hamblin in his testimony stated that John D. Lee told him that an Indian chief who lived at Cedar brought two girls who had been hiding in the brush to him (Lee) and asked what he should do with them—that they were too pretty to kill. Lee replied that he must shoot them; that they were too big. The Indian then shot one and Lee threw the other down and cut her throat. That when Hamblin returned to his ranch he went over the ground and found the bodies of two girls about the ages described (from 13 to 15), lying near together with their throats cut, as described to him by another of the children who was about 8 years old and was at his house, and who claimed the two bodies as her sisters, and that their name was Dunlap. Hamblin, on being asked by the defense if he had ever told this to any one, replied that he had, and more too; that soon after the occurrence, when he remembered it better than he did now, he had told it to President Young and George A. Smith; that President Young told him that when the right time came and we could get a court of justice to go and tell it, and on being further pressed, said he had not seen the effects of any court of justice from that time to this, but thought now was just the right time to tell it.

Johnson, on being recalled, stated that subsequent to the massacre he was sent to protect the next company of emigrants to the Santa Clara; that on his way he stopped at Harmony, where he saw John D. Lee, who proposed to him to get the emigrants into an ambush to destroy them by the Indians, and so get their property; that he (Johnson) replied: "There has been too much bloodshed by you already. I have been instructed to see them safely through, and I will do so or die with them." That Lee then abused him, calling him ugly names. That he identified the prisoner at the bar as being John D. Lee.

The prosecution rested the case here, to the surprise of all in court.

Lee's attorney announced that they also rested their case, and would not introduce any witnesses, but give the case to the jury on the evidence already adduced by the prosecution, and asked for a continuance until Monday, the 18th, to give them time to prepare the argument and instructions to the jury.

The Court adjourned till Monday, and instructed the witnesses to remain, as other cases pertaining to the massacre were to be disposed of.

The following documentary evidence has been filed by the prosecution, but was not given to the jury: A letter from John D. Lee to Brigham Young, dated November 20, 1857, giving the report of the massacre as an Indian affair; a letter from Brigham Young to J. W. Denver, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, dated September 12, 1857: a letter from the same to the same, January 6, 1858; the proclamation of Gov. Young, September 15, 1857; affidavits of Brigham Young and George A. Smith, July 30, 1857; and a letter from Brigham Young to Bishop Dame, September 14, 1857.

ONE OF THE VICES.—One of the greatest evils of the day and generation is the love of personalities. Instead of discussing questions, we discuss people, instead of elevating principles, we elevate heroes; and instead of condemning measures we condemn men. We are in danger of becoming a race of gossips. Our curiosity concerning everybody's affairs, especially if they would hide them, is always feverishly on the alert. Bits of news are vital to us, and we revel in a scandal. In our cities we run "lion" into the ground; in our newspapers the personal items are those most in demand. We require a new excitement every morning in the newspapers, and experience a sense of nothingness if the reputation is not ruined in the evening journal. In order to keep their heads above water newspapers have to pander to this vitiated public taste. This is not the fault of the papers, but of the people, and we hope they will set themselves to work to rectify it.

A TERRIBLE DEATH.—The telegraph informs us that C. Hirsh, who lately arrived in Los Angeles from Arizona, reports that a young man named Henry Smith, from St. Louis, who left Yuma September 3, with pack animals, for Los Angeles, perished on the desert near Indian Wells, just below the boundary line of the State, in Lower California. On the 9th he, with a companion, had been wandering around nearly ninety hours without water, and before he died opened a vein in his arm and drank his own blood, which clotted in his throat. To relieve this he made an incision in his windpipe and pulled out clots of blood with his fingers. Six hours after he died. His companion, in the last stage of exhaustion, made his way to the station and told a horrible tale.—S. F. Bulletin.

DIPTHERIA.—Hon. Israel Crawford informs us that the diptheria has so prevailed at the California part of Walker river that there is not a family in that part of the country that does not mourn the loss of one or more of its little ones, and in some cases all of the children have been laid in the grave. Mr. Crawford has brought his family to Carson, and intends to remain during the coming Winter.—Carson Tribune.

CATTLE DYING.—Cattle are still dying from some unknown cause, though it is supposed to be from eating some poisonous weed along the Humboldt. Dan Vaughn informs that he lost five head from his small band in the last two weeks, and that Mr. Sampson, whose cattle range along the river, also lost several head.—Winnemucca Silver State.

THE Wheeler brothers, from the Black Hills, were expected at Cheyenne on the 18th, with $300,000, the proceeds of seven months' work.

TURKEY WARNED TO MAKE PEACE. The London Times of the 11th instant, in an editorial on the Eastern question, says:

The temper of Europe is swiftly undergoing a menacing change. More countries than Russia might easily pass beyond the control of statesmen. The very danger of which Earl Derby warned Turkey threatens to become a reality. He said with startling force that a renewal of the outrages would be more disastrous to the Porte than the loss of a battle. If the statements regarding atrocities in Servia prove true, it may matter little whether they should afterward prove exaggerations. The Russian people seem approaching a state of popular excitement when even a false report will make peace an impossibility. Every day of warfare adds to the likelihood that the strife may overflow its present limits. There are diplomatic signs which might warn Turkey's rulers how narrow is the foothold on which they must pick their way. They will find it less easy than it has been in former times to keep Turkey safe by exciting the jealousies of rival powers. If they display their wonted astuteness they will seize any expedient that offers a chance of peace.

CROOK DOES CATCH 'EM.—A Sioux City (Iowa) dispatch of the 18th gives this: The following was received from Fort Sully to-day: Heavy firing was heard on the river, ten miles below here, last Tuesday, apparently in the direction of the Black Hills, but no explanation was had of it till yesterday. About ten days ago, Col. Buell, commanding the Cheyenne River Agency, sent some scouts out to General Terry, who failed to reach him, but were attacked by Indians and one of them was wounded in the shoulder. While retreating, they came across a large military trail, which proved to be General Crook's. On the way the scouts saw a camp of thirty lodges near Slim Buttes, north of Harney's Peak, and when Crook was overtaken and informed of this fact, he turned back his cavalry, and by a rapid march surprised and killed every one of the Indians, estimated to number between 200 and 300. Not one escaped. It is further stated that the Sioux are coming in and anxiously surrendering. All at the agencies are being disarmed, but much against their wills.

GOV. TILDEN will have the sincere sympathy of the public, without distinction of party, in his loss of a brother, to whom he was devotedly attached, and for whom he has unquestionably in the past made heavy sacrifices. There is something peculiarly pathetic in the visitations of death in the family of a candidate in a Presidential campaign. While the eyes of the whole country are fastened upon him, while he is straining every nerve in the race, and while half of his fellow-citizens are hoping to see him tripped, a sudden sharp stroke recalls him to what is, after all, of more consequence to him than any success. Long ago Burke spoke in a manly strain of an incident not very different, in a campaign in which he had been a candidate, as "feelingly telling us what shadows we are and what shadows we pursue." Gov. Tilden is, least of all men, sentimental, and we may be sure that in a day or two he will be pushing his canvass as industriously as ever. But for a day or two, at any rate, let there be peace while he buries his dead. N. Y. Tribune, Sept. 12.

MINERAL KING MINES.—Never in the history of Mineral King mining district have the prospects been brighter or the anticipation of miners founded upon such sureties for success as at present. The New England Tunnel and Smelting Co. have all the machinery now landed at the mines necessary for their furnace and by this time next week work will commence in earnest. Tons of ore that will probably average one hundred dollars has already been dumped and ready for working. The various claims, outside of New England Tunnel and Smelting Co's are being worked vigorously and good results are expected. The saw mill is in full operation and thousands of feet of lumber are daily turned out. We are pleased to thus know that the stability of the mines are thus settled, and the great benefit to this section can hardly be realized until the treasures are coined and passed from hand to had. Great credit is due to those persons who have unswervingly "staid with" the development of this district.—Tulare Times, Sept. 16.

GEN. SHERMAN, Commander of the United States forces, arrived this morning by the passenger train, and from Reno to Carson rode with the engineer, Mr. Thomas Clarke, whom he had known when a boy and who with his brother, Col. Clarke, served with the General during the war. The General was dressed in an ordinary, rough traveling suite, and wore a Scotch cap. At the depot he was interviewed by many who had known him in the army and as a banker in the early days of San Francisco. No style, no bombast, nothing indicating that he occupied the second proudest position in this great country, but on the contrary he had a pleasant word and a hearty shake of the hand for every one who approached him.—Carson Tribune, September 19.

TRAIN ROBBERY.—A very bold robbery in which Wells-Fargo's express was the sufferer as usual, took place on the cars near Ogden on the 14th. W. G. Williams, the express agent, has been arrested as the party who did it. The chances are he will be proven guilty. The amount taken was $15,200. Williams is believed to have thrown the money out to confederates, and then bound and gagged himself, he being found in that condition, except that he had got his right arm loose.

MONTANA men in the Black Hills have voted down a proposition to organize a government in Deadwood City, and passed resolutions declaring hanging the penalty for wrong doing, and Judge Lynch's court the only one to be recognized.

AN army of Cossacks are reported as ready to march to Servia.

VOLUME THIRTEEN.—The White Pine News has just entered upon its thirteenth volume, and, notwithstanding it has of late had rather close nipping to live as a weekly up there among the Pogonips, is so far encouraged with the present bright prospects of the country as to think it can ere long come out as a daily. Hope so, for the News is really a superior paper.

CALIFORNIA'S BEST PRODUCTION.

Yerba Buena Bitters.

The Great Cathartic and Regulator.

Purely a Vegetable Compound! Harmless but Powerful!

MESSRS. WILLIAMS & CO.—GENTLEMEN: It is with pleasure I indorse your YERBA BUENA BITTERS. I have never found such instant and permanent relief as from the use of your most invaluable compound. I have been subjected to costiveness and a torpid liver for five years, and am now entirely cured, after using only two bottles of your YERBA BUENA. I am certain that it was YERBA BUENA that cured me of the palpitation of the heart. I am happy to state through the use of your BITTERS I am a well man. All wishing to be convinced of the above, I will give you my residence: 209 Hedesdorff street, San Francisco. JOHN R. STERRE.

MESSRS. H. WILLIAMS & CO.: Dear Sirs—As long as I can remember, I have been troubled with Pin Worms, and at times felt as if I was being devoured alive. Early in March, 1875, I was induced to use your YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and within One Month I was entirely cured. I have not been troubled with them since, and am satisfied that I am PERMANENTLY cured. I think it is the best preparation for Constipation and Billious troubles known.

A. B. HOWARD,
No. 12 Quincy street, San Francisco.

I take pleasure in recommending the YERBA BUENA BITTERS. I have used three bottles and found more relief from them than anything I have ever used. I am been troubled with Constipation of the Bowels, torpid Liver and general debility for a long time, and I find no relief until the YERBA BUENA BITTERS cured me.

S. BROOKS, Petaluma.

Seeking health on the Pacific Coast, my attention was called to Dr. Warren's YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and it cured me of Headache, which cured me so perfectly that I bought a bottle and have not taken any other medicine since. It is a perfect cure for any derangement of the stomach or constipation, and I recommend it before any other medicine, as it leaves the system in a healthy state and no dieting is necessary. Please send your Bitters all over the world, for it will be a blessing to humanity beyond the power of words to express. I write you freely and from actual experience. CYRUS CUMMINGS,
Late of Charlotte, Mich.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 23.....1876.

JEWISH FESTIVALS.—The Jewish New Year (Rash Hashona) began last Monday at sun-down and continued until Wednesday evening. Among Hebrews it is considered as the anniversary of the creation of the world, and as such is observed by the more devout with great solemnity and extreme devotion. On the eve of the first day, and immediately after the Kiddush or Santification, a piece of dried apple, dipped in new honey, is eaten, with a prayer that the New Year just ushered in may, in the course of its revolvition, be found as sweet to all the senses as the fruit to the taste. On the afternoon of the New Year pious persons go the water side and perform a ceremony cabed tashlich or casting, which is done that their sins may be cast into the depths of the sea and praise given to God because the waters have been so balanced by divine wisdom that they may never more rise and overflow the earth. The year is the first day of Etanim, the seventh month of the eclesiastical year and the first month of the ancients. On this day will begin the 5,637th year from the creation, according to their calendar. The Day of Atonement (Yom Kipur) will begin at sundown on the 27th instant and end at the same time on the 28th.

ELECTION PRECINCTS.—Mr. Wood, of Darwin, at the request of parties in interest, has suggested to the Board of Supervisors the need of establishing an election precinct at Lookout District. Mr. Curtis is the only member of the Board in town this week, but we understand he is favorable to calling a special meeting for this purpose, and will ask the other members to concur. If done at all this and all other new voting precincts will have to be declared before the 5th of October; hence the need of immediate action. Lookout District contains about 140 voters, pretty much all of whom will lose their votes unless polls are opened there, it being fifteen miles to Darwin, the only existing polling place in that section. We are not sure but there are one or more existing precincts that might as well be stricken from the list without detriment to more than two or three voters, and thus save the county several dollars extra expense. It don't pay very well to maintain an election precinct where there are not enough residents to constitute an Election Board, and if we are not misinformed this is the condition of Pine Mountain and Swansea both.

THE REX MONTES.—Five different assays were made this week of ore from the second level of this mine, giving an average result of $3,400, and one going as high as $3,944. The showing of ore as regards quantity in the mine is said to be quite as flattering as the assays. We observe a large settler, also some quicksilver, just arrived at Rothschilds, which Mr. Holt, the general boss, intends to use in fitting up the old Silver Sprout mill. The Kearsarge mill is still running upon Rex Montes ore, and the first shipment is to be made to-day, but probably not in time for us to obtain the figures for this issue. As will be seen elsewhere the company has ordered an assessment of $2 per share, payable on the 11th proximo. The fund is to be applied mainly in rebuilding this mill.

INCORRIGIBLE.—An incorrigible individual was discussing the realitive merits of two well known lawyers of Independence, engaged in a case before the Justice court the other day, and explained that one of the disciples of Coke "treated the other's tirade of personal attacks with perfect nonchalance until he was called 'a corroborate' when his temper succumbed and he got terrible mad."

A RECEPTION.—County Clerk Billy Daugherty, Omai Mairs, and some more of them, thought Receiver Tom May and his bride ought to have a reception, and thereupon, late on Saturday told people something of the kind would happen at the Blaney that same evening. The result was everybody and his wife, with barely one or two exceptions, went there and had decidedly the gayest and most enjoyable time that's happened here for many a day.

APPLIES FOR SICK LEAVE. — Capt. Macgowan, Post Commandant, Camp Independence, has been on the sick report for two or three weeks. As his general health is not good, this attack decided him upon asking a four months' leave for a visit East and to recruit his health. As he asks permission to go out of the Department, he has to await the good pleasure of Gen. Sherman, or Washington Headquarters.

THE PHOTOGRAPHERS.—The Eastman Brothers are making quite a success at Big Pine, where their gallery is now established. The rush of business has prevented their coming to Independence on the day advertised, but their posters will announce the fact in due time.

NEW GOODS.—We are advised that C. & M. Cohn, Lone Pine, are in receipt of an unusually large and fine stock of Fall and Winter goods. Cash customers can depend upon getting as much for their money at their store as any other in the county.

NOT DEAD.—Elsewhere we publish an authortative denial of the story that the Benton Lodge of Good Templars is dead. We are certainly pleased to know the Lodge still lives, and we hope it ever may.

SCOOL MATTERS.—Miss Whitcomb's school at the Post closes next Friday, the 29th. On the following Monday, October 2d, she begins a six months' term in this place.

PAID OFF.—Major Nelson, Paymaster, was at the Post on his regular round this week, and now greenbacks are plentier than they were.

DISASTROUS FIRE.—Passengers by the buckboard from the north yesterday morning, report that when they reached W. G. Watson's place, six miles this side of Bishop, they found his fine house, stacks, grain in the house, stables and everything in reach in embers. This was about 1 o'clock in the morning. Watson was then standing knee deep in water, barefooted and half dressed vainly striving to save his only remaining stack of hay from destruction. There was but one other person on the place, a hired man we believe. It seems that they retired as usual a little before 10 o'clock. Shortly after lying down they heard fire crackling in an adjoining spare room. In a few minutes thereafter the flames, in spite of all the two could do, had enveloped the entire building which was a large and very good one, built for a hotel. They then endeavored to save some of the contents; after dragging out a trunk containing clothing, papers and articles of special value, they went back for other things, but by the time they got out the second time the trunk and contents were in flames and were destroyed. In short everything in and about the house, together with fences and many of the fine trees that have made the place noted, shared the same fate, Watson being left without even a pair of boots or clothing of any sort save a shirt and pair of overalls. The stables and stacks followed, but he managed to save his horses. As for the origin of the fire, it can only be surmised. Both men assert that no fire had been lighted at all in the house during the previous day or that night, except perhaps the candle in the bedroom; none at any time in the spare room where the fire caught or was first discovered. Such being the fact, it was clearly the diabolical work of some murdering incendiary. The actual value of the property destroyed will reach several thousand dollars worth; just how much we can only guess. But no matter how little or how much it was Mr. Watson's all. He is left without a dollar, a cripple and in debt. He has struggled against accidents and misfortunes for years in the hope of making a home. He had but just begun to feel an assurance of final success when this last disaster, accidental or otherwise, leaves him without a vestige of hope. He is a most worthy man. Now, as our informant suggests, and notwithstanding the pressure of the times, our citizens generally would be doing nothing more than what is fully deserving if they would each contribute a little something, enough in the aggregate at least to enable him to obtain a shelter and make another start. The party referred to, though by no means a millionaire, will head such a list with $25 cash, and do it, too, in the belief that it is a most worthy investment. Everobody knows W. G. Watson to be worthy, and we feel pretty sure that there are plenty who will loan him a helping hand. We do not know that it would be acceptable, but there is no reason why it should not as he is a cripple, by no means of great physical force, and now needs just such help.

A SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT.—The only improvement in the building line that we have to note this week is the construction of a small, joint stock stable back of the Court House. It is for the use of the Sheriff and deputies; besides being a boarding place for their regular saddle nags, it will come handy to put stolen horses in. We don't mean the ones they steal but such as they capture from professionals. The stable company is not a corporation, but is regularly officered—T. Passmore, Presiding Genius; S. Gregg, Director and Chief Currier; Dad Moore, Major Domo and Water Toter; Doc. Walker, Surgeon-Dentist, Boss of the Manure Forks and First Roustabout. Capital stock—considerable.

PERSONAL.—We received a welcome visit yesterday from W. H. Wood, Esq., of Darwin, who is here in connection with law matters, and also with the view of physical recuperation. Mr. Wood is as sanguine of a great future for Darwin as any one can be. The mining developments as depth is attained are better and better, but for the time being times are dull, since money is yet very scarce. The Defiance was expected to pay off this week, and when that is done, there will be a material livening up in business matters. Superintendent Reddy is expected in Darwin to-day or to-morrow, and here some time the coming week.

LITIGATION.—A certain six-horse and mule team, originally the property of John B. White, now of Postmaster Rowley, has been a leading feature in several suits at law in the last two weeks, the last one being against Chas. Wilson on a charge of obtaining possession of the team from the first named under false pretenses. The case was tried before Judge Snelling, J. P., on Thursday, A. R. Conklin for the prosecution, R. M. Briggs, for the defense. There being no evidence to sustain the charge the case was dismissed.

FOR BISHOP.—C. F. Stoughtenborough, who, for some months past has been clerking in Harris & Rhine's store, departs with his family in a day or two for Bishop to take a place in Sneden's establishment at that place. Charles can do the agreeable behind a counter as well as adybody, and he and Mrs. Mrs. S. leave many friends to regret their departure.

MILLS FOR LOOKOUT.—We hear that R. C. Jacobs is preparing to remove his five-stamp mill from the Sunrise mine, Panamint, to Lookout district; also, that the Minneatta Belle company are getting in a small mill. This mine is said to be turning out grandly.

MARRIED.—Judge Hanson was married last week to Mrs. Henry, and, having sold out his Darwin town property, proposes to remove to Arizona, near Tucson, we believe.

WENT SOMEWHERE.—It being such an unusual event for County Treasurer Isaacs to go anywhere, we will mention that he, accompanied by Mrs. I., ventured away off to Bishop this week, and had a pleasant time.

That Kearsarge Ghost.

AURORA, Nev., Sept. 17.

MESSRS. EDITORS—My attention has been called to a sensational item in your paper of recent date, wherein reference is made to the sad death of Mrs. C. W. Mills at Kearsarge some ten years ago, coupled with a story to the effect that the spirit of this unfortunate lady has been visiting miners' cabins recently and causing consternation throughout the fastnesses of the Kearsarge Mountains.

This story like most of the seven-day wonders of its kind probably originated in the brain of some over-imaginative person who thought no doubt that he was contributing largely to the pleasure of your readers by detailing the supposititious facts to your reporter. While I doubt, Mr. Editor, if the reading of such stories often affords rational enjoyment to intelligent persons, I have no doubt that their publication generally results in a moral if not an intellectual injury to the public. But granting that lovers of the marvellous derive pleasure from reading such fictions with all their assumed particularity of names, dates and places, I would inquire if such persons ever reflect upon the pain that is inflicted upon the sensitive surviving relatives of the reputed ghost by the publication of such pretended acts as no refined spirit would ever be guilty of committing while in the flesh? The case of Mrs. Mills is exactly in point. She was well known in this community, and was highly esteemed by all who knew her as a lady of refinement, pure in character, modest in behavior and possessing an unusually felicitous and inoffensive disposition. That the publication of a story to the effect that her spirit is now engaged in the questionable occupation of visiting miners' cabins and disturbing the good people of Kearsarge (what she never did while living) should deeply wound the sensibilities of her husband (who still resides here) and her numerous friends is quite natural, yet I doubt, Mr. Editor, if a dozen of your numerous readers ever thought of this phase of the question while reading the item referred to.

In conclusion I feel that I am not saying too much even to a journalist when I suggest that by making all future references to "the Kearsarge ghost" strictly impersonal the public will not be robbed of any pleasure and the husband and numerous friends of the late Mrs. Mills will be spared much pain. Yours, truly,

D. MURRER.

The foregoing sets forth several facts we very cordially indorse, notwithstanding we accept the responsibility of having made public the ghost story referred to. We should acknowledge ourselves fools of the first water did we entertain a shadow of belief in the existence of disembodied spirits or ghosts of any sort. But while making that statement it often times happens that peculiar circumstances attending these foolish stories give them sufficient interest to bear repetition, and it was in that view that the circumstances attending the fearful death of the lady in question were mentioned. Nothing could have been further from the design than to have in the remotest manner cast the slightest reflection upon her memory, even to the extent that her spirit while wandering about the cabins of living men was doing something in the least equivocal, or that such an idea could possibly be connected with a disembodied spirit. But since an overwrought imagination had given shape to a ghost, and that of a woman, what more natural than in some way to associate it with the lady whose fearful death, though by an avalanche and not by the hand of man, was the only one of her sex that ever occurred in that rugged cañon? Her death was an event of long ago; so long that even the name of the unfortunate lady whose young life was so ruthlessly crushed out was forgotten by all but a few, while the event itself was something never heard of by many of our own readers. That the imaginative ghost seer did revert to that event as in some way connected with the latter story is given as a fact, but the ghost story itself was given in these columns not for its own purely sensational interest, but to recall to mind and re-record one of the most melancholly incidents of our local history, which at the same time was of more than usual interest because it related to a lady, and one always spoken of in terms of the highest respect by all who knew her. We gave the account of the alleged apparition and gave it as much indorsement as we have of similar stories believed in by Indians—both too absurd to be worthy of a thought as matters of fact.

LOCAL TELEGRAPH.—As related some time since, it will be remembered that we sent for and obtained two first class telegraph instruments, with Daniell batteries and all the paraphernalia necessary for two offices. It is now proposed by a little joint stock company to run a line from THE INDEPENDENT office to Camp Inuependence—a distance of about two and one-half miles. One of the benefits of this little local line will be the convenience of summoning medical aid. In case of severe sickness Dr. Matthews can be telegraphed at the Post, thus avoiding dangerous delays. Mr. Eibeshutz, of the firm of Rothschild & Co., of whom the wire is obtained at about cost price, has contributed $10 toward the stock as a shareholder. A few more subscriptions of this kind would insure the complete success of the undertaking.

NEW STORE.—M. Gurman, late of San Francisco, has fitted up the old Headquarters saloon building for a general merchandising business, and will open for trade to-day.

THE Grass Valley Foothill Tidings declares the Fryer process a failure.

Country Jake Corrected.

BENTON, Cal., September 20.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Please allow me a little space in your valuable paper in which to correct a slight error committed by Rural Jacob in his letter of the 9th instant, in reference to the of this place. Your correspondent (though in a joking way), intimated that the order at Benton had "run its race," or had died and been quietly buried without a tear of regret. But I can assure the good readers of THE INDEPENDENT that such is not the case. Although our ranks were somewhat thinned by a few backsliders, yet we still live—thanks to the more substantial portion of our order.

Yours,

R. M. L., W. C. T.

COSO CONSOLIDATED.—The dissatisfied stockholders of the Coso Consolidated Mining Company held their third meeting last evening. The Committee appointed at the last meeting to wait on the present management and request their resignation, asked further time to report. One of the Committee stated that since the last meeting he had seen Hollahan, the former Superintendent of the mine, who stated that he had been suddenly called from his field of labors by death in his family, and that he had been unable to make as clear a statement as he wished. If he had had time to make a settlement of account everything would have been straight. The Committee reported that Hollahan was not so much to blame as had been supposed, but that the onus of the trouble should rest on other parties. They also stated that they would be able to make a final report early next week. The Secretary stated that 1,000 shares of stock had come in since the last meeting, and that 47,265 shares were now represented.—S. F. Chronicle, Sept. 15.

FROGGY.—Reading, Pennsylvania, boasts a bacchanalian bullfrog thirteen inches long, capable of leaping six feet. It has for two years frequented a restaurant where it was brought to be broiled. It has developed a taste for beer, drinking the waste that drops from the spigot into a pot on the floor. It often leans over the pot with its mouth in the beer. When the pot is not very full it jumps into the beer and remains there awhile.

THE Oregon Legislature ballotted for Senator on the 19th. Some Democrats are standing out against Grover, the caucus nominee, and it is possible that a combination will be effected that will beat him.

PURSUIT of the Northfield, Minnesota, gang of bank robbers and murderers has been abandoned. A subscription fund has been started for the benefit of the family of the murdered cashier.

OFFICIAL returns of the Maine election, with the exception of one town and six plantations, place the Republican majority in the State at 15,450.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:
SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 23.....1876.

OUR WILLIE.

[PUBLISHED BY REQUEST.]

Inscribed to the memory of Willie H. Hollenbeck, who was drowned June 27th, 1872.

A new made grave in the churchyard,
Where the fitful shadows fall
From the wind-stirred leaves of the maple,
Upon that grave so small.

So small—and yet a treasure it hideth,
That nothing can ever replace,
And verily our fond hearts are longing,
For a sight of that dear little face.

That face, with its smile like sunlight,
Ever beaming with childish joy,
Ah! on earth I shall never more see you,
My darling, my bright eyed boy.

The sweet voice is hushed, the bright eyes grown dim,
The loving heart pulseless and still,
How sweetly he sleeps, in his boyish grace,
In that little, lone grave on the hill

Though fast the sad tear drops will flow;
Forever most sacred these trifles will be,
For marks of his fingers they show.

We thought with the strength of our love to have kept,
And shielded him our loved one alway,
But our weakness beholding, He came,
And with gentle hands led him away.

Now by the still waters, and through pastures green,
Led ever by infinite love,
The lesson of life just begun here below,
Is in wisdom completed above.

But Willie, with angelic influence sweet,
Ever warns us from evil to flee,
And as we pass onward, may thy little hand,

—Gertrude Lee.

NEW PATENTS.—Through Dewey & Co., Patent Agents, San Francisco, we receive the following advance list of U. S. patents, granted to Pacific coast inventors, viz: Joseph Britton, S. F., turn-tables for endless traction ways; Timothy Carroll, Anaheim, Cal., tree transplanters; George O. Leonard, Red Bluff, Cal., methods of setting hair triggers of rifles, etc.; Frank J. Symmes, S. F., protectors for chandeliers; Thirsy L. Wadsworth, Sacramento, Cal., (executrix of Wadsworth, deceased) machines for compacting loose granular sugar into cubes; John Winterburn, Cambria, Cal., ore roasting furnaces.

A POOR man who had a large family, broke his leg, and, as he would be for some time unable to go to church, it was proposed to hold a prayer meeting at his house. The meeting was led by Deacon Brown. A loud knock at the door interrupted the service. A tall, lank, blue-frocked youngster stood at the door with an ox goad in his hand, and asked to see Deacon Brown. "Father could not attend this meeting," he said, "but he sent his prayers, and they are out in the cart." They were brought in, in the shape of potatoes, beef, pork, and corn.

MRS. STAEGER, the wife of a German laborer of Honesdale, Pa., went blackberrying in the mountains recently, and after picking a ten-quart pail of berries was taken sick. Two miles from home, alone in the mountains, she gave birth to a child. She arrived home in the middle of the afternoon with her pail of berries on her arm and her child wrapped up in her apron. The baby is a lusty ten-pounder, and Mrs. Staeger has not lost a day since its birth.

COMMENTING on the almost certain renomination of Alexander H. Stevens for Congress, General Toombs says the people of his district will "keep on voting for Stevens until he dies, and they will then support what ever executor he names in his will."

A DISPATCH, dated London, September 10, says: There was a mass meeting at Dublin yesterday to protest against the Bulgarian atrocities. One of the parading bands carried an American flag.

TOM ALLEN publishes a card in the Cincinnati evening papers, claiming that it is impossible to obtain fair play in this country, and announces his withdrawal from the ring.

THE youngest couple known once resided in New York State. The tombstone says: "They were born, and they died and were buried on the same day."

No fees for making preliminary examinations. No additional fees for obtaining and conducting a rehearing. By a recent decision of the Commissioner all rejected applications may be revived. Special attention given to Interference Cases before the Patent Office, Extensions before Congress, Infringement Suits in different States, and all litigation appertaining to Inventions or Patents. Send stamp to Gilmore & Co., for pamphlet of sixty pages.

Land Cases, Land Warrants, and Scrip.

Contested Land Cases prosecuted before the U. S. General Land Office and Department of the Interior. Private Land Claims, Mining and Preemption Claims, and Homestead Cases attended to. Land Scrip in 40, 80, and 160 acre pieces for sale. This Scrip is assignable, and can be located in the name of purchaser upon any Government land subject to private entry, at $1 25 per acre. It is of equal value with Bounty Land Warrants. Send stamp to Gilmore & Co., for pamphlet of instruction.

Arrears of Pay and Bounty.

Officers, Soldiers and Sailors of the late war, or their heirs, are in many cases, entitled to money from the Government of which they have no knowledge. Write full history of service, and state amount of pay and bounty received. Enclose stamp to Gilmore & Co., and a full reply, after examination, will be given you free.

Pensions.

All Officers, Soldiers, and Sailors wounded, ruptured, or injured in the late war, however slightly, can obtain a pension by addressing Gilmore & Co.

Cases prosecuted by Gilmore & Co., before the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Claims, and the Southern Claims Commission.

Each department of our business is conducted in a separate bureau, under charge of the same experienced parties employed by the old firm. Prompt attention to all business entrusted to Gilmore & Co. is thus secured. We desire to win success by deserving it.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 14.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Yesterday Senators Spencer, of Alabama, and Whyte, of Maryland, and Representatives Hunton, of Virginia; and Clymer, of Pensylvania, were among the arrivals at the Arlington. These gentlemen form a majority of the joint select committee appointed by their respective Houses to sit during the recess and frame a form of government for the District of Columbia. It is thought that the committee will meet and organize by the election of a Chairman, and appointment of a Secretary (for which position there are a dozen applicants), and then each member would have a certain branch of the subject of the District government alloted to him to inquire into and report upon at an adjourned meeting to be held in November. It is some years since the people here have been troubled with an election of any kind and judging from the tone of some of the gentlemen forming the committee, it is not likely that they shortly will be. Mr. Clymer upon being approached upon the subject, said: I will tell you one the thing, we are not in my opinion going to recommend a frame of government based upon the elective franchise, because Senators own too much property here to try. It is true we don't have any nice little election riots or bloody fights like we used to, and as some cities do still; but after all, though nine-tenths of people don't know who governs us or how we are governed; still this is a pretty good place to live in, at any rate Gen. Grant thinks so and he ought to be good authority. He was interviewed at Long Branch the other day by one of those timid and bashful reporters of the New York Herald. The General declared his intention of visiting Europe at the close of his Presidential term, and indicated that on his return he should probably settle down in Washington. To the inquiry whether in his experience living in Washington is not at least equally expensive as living in New York? He replied: "Oh, no, I could live in Washington for what I should have to pay in rent for a first rate house in a desirable locality in New York. In Washington the chief item of expense is entertaining and this a man can limit according to his means and inclinations. I suppose I shall settle in Washington; I feel at home there and more identified with it than any other city."

The trial of Babcock for complicity in the safe burglary case with Harrington and others has been set peremptorily for Tuesday, the 19th instant. Wells, the U. S. Attorney for the District, seems not to be ready and is using his best efforts to have the trial postponed, but Babcock's counsel is urging it and it will probably be tried. The result will be an acquittal, no matter what the evidence may be; the sympathetic sanctioning Uriah Heapish farces of this place never convict where the accused has money or high official position. The farcial thing called a trial of such persons has repeatedly within the last few years by their results warranted the above prophetic assertion.

A special dispatch to the Pioneer Press, at St. Paul, from Bismarck under date September 12th says: Advices just received from the Standing Rock Agency indicate considerable trouble. A chief named John Gross was arrested for carrying supplies to the hostile camp; this arrest created a strong feeling between the Indians and military. The courier who brings this news reports that before he had crossed the river opposite Standing Rock he heard the "long roll" beat, and the bugle sound to horse and saw soldiers running towards headquarters. The truth is the Indians are not at all satisfied with the propositions made by the Commissioners and do not intend to give up the Black Hills, peaceably; they may come into the Agencies and remain during the Winter but in the Spring will take to the war path again. I don't know what other people may think of this matter but to me it looks like a high handed outrage perpetrated by a powerful nation against a weak people to satisfy the greed for gold manifested by the worst element of civilization. These men who have gone to the Black Hills in defiance of all law and by so doing have precipitated this state of things upon us are in reality no better than the Indians and of no more value to society. If they chose to take the risk of going to get the gold in the Black Hills it was a question between them and the Indians, and the Government was not called upon to espouse their quarrel or avenge their death at the hands of the Indians, whose property they were in effect stealing.

It seem to be a fact, that Tweed is really arrested and will soon be sent here by the way of Havana.

SAXON.

The South.

[From the N. Y. Tribune.]

Mr. Nordhoff's papers was on "The Industrial and Social condition of the South." The States of which he spoke contained according to the last census, 2,945;866 of white and 2,342,882 of colored people. These colored people, were, it will be remembered, when set free, absolutely without property. In 1865 they owned nothing but the rags they stood in. The experiment of setting free 4,000,000 slaves without making any provision whatever for their subsistence, without giving them houses to live or land to cultivate, is, I believe, unprecendented in the history in civilized society. When he saw these freed people they had had their liberty ten years. Only in Georgia, which State has been under the Democratic rule since 1871, had the Government taken pains to obtain statistics. Georgia has about 80,000 colored voters. The freedmen of Georgia, according to the returns made to the State government in 1874, owned at that time 338,769 acres of farming real estate, $1,200,115 worth of city and town real estate, and paid taxes to the valuation of $6,157,798. So far as ascertained from diligent inquiry the negroes of Georgia own more real estate per head than those of any other of the States. This is probably to be accounted for by the fact that they had not engaged so incessantly or to so great an extent in political agitations in that State as in others; did not therefore waste as much time nor fall into such habits of unthrift. They generally prefer to buy uncleared land and clear it for themselves. They have a great propensity to own small lots of from half an acre to two acres in the vicinity of towns and villages, and when we hear in the North that the planters do not want to sell land to the negroes, it has reference to such cases as this. It is found that to sell small plots to colored people in the neighborhood of a plantation is a deterioration of the remainder of the property.

In the cotton country the land owner or planter lets his land at from $3 to $10 an acre per annum to the negro; or more frequently makes a contract with him by which he furnishes houses, fencing, the use of the gin, tools, and animals, and receives a specified share of the crop. In this arrangement, which is excellent and suited to both parties, the negro tenant, or renter as he is called, will have in a good year, over and above his year's expenses, at the close of the season, cotton to the value of from $100 to $250, and in some cases even as high as $350 to $400. This is actual surplus from the year's labor. With that he can do what he pleases. Sometimes he stores it up in a shed and regards as his bank account, on which he draws as his necessities or wants impel him; oftener he carts it into the nearest town, taking with him his wife and children, and spends it all or nearly all there and then on dress for them, clothing for himself, a gun, saddle, a horse, or what to him are articles of luxury generally.

He has had one terrible warning against saving money in the loss suffered by thousands of negroes by the fraudulent mismanagement of the Freedman's Bank. In every Southern State you may find colored families who lost money in this bank, and that cruel fraud was a serious discouragement to thrift among the whole colored population of the South. It is remarkable that almost universally the relations between the planter and his renters or hired employés are kindly and agreeable. The colored men seek the planter's advice in all the relations of his life, deposits his spare cash with him, and in fact deals with him as his friend up to the point where politics come in, and there he shoots over to other side without a moments hesitation. He will in general vote for a Republican, or man calling himself a Republican, whom he knows to be a scoundrel, if such a case came to him, rather than vote for the planter whose land he has cultivated for five years, and who has treated him in every respect fairly and kindly.

Southern planters have an immense advantage in possessing this great body of laborers to till their soil. Wherever in the South the negro is honestly and fairly dealt with, he gives entire satisfaction to his employers, and this was said to me by employers everywhere. Moreover they are fairly dealt with in the great mass of cases. The instances where the negros renting land are wronged or cheated are very few and become less every year. One reason for this is that the negro's labor is in demand.

The substitution of free for slave labor has produced many important changes in the Southern States. In the first place, it has caused an astonishing growth of towns and villages and increase in their number. Moreover, labor saving contrivances are more used than ever before. In the Louisiana sugar country, for instance, it begins to be found profitable to own a sugar mill and grind the cane raised by small farmers, and thus one great difficulty which has always attended this industry—in which the planter was also the manufacturer—is gradually disappearin. One thing the negro has learned thoroughly, and that is, that he has the right of migration. This seems a matter of importance. In the North if a man, for any reason, is uncomfortable where he lives, or is not doing well, or does not like the people by whom he is surrounded, he removes. It was a great gratification to find that the Southern negro does precisely the same thing. They go west as our Eastern farmers go west—to better themselves. The fact that they go from North Carolina, Alabama and Georgia to Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas, in which States it was so long said that the negro's life was not safe, shows that a good deal of the cry of Southern outrage must be pure invention. The negro does not remove wildly or blindly.

It ought to be noticed that the only turmoil or trouble in the South is political. How little it really affects industry is seen from the crops actually produced and sold; and the Southern States are more prosperous at this time than the Northern. There are fewer persons there unemployed, the average earnings of the laboring classes are larger, the surplus produced in those States over and above what is necessarily expended by the population in living has been greater for several years than an equally numerous Northern population. What is needed in such States as Louisiana or Mississippi to produce the necessary peace and settled condition of things is mainly a reform in the civil service. The men who have misruled down there, who have succeeded in banding the colored voters together, and thus in massing upon one side ignorance, unthrift, and political superstition, have been for the most part Federal office-holders. It is not only the higher officers, such as United States marshals and the postmasters of the larger cities, who thus interfere in the local politics of these States. Every paid Federal office holder, if he is only a Deputy United States Marshal's deputy, is a politician. The power of the Federal Government in the South is something which we do not realize here in the North at all. Nobody pretends to resist a United States official, no matter how low the grade of that officer may be. A Deputy United States Marshal could go into a Southern town today and drag the most prominent citizen of the town out of his bed into the street and through the streets, and if it were known that he was a Federal officer nobody would pretend to resist him. This great authority has been shamelessly misused throughout the South by a set of political gamblers, who call themselves Republicans, and most of whom would more properly have been called robbers. If this class of unscrupulous political gamblers were swept away, if in their places were appointed men who would do their duty faithfully and refrain from mixing themselves in the local politics, the affairs of these States would arrange themselves without further trouble.

PICKLES.—Sharp things, aren't they?—but children usually like them, I know. Now, how do you suppose they got their funny name? It's very queer, but I'll tell you how I found out. A droll looking old fellow, one of those who are always digging out things—from books, I mean—sat down with a young lad in my woods the other day for a good long talk. I tell you I kept my ears open to catch any scrap of wisdom he might let fall; for since I've had such a big circle of listeners, I have to be on the watch, and I know those quiet looking chaps, with rusty coats and spectacles, know a great deal. Well, I heard him tell the lad that the first man who salted and preserved herrings, so as to keep them nicely, was named Beukelzoon (Dutch, of course, as anybody can see). This name was shortened to Beukel (sensibly, I'm sure). Now, you ask some Dutchman to pronounce that name, and see how much it sounds like pickle. Anyway, that's where the word came from, so the wise man said.—"Jack-in-the-Pulpit," St. Nicholas for October.

SEX IN POULTRY.—Something over a year ago I happened to see the following in some of the agricultural papers: One of your correspondents revives the old question about sex of eggs; I send my experience. Last Winter an old country poultry keeper told me he could distinguish the sex in eggs; I laughed at him and was none the less skeptical when he told me the following secret: "Eggs, with the air bladder on the crown of the egg will produce cockerels, those with the air bladder on the side will produce pullets." The old man was so certain of the truth of the dogma, and his poultry yard so far confirmed it, that I determined to make experiments on it this year. I have done so, carefully registering every "bladder vertical," or "bladder on the side," rejecting every one in which it was not decidedly one or the other, as in some it is very slightly out of center.

DURING the recent "occulation" of Saturn by the moon, or, in other words, when the moon passed between Saturn and the earth, several astronomers, who were watching the phenomenon with particularly strong telescopes, say they distinctly heard the people of Saturn yelling, "oh, down in front!" to the man in the moon.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 30.....1876.

ST. NIBHOLAS FOR OCTOBER.—This number concludes the third volume of this most admirable magazine with a very interesting array of contributions. Among the first is an article by Prof. Richard A. Proctor, entitled "The Morning and Evening Star." It is an admirable paper, explaining simply and clearly the various changes and conditions of the planet of Venus, so far as known. Mrs. Oliphant's series on "Windsor Castle" is concluded in the present number with a paper on "Queen Victoria." It is illustrated with several fine pictures, and a large and beautiful engraving of "Princess Victoria" forms the frontispiece of the number. Mrs. Dodge furnishes the "Talk with Girls," H. H. has an illustrated article on "A Colorado Woman's Museum;" Mr. Brooks' serial story of "The Boy Emigrants" ends in a very happy and entertaining manner; and among other good things of the number are a Revolutionary story of "How the Scotch-cap Family saved its Bacon," with two good pictures by Sol Eytinge; a story of Italian life by Susan Coolidge; a little poem by M. M. D., called "Out of the Sky," and a funny jingle, "The Cat and Dog," exquisitely illustrated by Addie Ledyard. The "Centennial" is recognized in Dick Hardin's comic and inimitable "boy-letters;" in the poem of "The Legend on the Pane;" and in an article on "How General Washington got his Clothes"—which brings us to the always interesting departments, Jack-in-the-Pulpit, the Letter-Box and Riddle-Box.

THE METRIC SYSTEM.—The Hon. James Yates (an Englishman), after protracted inquiry and investigations in the schools and among those best able to judge of the matter, reported that the complete adoption of the decimal in place of the present English weights and measures would save two full years in the school life of every child educated. In our country the saving would be something less, because of our adoption of the decimal currency; but the most conservative teachers acknowledge that something like this amount of time would be saved each child if our present confusion of measures were entirely replaced by the International or Metric System. Regardless of the much greater commercial and international claims of the new system, it is certainly one of the most prominent educational questions now before the people, and there was ample room for the association recently incorporated in Boston as the American Metric Bureau.

THE QUESTION.—What we want to know about this tetralogy, Wagner's art work, says the Burlington Hawkeye, is if the Walkure who bears such a prominent part where the Nibelungen gets the Tarnheim on the Gotterdammening and Brunnhilde kills the Duke, when Wotan discovers that Siegfried, if we catch the rat, is the uncle of Sieglinds, the man who played it on Hunding by swallowing the Faffner of Walnalla while Alberick held his head, and Fricka wattles the Mine with the sword of Nothung. All this we can understand perfectly well, but what we want to know is if this Walkure is Weston the Walkure?

TEXAS, the largest State in the Union, is agitating the question of splitting into two or more sovereignities. The northern part of the State would like to set itself up as independent of the other sections, while the people west of the Colorado believe it to be to their interest to separate. It was recently formally proclaimed in a Congressional Convention that the whole machinery of the State is wielded in the interest of those parts where numerical strength preponderates, and it is resolved that concerted action must be taken to secure justice.

IT is stated that the Great Powers have come to an agreement regarding the conditions of peace between Turkey and her rebellious subjects. The programme drawn up by the British Cabinet will form the basis of the proposals.

THE commission appointed by Congress to determine the relative value of gold and silver has made but little progress, owing to the difficulty of finding specialists who are qualified to give opinions.

THE Salt Lake Tribune says that the September hullion product of the smelters and mills of Utah promises to be the largest ever turned out since the discovery of precious metals in the Territory.

A FLOOD in Forest county, Pennsylvania, on the 21st, caused the loss of twenty-five or thirty lives.

THE METRIC SYSTEM.

There are but few, very few grown people in the common walks of life who would not feel dismayed at the necessity of making themselves so familiar with the metric system of weights and measures as to use it exclusively in all matters of measurements in every day affairs. To us and all such who have given the proposed system but casual attention it looks like a formidable undertaking, this thing of trying to familiarize ourselves with the interminable string of utterly unfamiliar terms by which everything of weight, capacity, etc., is metrically designated.

There was a cucumber raised in this vicinity that was rather remarkable for length. We don't remember its exact length, but we gave it as being so many feet and inches, no matter what. All who noticed the item in these columns had a very clear conception of just how long that particular vegetable was represented to be; we say "represented" in deference to that large and intelligent class who think newspapers will now and then elongate facts something as that cucumber was elongated more than the common American cholera-morbus generator. Well, suppose we had understated the fact a full foot and given the length thus: "it measured just one metre, six decimetres, five centimetres and nine millimetres long," how many of said large and intelligent class, at the first glance, and even after making an actual measurement of the vegetable, could tell whether we had under or overstated the fact, supposing further that it measured even four feet in reality? There are some who, in their present knowledge of metrics, would think from the array of measures given that we tried to insinuate that the cucumber was no less than a rod long or thereabouts.

But whatever we may think of it now those who read THE INDEPENDENT ten or fifteen years hence will find the length of all such cucumbers and other things given in just such terms. Of course the young man who runs it then will be good enough, when he wants to convey an accurate conception of the real facts to the old folks, to interpret his allegations into inches, feet, yards, or units of some other of our present measures. But the way things are tending he will conclude it uncalled for to continue the practice for more than a few years at the most. Thenceforth the metre will be the universal unit in matters of lengths. Then if a man's nose is stated to be say 50 millimetres long it would convey, to most people, but a vague sort of an idea of its true dimensions; many will conclude without investigating the matter that either the paper was lying as usual else the man had a most extraordinary snout—something like an elephant's or Boss Tweed's. True, most of our present readers who live to worry through this article and on to read others at that time, will then very readily approximate something near the true length of that nose, but it will only be after reducing the nose to inches, which alone from force of life-long habits, can give a true conception of the facts. Western riflemen, who always measure rifle distances in yards, will understand the metric nose difficulty by remembering the mental calculations they generally had to resort to in trying to realize the exact distance meant when the average Eastern man told of the number of rods the deer or what not was distant when he fired. The Western man most invariably reduces the rods to yards before he makes up his mind in regard to the matter, while the Eastern man reverses the process. Well, that is pretty much what all of our present grown population will have to do from and after the time, which is not far distant, when the new system begins to generally displace the old one. In the matter of the nose problem children now beginning their education will take in the true situatioe at the first glance, and without other reference than the terms given; but not so with many of us of this generation. While we can clearly see that the metric system is the very acme of mathematical accuracy, and as in the instance of the nose, will easily draw things down to the finest possible point, yet we can never hope to more than approximate true values metrically given, since we are bound to have to fall back on old traditions in which we can rarely find exact equivalents except by laborious process. Now, as regards the nose: We can easily resolve it into inches by remembering that it takes but a little more than 25 millimetres to equal one of our traditional inches. Nine of us at least out of ten would be satisfied with the result thus approximated, making no count of the decimal in eight places giving the exact equivalent of the inch in millionths of a millimetre. We would all be free to admit that an inch more or less in the length of the man's nose would make a material difference in his appearance, and with that knowledge would take pains to account for the inch down to its smallest fraction and fully appreciate the result thus figured down. But even the man himself would not bother himself to prove that instead of his nose being full two inches long as deduced after ignoring the decimals it was really .39954113 of the 25th part of an inch less than two inches. That is just what it would be, but the fact wouldn't benefit him at all in the eyes of the present generation which can find no equivalent in the old standards, on which they must depend, for the metrical decimals. On this account he would be certain to go down to his grave discredited with .39954113 millimetre's worth of nose more than he really possessed; but the rising generation would be able to do him precise justice because as the world is moving they will not have to fall back on the old standard to obtain values by the new.

We mention these things merely to illustrate some of the inaccuracies the adoption of this most accurate of all systems is sure to impose on this set-in-its-way generation. Spite of ourselves we will put up too often with mere approximates. If the metre for instance was as a whole or any even part an exact equivalent to a foot or yard or any even division of either, it would give us a tangible base from which to work out exact results. But as there is no such equivalents between the two systems the metre as the unit of the system will too often be taken as the equivalent for the yard measure, which reduced to feet, must ever by most of us be our resort to obtain a realizing sense of the true distance metrically stated. As long as that plan is reverted to results will be anything but accurate. A metre being 3 inches and .37079 of an inch more than a yard the decimal if not the full inches will be left entirely out of all ordinary calculations; and the same will be true of all the other denominations through, every one of them being similarly afflicted with decimals to give values in our old system.

But it don't matter whether we take to it kindly or not, it is one of the inevitasles that even this generation will have to accept it, or grope in the dark in relation to many matters of scientific if of not everyday interest. The metric system is to science as the telegraphic alphabet is to all tongues—universal to, and understood by all, and being adopted for such as well as common purposes by nearly all. In view of the inevitable, and remembering that by a law of Congress all accounts, instruments of conveyance, etc., may now be legally presented and maintained in metric language and measures, it behooves all classes to begin to familiarize themselves with it as fast as may be. And we would particularly recommend that all school teachers begin this work in their schools. With such an object in view we shall as occasions warrant devote some space to the introduction of the system for the benefit of the rising generation if not that which has risen and is going down.

A SUCCESS.—Hell Gate was successfully blown up last Sunday—a day generally devoted to efforts at closing rather than opening that particular gate. The explosion took place at 3 in the afternoon. It was feared by some that the tons of dynamite and other explosives would produce a number one earthquake. There was a dull thud, a tremor of the earth, a spirt of water and small rocks in the air, and no gate of a time after all. But it was the greatest engineering feat of the kind ever successfully undertaken. Gen. Newton, the engineer, is accorded great praise.

THERE was a State Educational Convention held in San Francisco last week, out of which we hope some much needed reforms will grow, particularly in the matter and manner of teachers' examinations. An illiterate Chinaman might well be ashamed of having originated the absurdities embraced in the series of questions used in those examinations. The proceedings are worth the space, but we will have to forego further remark this week.

LAST week Bosqui, charged with murder, and Vere and Packwood, horse thieves, effected their escape from the Eureka county (Cal.) jail. A reward is offered for their apprehension.

THE SEASON IN THE NORTHWEST.

The Eastern exchanges have drawn it rather mild in their reports this year, in regard to the ravages of the grasshoppers and also the chinch bugs—a plague dreaded nearly as much and even more disastrous in certain localities than the hoppers. From a private letter to THE INDEPENDENT written by an extensive grain dealer, whose business necessitates a thorough knowledge of three or four States, we learn that the grasshoppers are still gathering in large numbers in Dakota, Nebraska and Iowa. There was an unbroken line of the pests reaching from Creston, Iowa, to Hastings, Nebraska, a distance of 250 miles east and west, and the belt was from 50 to 75 miles in width. They did a vast amount of damage, but did not destroy more than one-forth to one-third of the corn crop as it was so far matured in most localities they could only trim the leaves and eat off the ends of the ears; late and unripe corn of course suffered very materially. Garden productions, vegetables, etc., were cleaned out completely. Throughout the northern part of Illinois the chinch bugs played sad havoc with the wheat crop, and that with the continued wet weather, has nearly demoralized the farmers. In that State it has been raining at intervals of every few days during the month of August, and for two weeks preceding September 13 it rained almost incessantly, doing considerable damage over a large territory; wagon roads are almost impassable and a mantle of mud and slush is the edifying sight that greets the traveler through village streets and country highways. Considerable damage, also, was experienced by the railways; the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad in Iowa, and the Hamilton and St. Jo Railroad in Missouri, were inconvenienced the most, but the breaks caused no serious delays. The State of Illinois is taking its place among its older relatives and can no longer be classed a new State, or a home for the irrepressible who are advised to "go west;" its rich lands are gradually succumbing to the cultivator that eternally drags in the same direction, putting in the same old crop year after year until it is no wonder its vitality is fast becoming exhausted. Unless the European system is adopted by Illinois and her neighbors, in reclaiming the exhausted soil—even where expensive fertilizers are resorted to—we confidentally predict that the people of that once favored territory, will, in a few years, have to rely on the Pacific States for a No. 1 article of wheat or surperb family flour.

Hogs and corn—corn and hogs thrive and grow, and grow and thrive on every hand till the hoggish nature of the inhabitants seems to pretty generally predominate It is extremely doubtful if a careful sampling this year of the vast stores of wheat overhauled and refined as it were, in the warehouses of Chicago could furnish more than ten per cent. of No. 1 wheat. Of course it is very likely that a larger percentage is shipped east after the systematic treatment the grain receives in the hands of the middle men of the west.

THE STATE TAX FIXED.—The State Board of Equalization has fixed the tax for this year at 73½ cents on $100, divided as follows: General Fund, 43 9-10 cents; School Fund, 23 2-5 cents; Interest and Sinking Fund, 6 1-5 cents. The total valuation of taxable property is $594,620,331. Last year it was 60 9-10, and the year before 75 cents.

BISHOP WHIPPLE illustrates the cost of the Indian war rather strikingly. He recently remarked to a correspondent of the Omaha Herald that if ten soldiers were placed in a line with an Indian at one end, and the American people could be brought to understand that in order to secure the scalp of that one Indian it would require the sacrifice of the ten soldiers and the expenditure of $500,000 in money, they might be led to inquire whether the scalp was really worth the outlay.

A Texas Duel.

George Rector and Spencer Orand, who returned Sunday from Kimball, Bosque county, give the following particulars of a terrible duel which took place Friday morning on the bank of the Brazos river, opposite the town mentioned. A party composed of Ed. Brown, Walter Turner and ——Thompson, from Kauffman county, had been in that locality for several days with race-horses. On Thursday last Frank and Lacy Robinson, Taylor Campbell and Wiley Norman, all of Hill county, went to the camp of the Kauffman-county men and got into a dispute with them about a pony race, which resulted in a fist fight. The parties agreed to meet the next day and settle the thing in a more satisfactory manner. So, at 10 o'clock on Friday morning, the Hill-county men took a stand at the place agreed upon, in readiness for action. They had not waited long when the other party rode toward them. The men were all armed with six-shooters except Turner, who carried a needle carbine. When the parties had approached within twenty yards of each other Taylor Campbell fired at Turner, and the battle commenced. Turner leaped from his horse and fired three shots from his terrible carbine. The first shot went crashing through Campbell's brain, the second caused the death of Frank Robinson, and the last shot mortally wounded Lacy Robinson. By this time a ball from Thompson's revolver had passed through poor Norman's breast, a boy aged 17 years, and all of the Hill-county men lay weltering in their blood. Some twenty shots were fired altogether. More than half the shots were fired by the Hill-county party, but strange to say none of the Kauffman-county men were hurt in the least. Campbell and Frank Robinson each fired five shots; Norman and Lacy Robinson also fired, but the only damage they did was to kill Turner's horse. The surviving party mounted their horses and fled the country. A hundred men started in pursuit. Both the Robinsons leave families. Campbell and Norman are unmarried. The Kauffman-county party are all boys, none of them being more than nineteen or twenty years of age.—Waco Examiner, September 11.

A CURIOUS discovery has been made in the convent of Santa Maria la Nouva at Rome, which formerly belonged to the San Franciscan Monks. It consists in three underground cells, accessible only through a hidden trap-door, and where monks guilty of grave offenses were probably put. In the first there is a little light, through an opening in the wall; the second is narrower and darker; the third is without a ray of light, and is a dismal hole. Sinister and mostly obliterated inscriptions cover the walls and numerous instruments of torture, as well as human bones, were found.

EDITORS INYO INDEPENDENT—Having just begun business in this section, and while identifying ourselves with the community we desire, through your valuable columns, to offer a few words in refutation of a foul slander that has been whispered about us. This is to the effect that for the purposes of gain, and to defraud an Insurance Campany, we fired our property. Now, we hereby offer FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS to any individual who will show that we have been burned out at any time or place in California. And we further state that while we have been in business in California but a short time, we have previously carried on various kinds of business in the city of New York, and that we have not burned any property there or elsewhere whatsoever. Our last place of business in this State being in Butte county, we beg leave to urge all who may have a desire to know the facts to address any resident of that country; and if this is not satisfactory we herewith offer to furnish other specific references that cannot be gainsaid.

Very truly,

INYO INDEPENDENT.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 30.....1876.

FROM THE EAST.—Robert Ford, of Bishop, returned a few days since from a three months' tour and a general visit among relatives in the Eastern States, from Minnesota to Philadelphia and all around. Mr. Ford tells us that people in this country have no adequate conception of what "general hard times" are. What with the hopper-grasses, chinch bugs, too much rain and other causes, the crops are miserably short and the farming class, generally so independent, have abundant cause to complain of hard times. But bad as it may be with that class, it is immeasurably worse with laborers, artisans and all depending upon manufactures for their bread. Many of these are actually on the verge of starvation, and many will starve if work does not soon start up, of which, however, there appears to be tolerably good prospects in some of the manufacturing districts. As to his views of the Centennial—well, it is not worth our while to attempt any description—it's huge and takes a man nine days by the watch to simply traverse the sixty miles of asiles just for a preliminary look, and a head as large as a rhinocerous' to remember a tenth of what he had seen when he has finished that part of the opening contract.

QUITE A SAVING.—It so rarely happens in any branch of Uncle Sam's service that the whole amount of money appropriated for particular purposes is not wholly used up it is an encouraging novelty to note the following exception in favor of Camp Independence, as shown when balancing accounts preparatory to a temporary change of commanders, which change takes place today: The savings on appropriations since Capt. MacGowan took command were 523 cords of wood, 37,975 pounds of barley and 106,852 pounds of hay. This does not include the enforced savings caused by deficiency of appropriations, which, if added, will materially increase the sum total as given. This includes, we presume, a month's pay, nearly two in fact, due officers and men, but not paid because the year's appropriations fell that much short. On the items given the contractors are out and injured, of course, but our respectable uncle is some $10,000 better off.

DANCE.—King Solomon got on a spree once and danced in the exuberance of his joy, but his better halves, quarters and eighths poked him in the ribs and called him a silly old fool. Had Sol lived in these times his wives would have laughed at his awkardness and inveigled him into the mazes of the dance every other night. Apropos of this the lovers of the art of tipping the light fantastic and falling down on the same, gathered at the Blaney House Thursday night and enjoyed a pleasant evening—the music being furnished by a traveling string band. One of the musicians, a little Italian boy, treated the company to several violin solos and was enthusiastically encored. They were all expert players and well up in the b-darnded and flat c's.

TO LEAVE US.—It seems that Capt. MacGowan's application for leave of absence has received favorable consideration, as we learn that he proposes to start for the East early next week. Should his leave be extended as he hopes for he expects to visit Canada, Scotland, etc., before returning to duty. From what we know of Capt. MacGowan's system of managing Post financial affairs we are disposed to think the service does not possess a more economical, honorable or trustworthy officer. And yet as an individual he is remarkably liberal in all his dealings, and in aiding any laudable public undertaking. We wish him a perfectly pleasant trip. During his absence Lieut. Wotherspoon will be Post Commandant and company commander.

BIG PINE SAW MILL.—J. B. Stewart, proprietor of the Big Pine saw mill and lumber yard, has been engaged for some time in moving his mill and locating in a new lot of extra fine timber—a point about two miles above the old site—and building a road to the same. Mr. Stewart has been considerably delayed in refitting the mill on account of mechanical help, but he now assures us that the saw will start up on Monday next, and on the finest timber ever got out in the county. Attention is directed to his new ad.

GONE NORTH.—A. W. Pratt, the jeweler, has gone north intending to visit all the points of any interest in his line of business on the route to Nevada. He will stop a few days at Bishop; the next point will be at Benton. Bentonites having any work in the jewelery line may expect him about Octobeer 7—posters in advance, however, will fix the date.

WHO WANTS IT?—Deputy Revenue Collector Gregg gives notice elsewhere that he will on the 13th proximo offer certain parcels of captured crookedness to the highest bidder. In this connection we will inform bidders that the liquor, when sold, is subject to the revenue tax of 90 cents per gallon—stamps obtainable from the Collector.

U. S. PATENTS.—Land patents have been received for the following named persons at the Independence Land Office, this week: B. S. Glover, Stephen G. Gregg, Terrence McKewin, John R. Turner, Robert A. Russell, John Nicoll and Andrew Brown.

LODGE TO-NIGHT.—Inyo Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., will hold its regular monthly communication this evening, at Masonic Hall.

KEARSARGE.—The Kearsarge mill is now being run on ore from the lower tunnel of the company's mine, having finished its contract on Rex Montes ore. The tunnel referred to was started with the view of tapping the shaft in the bottom of which was made the big strike heretofore mentioned, but which could not be advantageously worked on account of bad air. The tunnel will strike 200 feet below the bottom of the shaft, from which point it will be connected by an upraise. Contrary to expectation the tunnel itself is furnishing an abundance of good ore to keep the mill running. The creek which supplies the motive power for the mill by a turbine wheel has got too low to run all the machinery at the same time, so the battery with the roaster and then the eleven pans have to be run alternately. A friend working at the mill assures us that the mill and mine both are really first-class successes, and that we may consider them combined as one of our permanent institutions. Mr. Gray has added several men to his force.

SCHOOL CLOSED.—Miss Whitcomb's school at the Post closed yesterday. We regret that illness quite as much as Friday's usual demands in a newspaper office compelled us to forego our previous intention of attending. However our little contemporary, the Tarantula, of this morning gives us the following report: "A full examination of studies was made, which was witnessed by several parents and patrons of the school. We regret that others were not present- The recitations of the classes in geography, history and grammar were excellent, and showed a proficiency that did credit to both teacher and scholars. The reading of Marco Bozzaris was admirably rendered by Miss Lillie Drake and Minnie Walters, and in connection with the general reading classes, shows that this branch is made a specialty. The declamations would have done credit to older persons. Where all excelled it would be invidious to make any distinctions."

BEAUTIFUL SPECIMENS.—We are indebted to Thos. E. Jones, of Round Valley, (who started some six weeks since for a visit to the Centennial), for two book marks, we suppose they may be called which are a little ahead of anything we have seen done by machinery. These specimens are simply broad pieces of white silk ribbons with letters and flowers of raw silk woven in by machinery. These letters, (whole verses in German text with illuminated initials), and flowers, are as perfect in outline and coloring as if printed from type and engravings and painted by a master hand, and it is all the work of what Mr. Jones very appropriately calls a "very ingenious little machine," at the Centennial. This machine completes one of these specimens in about three hours. A very skillful embroiderer might do as much in about three months. What can't be done by machinery these days is hardly worth doing—some few things excepted, of course.

RACES.—P. M. Harry Wright (he says he wants deference shown him out of respect to his title), of the Taboose, dropped in yesterday with his raceing advertisement, announcing a race and also a grand ball to come off at his place November 4. Those who delight in combing their light, fantastic hair and playing thunder with each other's hearts, will be rejoiced to hear of the latter part of the programme. Two, or probably three of the well known blooded horses of the valley will strive for the championship in the single dash of a mile; to prevent any miscostruction we forbear mentioning the names of any of the bloods until assured that they will be entered. It is free for all horses without regard to age, complexion or number of its navigating legs.

APPLES.—This fruit of native growth is much less common than some others in this valley, the trees for the most part just beginning this season to bear for the first time. But in the way of fruits the apple crop is likely to be the surest and most profitable of any, and at the same time appear to be of much better quality than California apples generally, raised elsewhere. W. A. Baker, of Big Pine, is one of our leading fruit raisers, and to him we are indebted for a number that would compare favorably with the famous "big red apples" of Oregon. His trees are loaded this year, and the fruit sells readily at from 15 to 20 cents per pound.

TO BEGIN.—Parents and others interested are hereby reminded that Miss Whitcomb will begin her school here next Monday. This is to be a six months' term, all this district can afford, it seems. Parents who neglect to give their children all the advantage of such opportunities, limited in point of time as they are, are certainly doing a wrong to their children which they themselves will some day have occasion to remember in shame. In these days of free schools and universal opportunities, it is next to a crime to wilfully permit children to grow up in ignorance.

A SHAME.—There are people who have not only friends but relatives buried at the Post cemetery who, notwithstanding a full knowledge of Post regulations requiring that each grave should have a permanent marking, have totally neglected to look after them at all. Some of these graves are rapidly becoming obliterated, and if not attended to by the proper parties soon, will by orders be entirely leveled.

LUNAR RAINBOW.—The phenomenon of the unusual sight of a lunar rainbow was witnessed—by those who saw it, about 9 o'clock Thursday night. It was situated somewhere in the zenith, and its beauty was very much enhanced, so Recorder Daugherty stated, by viewing through the bottom of a glass.

ANOTHER INCORPORATION.—"The Modoc Consolidiated Silver Mining Company," of Darwin, filed articles of incorporation on the 18th instant. Directors—B. Taylor, A. H. Griffith, J. L. Armstrong, Edward Bennison, Frank L. Kreider. Capital, $10,000,000.

Piute Adrift.

[FOR THE INYO INDEPENDENT.]

CHAPTER I.

MERRS. EDITORS—Having promised my Piute brethern to let them know a thing or two concerning Centennial and other matters, I presume that a few brief epistles in THE INDEPENDENT, providing you have no objections, will answer the purpose. White folks must not expect rhetorical embellishment and high sounding phrases. Tinemuckahee will simply give a synopsis of what he thinks will be interesting to his fellow redskins.

There is Poks and Dokonahbee and a host of others who have learnt to read and write. Any young buck will tell you that it is much harder for them to learn to curse and swear, chew tobacco, drink tarantula juice, get heap drunk, and be heap sick next day, but bless their souls, all this must be done, and more too, in order to be "all same white man."

Having provided himself with pine nuts, a pair of moccasins, and a buckskin, Piute struck out for Carson and arrived there on time. Much to his delight he found heap of Piutes bunched up in various places on the streets, playing cards, with a bottle of whisky, occasionally smiling among them. Was invited to stay with them, and did that night, but will not stop another one with that crowd. Big Jake had drank heap whisky that day and got drunk. "Fighting whisky" white man called it, Jake said, and of course to be all same white man must fight. So he slashed away with a big knife and cut off a couple of his brother's fingers, when all the other Piutes vamosed camp. Your Inyo Piute also made tracks, with hair standing stiff as "quills upon the fretful porcupine." Next day found the railroad station where a crowd of whites, reds, blacks and all sorts were eagerly inquiring the rates of fare to Philadelphia. Mr. Ticket Agent informed them that if they wanted a first class ride to pungle out a $140. Ugh! Piute thought that was heap. But the ticket man further informed them that third-class tickets were sold for $66. Well Piute could do even better than that—the railroad companies are so partial to Indians that they are allowed to ride on the outside (not inside) the car any distance, free gratis. Do you know the reason why? They think that railroad collisions are effective means to diminish the Lo family, and the Indians begin to thinks so too; they don't ride as often as they used to. Your Piute saw a sober looking gentleman walk into the car with a six-foot casket under his arm. Piute being inquisitive asked him what was that for. "Well," said he "I have over 3,000 miles to travel by rail and railway collisions are frequent."

"Do coffins prevent collisions?"

"Not at all," he replied, "but I always take one along—very convenient in case of emergency—liable to have a gol durn smash up any moment!"

Ugh! Piute trembled, and wished he had brought his mustang pony along.

[To be continued if Piute after safely reaching the big show, as he did, does not forget to send remainder of the copy.—EDS.]

OUR MONO LETTER.

BENTON, Cal., September 27.

MESSRS. EDITORS—In my last communication I promised to give you more of a detailed account of matters and things in this vicinity, especially in relation to the mines. Our mineral interests are looking much better than at any time heretofore, and the prospects for the prosperity of Benton were never so flattering as at the present time.

Water at the mines has hitherto been an enormously expensive item, as it was all drawn on wagons from town. But fortune has smiled upon the Comanche M. & M. Co.; at last they have struck water in the bottom of the shaft in quantity quite sufficient to supply the hoisting works. The Comanche makes regular shipments of bullion, and declares her dividends monthly. A contract for sinking a shaft on the Blind Spring mine is completed to the depth of 150 feet, and Superintendent Howell is talking of putting up a small hoisting engine, sufficient in power to hoist 1,000 feet. The contractors, Messrs. Louder & King, did the mining. Parties having any more such jobs to let would do well to call on them.

The mines at the Yellow Jacket, seven miles south of Benton, are assuming quite a conspicuous place in the history of mines in this vicinity. John Tregembo has opened up in the Tower mine a vein of the metallic substance about two feet thick, which assays up in the thousands. Messrs. Tregembo & Thomas, who purchased the Illinois mine last Spring, have worked manfully upon it ever since. In the matter of dollars and cents their accomplishment thus far has not amounted to much, but the preparatory work has been immense. A depth of 75 feet has been reached, and there is not a mine or a mining piece of workmanship in the State of California that is any more deserving of credit to the workman than that of Messrs. Tregembo & Thomas in the Illinois mine at Yellow Jacket.

The Indian Qneen mill and mine has started up, under the superintendency of Mr. Dudley Hoyt, and that he is equal to the emergency is established by his regular shipment of the usual seven bars per week. This morning the stage went out loaded down to the guards with bullion. The Diana mine is not panning out as some might expect, but on the other hand it is paying out for improvements now being made, after the completion of which it is thought the owners will begin to realize dividends.

A mine known as the "Careless Tom" was incorporated a short time ago, with a capital stock of $5,000,000. It is the south extension of the Diana, and there is no doubt but that the Careless Tom will prove as good as either the Diana or the Kerrick.

POLITICAL.

The Tilden and Hendricks Club met last Saturday night at the school house, and transacted their usual business. The Hays and Wheeler Club met at the Partzwick Hall. Upon being called on for an address, Mr. Adams, Jr., disclaimed any oratorical ability, but read the speech of Gen. Tuttle of Iowa. As an elocutionist Mr. Adams is a successist. After a few short speeches the Club adjourned, to meet at the school house next Saturday, when Mr. Witherill will address the audience upon the issues of the day.

PERSONAL.

District Attorney Whitman was in town last week, on some law business. ....Dick Decker has gone to Bridgeport, on a professional spurt....The order of Good Templars has revived, but there is danger of a relapse.... Frank Almon and Barrister Mitchell have entered into a law partnership. A good law firm is what Benton is most in need, and Frank and Swamp John have the Justice Courts corralled.

RURAL JACOB.

HUTCH'S CAÑYON.—Our old correspondent, "Minion," is slashing around Hutch's Cañon, whence, under date of of the 26th, he furnishes us with these items: "This place is officially known as 'Furnace Cañon.' It is sixteen miles hence to Benton. The Indian Queen company keeps one four-stamp mill and a White's rotary furnace (with Howell's improvements) in constant operation. Their mine, the Indian Queen, was the discovery of a Piute, who having a high regard for Wm. Witherell, who had done him many kindnesses, voluntarily showed him the mine. Mr. W. soon had a mill upon it, and with the valuable aid of an extra competent and energetic Superintendent, John Howell, amassed a competency, when two years ago, he sold to the present company. To-day they make a shipment of $11,000, result of two weeks' run on low grade ore. Dudley Hoyt is Superintenent, H. M. Levy, Assistant do., and Assayer, Andrew Waterbury, engineer, machinist, mill-man, and Foreman, with John W. Lewis as Assistant; Mr. Cutter, present and old-time Foreman of the mine. Next comes the Avalanche, located in 1871 by Sam Halsey and Capt. Aiken. After passing from them through the hands of several other owners, Thompson, Truman and Prows got it and realized a good deal of money from the sale ores taken out. Daniel Caughlin purchased it from them, and is now here preparing to start up work. Its ores run from $400 to $500, and Dan has a good thing if he will stay with it, and that's what he proposes to do."

DAY OF ATONEMENT.—Beginning at 6 o'clock on last Wednesday and ending at the same hour on Thursday, was celebrated with revrential ardor by communicants of the Hebrew Church.

GONE BELOW.—Register R. M. Briggs started a few days ago on a two weeks' tour in the southern part of this land district, and on to Stockton.

BULLION SHIPMENT.—Mr. Holt ships three bars of Rex Montes bullion today, valued at $3,000.

EASTMAN & BRO., the photographers, are in town ready for first-class work.

[From the Stock Report.]

In spite of the prediction, which seems reasonable and approaching realization, that a new impetus will shortly be given to manufacture and consequently to labor, there were probably never such really hard times in New York as there at present. It may be the dark hour which precedes the dawn, but certainly the sufferings of the poor must be terrible. There is no surer barometer of the extent and degree of poverty than is furnished by the books of the pawnbrokers' shops, and the New York Sun has had the curiosty to ferret out some of the details connected with them with a view of gauging the amount and extent of the present destitution. The chief firm interviewed had upwards of $250,000 out on small pledges; for they refuse to advance more than $25 on any article, and this system is adopted by every pawnshop in New York, each of which contains a notice to that effect. The pawnbrokers' clerks say they have not known such a demand for money for years. The poor were parting with everything they had, and the establishments were compelled to stop loaning on many articles which in ordinary times they would receive. Not only dresses and articles of comparative value were to be seen in the store-rooms, but family Bibles, domestic implements, flat-irons, etc., workmens' tools of every branch of trade or labor, from the workman's pick to the delicate implements of the lapidary or pianoforte maker. Even surgical instruments are quite common. This wholesale pawning, not confined to any one rank or condition, still less to individuals, argues a terrible state of destitution in the commercial capital of America, almost anomalous in a city of such wealth and business. It may be, as we remarked before, the turning of the tide, but at present it has occasioned a strong reflux current of emigration, and a Boston paper states that the steerage accommodations of the eastward bound trans-Atlantic steamers from both Boston and New York have been taxed up to their utmost limit, a circumstance unprecedented in the history of the country. Since times are so hard in the East it seems a pity that so many people, all of the very best class of settlers, should return to Europe. Were proper facilities afforded them they would no doubt be immeasurably better pleased to come on here where they would find good opportunities for advancement and no hard times. This is the time for the establishment of a proper Emigration Bureau with agents East to induce the proper kind of emigrants to come and settle among us. The very people we want to build up this new country are daily flowing to Europe, and the State is raising no hand to prevent it or to present to them the advantages California has to offer. No advantage is to be had without effort, and emigration to this country is of incalculable benefit to it. It is really high time that such an institution were established amongst us on a proper basis.

RESPECT FOR THE DEAD.—P. S. Larrabee, of Wheatland, has a small dog that occupies nearly his whole time in killing snakes, rats and gophers, destroying a great many of each during the season. After killing a snake or a rat nothing can induce him to go near it again, but on killing a gopher he lays down by the side of it, rolls it over several times, and then digs a hole and buries it.—Pacific Life.

NADEAU, of the Cerro Gordo Freighting Company has succeeded in detecting a teamster and station keeper at Indian Wells, in stealing goods from his wagons. The teamster's name was Francisco Villega; the station keeper's, Oriot. They were taken before Justice McVicar, at Tehachapai, and held to appear before the Grand Jury in the sum of $1,000 each. Oriot gave bail, but Villega could not and is now in jail.—Kern County Gazette, Sept. 23.

"HITCHING UP."—There is always great rivalry among companies in regard to hitching up and getting out. Engine No. 11 stands on record, as we have heard, as the best one for promptness. On Monday last two men hitched up the team in thirteen seconds, horses coming from the stalls. One man did it in nineteen seconds. This leads No. 4 by just one second.—Pacific Life.

BIDDY—"Did yez iver see a finer wake, a nicer funeral or a purtier corpse than Paddy's?" Kate—"Niver a wonst." Biddy—"And do yez know Paddy was that natural loike, had he come to life and got out of his coffin to see himself in it, be dad he himself wouldn't have known he was dead."

THE London Examiner says that atrocious outrages on the aged, and on women, such as have recently occurred by the wholesale butcheries in Bulgaria, are never committed save in the name of religion or liberty.

THE best library in the State of Nebraska belongs to the State Prison, and is the result of the labors of a convict named Mercer.

I am certain that it was YERBA BUENA that cured me of the palpitation of the heart. I am happy to state through the use of your BITTERS I am a well man. All wishing to be convinced of the above, I will give you my residence: 209 Liedesdorff street, San Francisco. JOHN R. STEERE.

MESSRS. H. WILLIAMS & CO.: Dear Sirs—As long as I can remember, I have been troubled with Pin Worms, and at times felt as if I was being devoured alive. Early in March, 1875, I was induced to use your YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and within One Month I was entirely cured. I have not been troubled with them since, and am satisfied that I am PERMANENTLY cured. I think it is the best preparation for Constipation and Billious Troubles known.
A. B. HOWARD,
No. 12 Quincy street, San Francisco.

I take pleasure in recommending the YERBA BUENA BITTERS. I have used three bottles and found more relief from them than anything I have ever used. I had been troubled with Constipation of the Bowels, Torpid Liver and general debility for a long time, and found no relief until the YERBA BUENA BITTERS cured me.
S. BROOKS, Petaluma.

Seeking health on the Pacific Coast, my attention was called to Dr. Warren's YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and took some for headache, which cured me so perfectly that I bought a bottle and have not taken any other medicine since. It is a perfect cure for any derangement of the stomach or constipation, and I recommend it before any other medicine, as it leaves the system in a healthy state and no dieting is necessary. Please send your Bitters all over the world, for it will be a blessing to humanity beyond the power of words to express. I write you freely and from actual experience. CYRUS CUMMINGS,
Late of Charlotte, Mich.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 21.

MESSRS. EDITORS—The trial of the safe burglary conspirators is now going on in the Criminal Court of the District. Yesterday morning a jury was impanneled and the United States attorney made his opening address. O. E. Babcock, Thomas P. Somerville, Whitely Nettleship, Bliss and Benton are the parties charged with the offence. Harrington, the former United States attorney, was tried last Fall, but by some unaccountable influence the jury failed to agree. This trial excites much interest here; as the crime charged was a blow aimed at the reputation and liberty of one of our most worthy and useful citizens, and the parties aiming it Government officials of high position. Should the District Attorney make good his ability to prove all that he claims in his opening address, and if the jury are honest a conviction must follow. But that last if is a doubtful word in these parts, and money or influence is too apt to twist it either way. No matter what the Government may prove I prophesy an acquittal, and would be very willing to take Babcock's place as far as the present trial is concerned for a small consideration.

The President is still at Long Branch, but will perhaps leave to-day or to-morrow for the Centennial, where he will spend the remainder of the week. He will visit some friends at Ithica, New York, and then go to Washington, Pennsylvania, after which he will return to Washington, reaching here about the 1st of October.

The Board of United States Army Engineers detailed to examine the foundation of the Washington Monument, is constituted of Col. Z. B. Tower, Lieut.-Col. H. G. Wright, Lieut. Q. A. Gilmore, and Lieut. R. L. Hoxie. Should they find that the foundation is trusty, the work will be immediately proceeded with; in the event of its condemnation it is not yet decided what course will be pursued.

The Indian war still claims attention, though it seems to be drawing to a close at least for the Winter. Some of the tribes or bands are making their escape into British territory. A band of several hundred of Uncapapas crossed at Wolf Point agency two days since. An ineffectual attempt was made by the Ninth Cavalry and a batallion of the Sixth Infantry to prevent them, but they were too quick for the troops, and made good their escape. The Indians confessed they were in a destitute condition, and had thrown away lodges to facilitate flight. They offered extravagant prices in ponies for ammunition. A Fort Sully telegram says the chief Blue Eagle, when called upon to surrender is reported to have said he would do no such thing, and that all he wanted was that the soldiers should cross to the east bank and take care of their own rations, and that the Indians would look out for themselves.

The papers are having a good deal to say lately about the propriety, in fact, necessity, for teaching girls to swim. And some of them say that while the season is rather too far advanced for natatory exercises this year, that plans could be laid and preparations made for the fullest indulgence in this highly useful art by the women and girls all over the country during the coming Summer. Some of them go so far as to suggest plans for the construction of bathing houses on the small streams in country neighborhoods. New York and several of the large cities have swimming schools for women, which are well patronized, supplying as they do a means of physical education of which many sensible persons avail themselves. Every city should have them. Now the boys have altogether the advantage over the girls in this respect, and have no difficulty in learning this exhilerating, healthful and highly useful exercise. There are really as many reasons why women should learn to swim as men. Persons who possess that acquirement have a great advantage over those who do not understand it, and when on water are comparatively calm in the presence of danger, knowing that they have the power of riding in safety on an element which mercilessly engulfs those who have not learned to breast its waves. The new style of dress recommended by the Dress Reform Convention and which the New York World styles a "bifurcated petticoat" would be valuable in an emergency.

SAXON.

Boy Heroism.

[From the St. Croix (N. B.) Journal.]

On the 24th ultimo Fred. Berryman, aged 12 years, rowed his mother, Mrs. Berryman, and two of his sisters, both younger than himself, across the St. Croix to Calais, in a small boat. When they reached their destination Fred. helped one of the little girls to clamber up the wharf and took her to a place of safety. When he returned for the other he found her running about the boat screaming "Where is my mamma?" Fred rightly conjectured that his mother had fallen overboard, and, being a capital swimmer, though so young, dived immediately into the water where he saw bubbles arising, and had the good fortune to aid in bringing her to the surface, but could do no more, and Mrs. Berryman, like every other person in danger of being drowned, kept holding on to him till both were sinking again. Fred cried out, "Oh, mother, don't drown me!" on which, still retaining her senses, Mrs. Berryman dropped her hold of him and pushed him from her, and then sank the second time. In an agony of grief, Fred dived and pulled her to the surface again. Again she sank. Happily there was no current at the time, and when the noble little fellow helped her up the third time he succeeded by a superhuman effort in placing her right hand, which was open, on the stern of the boat, and there Mrs. Berryman, though by that time utterly unconscious, took hold and held on until Fred mounted the wharf and brought some men at work near by to her assistance. When she recovered Mrs. Berryman said that when Fred left her with the little girl she attempted to climb up the wharf, but it being slippery she lost her hold, while the boat had floated away from beneath her, and she fell into the water. Mrs. Berryman, we are happy to learn, has completely recovered from the fright and other effects of the perilous mishap she met with, while all who know about the affair express their admiration of Fred's sagacious and heroic efforts to save the life of his mother. Fred deserves a medal, if not something more substantial.

COBALT, sold as a fly poison, contains no cobalt; but consists of impure metallic arsenic.

GEN. BRAXTON BRAGG dropped dead in the street in Galveston, Texas, September 27. He was sixty-one years of age, and supposed to be in his usual health when he left his house. The cause of his death is not known, but is supposed to have been syncope, induced by organic disease of the heart.

AGAIN the American Team conquers in its friendly rivalry with the Irish riflemen, though by a somewhat narrow margin and in spite of superior shooting by the latter at the longest range. This is the last of the international contests, and leaves the trophies on this side of the Atlantic. The result cannot fail to gratify the pride even of those who take little interest in the sport. —N. Y. Tribune.

MR. CAIRD, who is an authority on British agriculture, shows that the wheat crop of the United Kingdom is far from abundant. This arises from the land devoted to wheat having been 678,000 acres less than the average acreage of 1874 and the seven preceding years. Mr. Caird says Great Britain will rely mainly upon this country to make good the deficiency, and predicts better prices. This is good news for our farmers. Cheap freights make the prospects still better.

NOT the least of the wonders of the Exhibition have been the safety and dispatch with which an army of visitors has been carried back and forth each day. The Pennsylvania road alone has averaged 14,000 passengers a day for the past two weeks, and on some days has carried 30,000. With all this travel not a single passenger has been injured since the opening of the Exhibition. Compliment could not say more.

IN the present crippled condition of the Spanish finances it is exceedingly discretitable to the ex-Queens Christina and Isabella that they are "lobbying" for the payment of heavy claims on the national treasury. Should their intrigues result in the removal of Señor Canovas del Castillo from the Premiership the young King will find himself adrift on a "sea of troubles."

AN Appleton, Maine, miser died the other day, and there have been found secreted on the premises sums of money in coin amounting to over $3,000. He and his wife were both very stingy in money matters. He first saw his wife in a store trying to drive a very hard bargain with the merchant, and discovering such a shrewd business tact, said to himself, "That is the girl for me," and immediately commenced cultivating an intimacy with her that resulted in a marriage union of their efforts to get and hoard their earnings. It is said that in their marriage contract many stipulations were made and agreed to on both sides, one of which was "never to boil any meat that could be fried."

ADVICE ABOUT PICKLING.—Do not keep pickles in common earthenware, as the glazing contains lead and combines with the vinegar. Vinegar for pickling should be sharp, though not the sharpest kind, as it injures the pickles. If you use copper, bell metal or brass vessels for pickling never allow the vinegar to cool in them, as it is then poisonous. Add a teaspoonful of alum, and a teacupful of salt to each three gallons of vinegar, and tie up a bag with pepper, ginger root and spices of all the various sorts in it, and you have vinegar prepared for any kind of pickling. Keep pickles only in wood or stoneware. Anything that has held grease will spoil pickles. Stir pickles occasionally, and if there are soft ones take out and scald the vinegar and pour it hot over them. Keep enough vinegar to cover them well. If it is weak take fresh vinegar and pour on hot. Do not boil vinegar or spice above five minutes.

CLUBS FOR EDITORS.—"Tommy, my son, what are you going to do with that club?" "Send it to the editor, of course." "But what are you going to send it to the editor for?" "'Cause he says if anybody will send him a club, he will send them a copy of his paper." The mother came near fainting, but recovered herself sufficiently to ask, "But, Tommy, dear, what do you suppose he wants with a club?" "Well, I don't know," replied the urchin, "unless it is to knock down subscribers as don't pay for their papers. I suppose there are plenty of such mean people."

THERE is a man in Newark so close that when he attends church he occupies the pew farthest from the pulpit, to save the interest on his money while the collectors are passing the plate.

"I'D thank you for another piece of that mince pie," said Dubbins to his landlady. "Owing to the peculiar arrangement of the programme, no piece can be repeated at this entertainment," calmly replied the landlady.

MISS NANNY BELGEN, a young lady eighteen years old, committed suicide at Portland, Oregon, September 28, by taking strychnine. She was in convulsions when first discovered, and died in half an hour. Disappointment in love was the cause of the suicidal deed.

IKE MOORE shot a man named Dennison at the San Fernando tunnel on the night of the 11th ultimo, and then made his escape. Dennison is said to have slandered Moore's sister. The shot was immediately fatal.

ONE of our farmers in the lower settlement says the cost of threshing his grain, a small crop, with the steam thresher took the whole of his crop and left him $25 in debt. He proposes to use a nutmeg grater another year.—Visalia Delta.

CUT some pictures from the illustrated papers and magazines; when you have enough collected get some paper muslin, either all white or different colors. If you do not wish to purchase one of the self-binding covers, cut some out of pasteboard and paste bright cloth over them to make them durable. Cut the paper muslin to fit the covers, work the edges of it all around, button-hole stitch, with red worsted, and paste on the pictures. Fasten securely in the binding, and the arrangement will make something which the little ones will enjoy immensely.

ELECTIONS.—On the 3d instant the new State of Colorado fired a Presidential straw in the shape of a State election. This particular straw, however, is not considered of much significance, that new commonwealth not having a record from which to deduce conclusions. But on Tuesday, the 10th, Ohio and Indiana will fire whole ricks of political straws—enough to keep the political calculators hard at work up to the very eve of the momentous 7th of November. We shall indulge in no prognostications further than to say that we doubt very much whether results in either of those States will be so marked for or against either party as to be eminently satisfactory as an indication as to how the national election is to turn in November. The Republicans will probably carry both States as regards plurality of votes, but the Democrats are quite certain to count up a percentage of gain sufficient to offset the moral effect to a greater or less extent. It is by no means conclusive that the Republicans will succeed as stated; the most cogent reason for thinking they will lies in the fact that as the South is a unit for the opposite ticket the fact will do much to produce a similar result for fhe opposite party in the North. But let the result be what it may we, shall rejoice most heartily when we have an end to the diabolical criminations and recriminations—a state of affairs we can only hope for after the votes are counted out on the 7th of November. The pending elections will only intensify these afflictions up to that time.

DEATH OF JAMES LICK.—The death of James Lick occurred on Sunday last at 1 o'clock in the morning. His two most familiar titles are "the millionaire" and "the philanthropist." The first he has undoubtedly earned. Of the fitness of the latter there may be question. To most of us it is the saddest of mournful deaths—an old, friendless man, clinging tenaciously to decaying life, striving with a vanity which would be ludicrous if it were not painful to cover the ravages of fourscore years with the aspect of youth, hoarding the wealth so laboriously acquired and denying himself the comforts of life from very love of hoarding, petulant, whimsical, irascible, and suspicious—yielding up his life at last with only paid attendants about him, leaving probably not one single sincere mourner to shed a tear over his lonely grave. It will be a splendid grave. The papers even now tell us of the magnificent casket furnished to enclose the poor worn out frame—but who would not rather have the assurance of loving remembrance and regretful tears than all the glitter of silver and gloom of velvet which will be the only tribute to the dead millionaire. He could not carry with him his hoarded wealth and left it where its disposition would as far as possible perpetuate his egotism and hostility to his own realitives.

THE AWARDS.—A correspondent of the New York Times says that much dissatisfaction is expressed by the Centennial exhibitors at the wonderfully liberal way in which medals have been awarded. Full three-fourths of all the articles on exhibition, native and foreign, got a medal, and thus making the medals so common they confer but little evidence of superior merit. But won't the future advertisements teem with Centennial awards?

MUSICAL REVIEW.—The September number of this excellent monthly contains a large variety of interesting matter, comprising musical miscellany, correspondence, criticisms of concerts, editorial items, etc., and twelve pages of vocal and instrumental music. The music alone in each number is worth the subscription price, $1 50. Send your subscriptions in currency, stamps, or coin, to the publishers, Sherman & Hyde, San Francisco.

ACQUITTED.—Babcock, after a two weeks' trial, was acquitted on September 30, there being nothing adduced to show that he was in complicity with those safe robbers, on which charge he was made one of the defendants. We believe, though, that the public interests would not suffer materially if Babcock and all such statesmen were to retire to a strictly private life.

THOMAS LASPEYRE, Esq., a former resident of this region, where he commanded universal respect, and well known in California politics, is a candidate for the Legislature from Eureka county, Nevada. That being a Democratic county he will doubtless be elected, and with his experience and unquestioned integrity, will make an excellent legislator.

THE BEND CITY BRIDGE.

Our present Board of Supervisors are manifesting a very commendable spirit of economy in regard to county expenses. They are doing their level best to reduce those expenses to the lowest practicable figure. This is eminently right and proper. There is a manifest need for the county as well as individuals to retrench, these days, to the utmost limit, within certain limits of course. Realalizing that necessity ourselves more fully than most people, perhaps, we are not in the least disposed to animadvert upon any of their efforts to economize, except to point out what we conceive to be errors in conclusions as in the matter of this Bend City bridge. We do not think it will result in any saving at all, ihis refusal of the majority (Messrs. Garretson and Meysan) to appropriate the comparatively small sum required to make the Bend City bridge available. We understand the situation very well—that this bridge is not on a thoroughfare in general use by the public at large, or even on a side road connecting us with any mining districts active at this time, and that, therefore, its maintenance is not a matter of wide spread importance. We also know that the anticipations of business this particular bridge was expected to accommodate have not been extensively realized, and admitting that this fact could have been foreseen with reasonable certainty, we would not now undertake to say that the extent of interests actually subserved were enough to justify the sums it has already cost the county for construction and re-construction. Like all the rest this bridge, owing to defective plan and location, superadded to miserable material, has been a costly affair indeed. This would have been, most likely, of the least expense, first and last, of the lot if the river had had any fixed idea about its channel; but it didn't, so a year or so ago there was a good bridge down there but no river nearer than about a half a mile; it cost $2,500 by contract to get it to the water again; it was so taken and rebuilt stronger than ever. In that respect it stands to-day intact, needing not a cent for repairs. But the river has again left it, so that people who want to cross it have to swim the river most of the time to get to it. The proposition was to move it a short distance up stream to a point where there is no risk of its again being left high and dry. Road Commissioner Connelly offered to do the work for $600—cheap enough anybody knows. This bridge is useful to quite a large number of persons from Georges Creek to Fish Springs, including this place. Independent of stock, mining and other desultory interests subserved by this bridge to a far greater extent than is generally supposed, the principal wood supply for the whole of this immediate vicinity comes from that side, and always will; forthis item alone it is worth more to this locality each year than the above amount. Now, admitting this bridge to be almost entirely local in its benefits we claim that the order for its reconstruction, when it was to cost such a small sum, ought to have been made—first, because this district pays as large if not a larger share of road as well as other taxes than any other, and locally considered strictly (saying nothing about this bridge) receives less in return. The reason for this last is that in the nature of things the general advantage including its own requires the greatest expenditures elsewhere. Second, that after essential work had been done upon the other bridges and points, it would have been but right to have cut short mere grading not of the first importance and expended the money thus saved for the benefit of this district in the above particular. Third, a structure which has cost the county $10,000 as this one has very nearly, ought to be taken care of by the county and not be allowed to stand in utter uselessness, or else the county ought to give it over to those who need it and will take care of it. And while this is being done, to be consistent, steps should be taken to have the road law so amended as to give each district the right to say how at least a portion of its own money may be expended. And in this connection we will remark that those parties who were anxious to sign a remonstrance against the reconstruction of the Bend City bridge because it would only benefit one locality were actuated by pretty selfish motives. The only evil any district or person would have experienced if the work had been ordered would have been—not any additional tax, or the neglect of necessary work on the main highways—but simply the postponement of six-hundred dollars' worth of ordinary repairs, none of great moment. That is the way we understand it, and that is why we think the order ought to have been made, as the use of this bridge would benfit about as many individuals in cash value of business facilitated, besides preserving a costly property, as would the improvement of a few extra mud-holes.

THE report that the plague or some fatal pestilence was ravaging the Turkish camps in Servia seems to be confirmed.

TIMES IMPROVING.

From the way the leading papers figure it out, there is fair grounds to hope that times, East and West, will soon be much better. An improved activity in trade is already spoken of in a number of localities, and all the indications point to a continued and wide-spread revival of business. The Centennial has had something to do with this, in creating a demand for our manufactures. The short wheat crop in England is opening a market for our surplus produce. Several of the extensive cotton mills of New England, which were closed or running on half time, are again in full operation, and the labor strikes, so numerous during the past Spring and Summer, have nearly all come to an end by compromise between employed and employers. To the thousands of mechanics and laborers who have been enforced idlers this will be joyful news. Winter is setting in, and its rigors on the Atlantic slope bring fearful sufferfngs to those who are unprepared to meet them. So general has been the stagnation that it is not to be expected that it will be entirely overcome in a day; but the relief afforded will be a very great mitigation of the prevailing evil, and tend to arouse the drooping courage of thousands who have been almost entirely without hope.

NOTHING DONE.—The State Educational Convention adjourned without doing anything to reform anything worth speaking about. As heretofore, candidates for teachers' certificates will have to answer such questions as these: "Suppose a ball of yarn to be five inches in diameter and three men are required to unwind each an equal portion; what is the share of each one?" "What is meant by Bulls and Bears?" etc., etc. To be in keeping something like this would also be appropriate: "Supposing a grandmother to be red-headed, what proportion of her grandchildren might be expected to be common towheads?" Another bad arrangement in the existing system of examinations is the fact that second and third grade teachers are examined in precisely the same studies, there being a small difference in the percentage of correct answers required. One of the Professors at this Convention (Anderson) asserted that to his certain personal knowledge $500 had been paid for a sight of the questions the candidate was expected to answer. This of itself is not conclusive that the grade of questions were too high, but there is plenty of proof that many of the most difficult questions are of no earthly value except to puzzle candidates.

THE Nevada politicians are showing a sort of a mixed judgment in their selection of candidates. They have come to putting up newspaper editors, no less than five of our personal acquaintances of the newpaper profession being so nominated. They go after exalted positions, which have not, however, the troublesome matter of an official bond attached. For State Senators on the Democratic ticket there are Skillman of the White Pine News, Cassidy of the Eureka Sentinel and Prof. W. Frank Stewart of the late Comstock Record. On the Republican side, there are Mighels of the Carson Appeal for the Assembly and Daggett, formerly of the Virginia Enterprise, for Presidential Elector. Nevada is getting pretty low down when it comes to this. However, we can say that the Silver State probably does not possess an equal number of abler men that this same lot of editors.

WHY IS IT?—Last year the revenue for State purposes amounted to $2,112,000, to raise which required a State tax of 60½ cents on the $100. This year, notwithstanding the frantic talk of our late Legislature about retrenchment and reform, the State has to raise $1,614,000 more than last, being a total of $3,736,000, and requiring a tax of 73½ cents. Now, while we do not know why such a very large increase is required, we are satisfied it is necessary, else the aforesaid reformers under the peculiar circumstances of the case, if for no better reason, would not have so legislated. But we commend the facts to those who, had the conditions been reversed, would have strained themselves so very much to make party capital—just what, from similar premises, they are doing as it is.

IT is said that the Greeks, too, are preparing to go on the warpath after the Turkish oppressor, albeit the King and his Government are backward, fearful and under the thumb of the British Cabinet.

THE rapid influx of Russians into Servia justifies the belief that Russia will soon throw off the mask and assume the responsibility of the war she has been waging under cover of the Servian flag.

THE American Mining Stock Roard completed its organization in New York on the 30th ultimo. Pacific stocks will be regularly called.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO LETTER.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.

MESSRS. EDITORS—If anything were needed to give evidence of the cosmopolitan character of our city, it would be the prominence of the different holidays, secular and religious, which in turn are observed by the various nationalities forming so large a part of our population. St. Patrick's day causes almost as general a cessation of business as the Fourth of July, while Chinese New Year is certainly as noisy a festival as the year affords. Thursday of last week was solemnly observed by our Jewish residents as the great Day of Atonement, and a visit to the stock boards, or a stroll through our business thoroughfares would have surprised one who had never considered how large a portion of our business men are of Hebrew descent. The preparations for this most solemn of their festivals began quite early on Wednesday P. M., and by 6 o'clock all their places of business were closed, except those of some with happy elastic consciences, who having a Gentile partner or clerk, compromised matters by serving the Lord in person, and worshipping Mammon by proxy. California street wore almost a Sunday aspect, and in the stock boards was a lamentable scarcity of orders, the favorite speculations dropping in price as a consequence.

One of our dailies suggests that the Hebrew brokers are not the only members of the fraternity who need a day of atonement for their sins in this line, and pictures Keene and Sharon, Jones and Jackson, offering Savage and Ophir, Imperial and bonanzas, as a holocaust. The latest victim of stocks recorded is Gen. Frisbie of Vallejo, who is said to have lost heavily in Con. Virginia. By his failure the Vallejo Bank, of which he is President, is supposed to lose about $100,000, and is temporarily closed, but is not crippled thereby, and will reopen and resume business the present week.

The tide of travel between us and the Centennial Fair flows and ebbs, not at all decreasing as the advancing season gives promise of cooler weather at the East. The awards of the various committees, so far as published, occupy seven entire pages in the New York Daily Times, the only paper which gives the entire list. Among our California exhibitors who are included in the favored number, are the Consolidated Tobacco Company of Gilroy, the Mission Woollen Mills, whose blankets are the admiration of all, and Bradley & Rulofson, the popular and favorite photographers of this city. Mr. Rulofson made a brief visit to the East last month, attending during his absence the National Convention of Photography, from which body he received the honor of re-election to the office of President. The committee have not yet reached the Wine Department, but Mr. Kohler, of the firm of Kohler & Frohling, feels quite confident of a favorable mention of this important branch of California industry. He thinks our wines are well esteemed in the East, some varieties, particularly the California Rhine wine being much sought after. Though it is a poor compliment to our national pride that he is forced to admit that dealers are obliged to put it in bottles with foreign labels, in order to sell it at a price equal to German wine of the same grade. And this is Centennial year! when we are supposed to be nothing if not patriotic.

Senator Sargent in a speech at his recent reception, congratulated himself on having been instrumental in securing the Hawaiian Treaty, by which sugar from the Islands enters our ports free of duty. If we look into the matter closely, the cause for any general jubilation is not very apparent, and when we discover the inevitable wheel within a wheel, so apt to appear in all reform measures. The treaty was really desired and sought after by the sugar brokers of this city, who hoped to make a good thing out of it. The refinery men at first made a show of opposition, but at last let the matter quietly take its course, and when sugar was at last declared free, Claus Spreckles sailed one fine day for Honolulu, and gobbled up the whole crop of the next year. The brokers are left out in the cold, for which one does not so much care. But the deluded public, who hoped to get a reduction in the cost of their sugars, are as usual, victimized, and the only parties who appear to reap any benefit are the refiners and the Hawaiians themselves. The financial result is, that the half million of revenue which would in the former state of affairs have gone into Uncle Sam's treasury, helps to enrich Speckles & Co., and the Islanders caring more for immediate profit than the maintenance of pleasant relations with our merchants, accept the first offer and sell themselves to one of our big monopolies. Senator Booth was much censured for his course in regard to the treaty, but subsequent events would seem to indicate that he was not so far wrong after all.

Everybody knows now that young Bittenbender was insane. The killing of his brother was a crazy act. Note the circumstances: He had a little quarrel about a half dollar, and his brother used sharp words to him, finally giving him a blow. Hours afterward Eddie sneaks up behind him and shoots him in the head. The stoical indifference of the lad from that time till after the trial shows that he never realized the extent of his crime. Then it was shown on trial that insanity was hereditary in the family. All this availed nothing. He was sentenced to the penitentiary for life. Then, to match the legal folly that resulted in such a sentence, the officers put the poor crazed lad into a cell, and placed a razor convenient (at least they knew it was in the cell) for him to cut his throat with—which, of course, he did the first opportunity. The first act of the terrible tragedy occurred on the 11th of September, a year ago, and, on Saturday morning, September 30, the drama closed with young Bittenbender's throat cut from ear to ear—murdered by judicial stupidity and official carelessness.

Judge Belden has decided that the law under which the courts may sentence wife-whippers to punishment by the lash, is unconstitutional, the punishment being severe and unnatural. Unnatural monsters may therefore continue to abuse and beat their wives at pleasure, and the only penalty is to be a fine and imprisonment. QUILLA.

COMMUNICATED.

MESSRS. EDITORS—As I see by your issue of the 23d instant, a correspondent from Aurora has taken you to task for publishing the "Kearsarge Ghost story." I wish to say a few words in behalf of many who don't believe as he does, nor do they think all others, who may differ from them in opinion, fools or lacking in intelligence. D. M. has a perfect right to his own belief and opinions, but when he assails the intelligence of a large portion of the people of this county, because, they from their convictions—which must ever rest upon evidence pro and con on any and all subjects—he over steps the bounds of individual rights, showing that dogmatic spirit that would say to others: "Believe as I do, or be damned!"

That the spirit of Mrs. Mills' or any other—for the facts are incontrovertable that such do return to earth, both from the Bible, and past as well as present testimony—should visit a miner's cabin, is no more to be thought a degrading act than to visit a palace of a king, and it is to be hoped that pruriency does not follow us beyond the tomb.

Let those who chose shut their eyes to the oncoming day of spiritual light, ordained to lift the dark shadows from the valley of death; but they should not try to blind the sight of those who stand by the graves of their loved ones, and tell them there is no hope of their ever recrossing the dark gulf that lies between this life and that beyond.

I can say from personal knowledge, which is more than belief, that the power of human and divine love has bridged the mighty chasm, on which the silent feet of angel friends go and come, daily and hourly; and hard and unloving must be the hearts of those who will refuse to hear the knock or let those loved ones in. There is happiness in this knowledge that earth cannot give or take away; but no one is expected to believe it only upon sufficient evidence.

It is too late in the day to ignore the facts and the proof of the return of spirits, mostly on errands of mercy to our benighted world, and we should not hinder but even bid them welcome to our hearts and homes.

DARWIN MATTERS.—We excerpt the following items from the Darwin News of September 30:

Some time ago we stated that the National Prospecting Company were negotiating for the purchase of the Santa Rita and one or two other mines, as also the Tyler furnace, and would soon commence operations. From some hitch the sale was never consummated. Now, however, we learn from Sibricano Arano that Mr. Fortune (we trust that he will prove a good fortune to the company) has taken hold of the matter, and he, in company with Mr. Portois, will arrive here within twelve days to put their matters into active operation. They have purchased the Hidalgo mine, an extension of the Defiance, and this with the Santa Rita will be pushed to speedy development. All the tools and necessary parts for putting the machinery of the Tyler furnace into order have been shipped, and a new and larger furnace will be built, and they expect to be running out bullion long before the snow flies.

The sale of Defiance delinquent stock advertised to come off on the 26th instant, and postponed to October 3d, has been postponed to October 20th next.

We hear that the Coso Con. Mining Company has furnished money to release the attachment put upon the mine, and that still more will be forthcoming at an early day to resume active operations.

The furnaces of the New Coso Mining Company have shut down in consequence of an imperfection in the boiler. It will not run again until after the arrival of their water-jacket, which is said to be on the way.

NEW PATENTS.—Through Dewey & Co., Patent Agents, San Francisco, we receive the following advance list of U. S. Patents, granted to Pacific Coast inventors, viz.:

Samuel Adams, Antioch, Cal., buttons; Orrin Collier, Sacramento, Cal., hose couplings; Thomas J. Hubbell, Napa City, Cal., trace hooks; James Campbell, S. F., bellows valves; Edwin J. Frazier, S. F., process and apparatus for refining and packing sulphur; Menzo Spring, S. F., hinge joints, Joon K. True, S. F., steam governors; Albert Troller, S. F., stem winding device for watches; Samuel C. Dike and Sidney M. Brown, You Bet, Cal., flumes; Henry C. Perkins, North Bloomfield, Cal., (re-issue) hydraulic muzzles.

A CAT belonging to S. Ashim lately give birth to five kittens, two of which were perfectly formed, but still-born. The other three were connected together by a gristle-like ligature from the lower part of the breasts of each. In all other respects they are perfectly formed. They are apparantly in perfect health, and are lively and playful as other kittens of their age.—Eureka Sentinel.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 7.....1876.

Board of Supervisors—Special Meeting.

Board met pursuant to notice on Monday, October 2. Full Board present.

County tax rate for the current year fixed at 3 per cent, apportioned as follows:

Expense	$1.10	$19,250.00
Bridge	.15	2,625.00
Road	.10	1,750.00
School	.01	175.00
Hospital	.25	4,375.00
Sinking	.12	2,100.00
General	.25	4,375.00
Bonds	.28.5	4,987.50
State	.73.5	12,862.50
	$3,00.0	$52,500.00

In the matter of the tax for school purposes, Mr. Curtis moved that it be fixed at one cent on the $100. Mr. Meysan moved to amend by making it two cents. Mr. Garetson moved a substitute to the effect that no tax apportionment for school purposes be made at all. The amendment and substitute were both rejected, and Mr. Curtis' motion was carried.

Petition to order an appropriation for the repair of Bend City bridge discussed at length. Mr. Curtis submitted a motion that the bridge be moved some fifty rods up the stream and there be rebuilt, cost of same payable out of the regular Road Fund. Garetson and Meysan both decidedly opposed any further expense on said bridge, and so voted on the proposition.

Ordered that Election District No. 13 (Pine Mountain) be abolished, and said District was attached to Big Pine.

Swansea District (No. 7) was also abolished, and attached to Lone Pine.

Lookout Election District (No. 14) was ordered established, with boundaries as follows: Commencing at a point on the boundary line between United States Townships Nos. 17 and 18 at a point where it is intersected by the boundary line between County Townships Nos. 6 and 7, running thence southerly along said last named boundary line to where it intersects Shepherd's Cañon Toll Road (middle of Panamint Valley); thence westerly along said Toll Road to western base of the Argus range of mountains to boundary line between United States Townships Nos. 17 and 18; thence to the point of beginning.

Ordered that a new Election District (No. 15) be established for Lee Mining District, with boundaries as follows: Commencing at intersection of line between United States Townships Nos. 17 and 18 with Range 40 East, thence running north to line between United States Townships Nos. 15 and 16; thence east along said line to Range 41; thence south along said line to its intersection with boundary line between United States Townships 17 and 18; thence west to point of beginning.

Ordered that the northern boundary line af Independence Election District (No. 2) be removed north to a line running east and west midway of U. S. Township No. 12 [being about three miles further north].

Ordered that the Election Notice, together with the Governor's proclamation, be published in THE INYO INDEPENDENT, and that copies of said notice and proclamation be printed and posted at the several polling places.

The following bills were allowed and ordered paid: Supervisor Garrettson, mileage and 6 days' service, $54 80; Supervisor Curtis, mileage and 4 days' service, $42 00; Supervisor Meysan, mileage and 4 days' service, $30 40.

On Wednesday Board adjourned to the regular term in November.

THE MAMMOTH TREE.—The big tree on Bear Creek, which was mentioned in THE INDEPENDENT some time since, and the proposition made by parties to strip the outside of the giant and set it up at the Centennial, has occasioned a number of private inquiries as to its exact size, etc., and in reply we have ascertained and give the following facts: The tree is situated on Bear Creek, a tributary of the north Tule River, and is 48 miles east of Visalia. It is 36 feet in diameter. The project to have it represented at Philadelphia was given up as, we understand, the authorities at Visalia were about to interfere; so the chances are that the old giant will be allowed to remain for the celebraters of the Millennial to cut up and stow curiosities in. Other and larger trees are reported south of Kings River, but no reliance can be placed on the reported size of a tree except from trustworthy information.

JOHN.—Any person answering to the name of John is directed to the Independence Postoffice, as a letter bearing that simple address lies there waiting a claimant. Whether it is intended for "Bones" of the Blaney House, St. John the Baptist or John Chinaman, is an open question. Another letter, this week, came directed to "Independente, Inyo Co., Cal." Very naturally it found its way into THE INDEPENDENT'S box, but it was found that the proper recipient should be a Mr. Summers. Whoever he is had better send for it and spend three cents with the puzzled Postmaster.

DENTISTRY, ETC. — Dr. Stockly is again located at the Blaney, where he holds himself in readiness to perform any and all kinds of dental operations. The Doctor is no stranger to any of our local readers, therefore it is almost superfluous to say that he is a really first-rate operator in his line. He has a most complete set of instruments, among which may be included some costly machinery, with the use of which he is an expert in the repair and manufacture of any kind of small machinery, gear cutting, etc., besides using them in connection with his regular line of business.

GONE TO THE BAY.—Seth G. Sneden of Bishop passed through Wednesday last, on a trip to San Francisco.

THE TAX APPORTIONMENT.—Elsewhere we publish the tax apportionment, together with the respective amounts each is calculated to produce. Holders of warrants on the old general fund are considerably dissatisfied at the smallness of the allowance for that fund, claiming that at such a rate of redemption their warrants will not be paid up in full under nine years. However that may be it is clear that its apportionment could not have been much larger and left a safe margin for the expense fund. It is highly important that that fund should be sufficient to square up all accounts against it at the end of each year, otherwise our county credit would relapse into the same condition it had reached before the adoption of this law. But for this law county warrants on the general fund would not to-day have been worth over 25 or 30 cents, and county expenses would have been increased pretty much in the same inverse ratio. At that rate it is more than probable that the county would have been forced into final bankruptcy. There is hardly a question on that point. However, we do not propose to go over that ground again, and will only add that in face of what was anticipated on the adoption of the present expense fund, an injustice has been done the holders of the old general fund warrants only to the extent of the excess above current expenses allowed for in the apportionment to the expense fund. This excess may be as much as $2,000 or $3,000. It depends wholly upon how many expensive criminal trials we may have. If none, then this surplus will by a change of proportion in the apportionments be so much in favor of the general fund next year, and in that event no injustice worth speaking about has been done to the holders, while the county's credit will be maintained in a way that is highly advantageous to its own economy and financial welfare. If the expense warrants are depreciated because of a deficiency in the funds the county not only has to stand the discount in good part, but continue to pay interest on them as well as those of the general fund, which being paid all the time makes the latter a tolerably desirable investment, even if not redeemed for a year or two later. It ought not to be considered a hardship to wait a little while drawing a regular ten per cent interest on the dollar which originally cost but forty or fifty cents.

OUR LOCAL TELEGRAPH.—Commenting upon our local telegraph project, as mentioned heretofore, the Darwin News of the 30th ultimo remarks: "This is a very commendable enterprise, and THE INYO INDEPENDENT folks are entitled to much credit in being the first to introduce a telegraph into Inyo county. Although the line contemplated is short, still it will prove of much advantage to the people of Independence in many ways, and may yet be the 'connecting link' between the Southern Pacific at Mojave and Carson City. We have written several articles showing the necessity for a telegraph line to connect Darwin with that at Mojave, and our mining companies all appreciate the fact, but, unfortunately, we are just in that transition state when we can illy afford to put up the money for its completion. The time is not far distant, however, when we can; and when it is built we may expect our stocks will not go begging in San Francisco Stock Boards as they do at present. The telegraph is the forerunner of the railroad, and, like the newspaper, brings isolated localities into prominent notice; and when it is found that the country through which it runs is of sufficient importance to justify it, the railroad is at once projected and built. Being so distant from Independence, our county-seat, a telegraph would prove of immense advantage to us, and as a direct line thence would take in Lee, Cerro Gordo, Lone Pine and the Eclipse districts, we think there would be no trouble in raising sufficient capital to build the line from here to that place after we had secured it from the railroad. We are satisfied the valley folks will stand in for their share of the work. We merely write in regard to the line at this time to keep it before the people, because we are aware that all attempts to secure the amount to build it just at present would prove futile. But we dont' think we shall always remain under a cloud."

MINING MEN.—Geo. C. Potter, T. J. P. Lacy and Judge Hogan, all of Oakland, were here this week in connection with the Rex Montis Mining Company's affairs. The principal object of the visit was to effect the purchase of certain interests in the property owned by J. W. Sharp and others here, hitherto worked by the Company under lease, in connection with Mr. Holt's interest. We understand that the gentlemen are very well pleased with the prospects of the mine, and that the parties have agreed upon the terms of sale.

SELLING TARANTULA SAP TO THE INDIANS.—Jésús Mendez, a Mexican, was arrested by the Sheriff on Sunday last for selling whisky to the Indians. He was arraigned before Justice Snelling on the following Tuesday—found guilty and sent up for a hundred days. The prisoner had his choice to pay a $100 fine, but found it convenient to stop awhile and work in the vineyard of the county.

NEW GOLD MINE.—Duncan Campbell, Jr., and other parties are showing some very rich specimens of gold-bearing quartz, taken out near the old Chrysopolis mine, east of Owens River and about 18 miles northeast of Independence. The parties have been prospecting thereabouts for several months. Free gold shows out in globules and streaks in the specimens, but of the size of the ledge we are not advised.

PERSONAL.—Isaac Harris, of Harris & Rhine, with his family started on a trip to the Bay on Wednesday last, accompanied by H. Levy, of the French Restaurant. Mr. Harris has been somewhat indisposed for a month past, and will probably remain below long enough to try the effects of the salt water breezes.

DIDN'T MAKE IT STICK.—Supervisor Meysan felt much encouraged at his luck in gobbling up over $1,000 the past year for thr Lone Pine school district, being the surplus in the fund after that and all the other districts had drawn their regular $500, and being that much more of said surplus than all the others combined. As the law read Lone Pine was entitled to this large surplus, and nobody had any right to growl. But as before stated, Mr. Meysan felt encouraged to try and produce a similar surplus and disposition this year, when the matter of fixing the per centage for school purposes was being considered by the Board, he insisted for some time that it ought to be at least three cents on each $3 of tax. He finally settled down to two cents, and introduced an amendment to Curtis' motion to that effect. Mr. Curtis argued the point, and showed by the records that a tax of one cent was amply sufficient, in addition to the other resources, to produce a small surplus, say $175 over and above the $500 for each district, and, with Mr. Garetson, contended that this county was under no especial obligations to raise a surplus for the especial and exclusive benefit of any school district. Mr. Meysan finally agreed to Mr. Curtis' motion, rightly concluding that half a loaf was better than none. Mr. Garetson voted against the motion, believing that no apportionment for school purposes was required at all. From what we can learn as to the resources for school purposes, which includes delinquent poll taxes, dog taxes, licenses, etc., no apportionment was necessary to produce the $500 for each district, and such being the case Mr. Garrettson was correct in his views. And it is likely if the matter had been more fully discussed that Mr. Curtis would have agreed with him, in which event Mr. Meysan would have been out and injured, notwithstanding his zeal to do something nice for his own particular locality.

FROM DARWIN.—From Jas. Wales, who came in from Darwin yesterday, we have encouraging reports in relation to the Lucky Jim mine. The deeper they go in this mine the more flattering the prospects, and the establishment of that fact is everything for Darwin, proving that she has a bottom not likely to fall out. Wales says they have a body of ore seven or eight feet in width at a depth of over 600 feet that averages on assay from $100 to $150 per ton; and, as it looks now, it will turn into free milling before they reach a much greater depth. But little iron or galena—or what might be termed flux ore—is taken out now; everything of that character seems to lie near the surface. Ned Reddy, Wilson and Woolard returned a a few days since from the Bay, where they left the boss, P. Reddy, who, as we infer, is delayed there by reason of the postponement of the Defiance stock sale. The boys are reported as improved in looks since their spin around the block.

PHOTOGRAPHIC.—All who want photographic pictures taken will bear in mind that the Eastman brothers, artists, will remain here but a very few days longer, after which they go to Lone Pine and Darwin, as stated in their adveitisement elsewhere. We assure our readers that these gentlemen take excellent pictures, and will give perfect satisfaction both as to quality of work and charges. Besides this, they have a very large assortment of picture frames, from common to the finest styles, so that here will also be a good opportunity to obtain frames for old as well as new pictures. The gallery is located in a roomy cloth house nearly opposite the Masonic Hall.

RUNG IN.—Profound astonishment spread, like railroad claims on land plats, over the visage of an initiate in the mysteries of a game of big pete at the Headquarters the other night, when he was dealt a blank card. He exposed his hand by quietly throwing the obnoxious card to one side, with the remark that "anybody who kin read this keerd knows a durn sight," and asked what it was rung in on him for.

REAPPOINTED.—At the late Methodist Annual Conference Rev. L. Case was reappointed to this work, M. W. Pratt to Walker River, and George Jennings to Eureka Mills. J. D. Hammond is the Presiding Elder. Warren Nims, another of our old acquaintances on this circuit, was assigned to Honey Lake, Sierra District, of which A. P. White is Presiding Elder.

SNOW.—Snow fell on the Sierra Nevadas last week, and a slight sprinkle of warm rain in the valley. The last time the clerk of the weather was consulted he had his coat and vest off, and said it was likely to remain pretty hot until November.

THANKS.—The dissipated portion of THE INDEPENDENT are under obligations to Mr. Walters, of the Star Brewery, for a case of lager beer—the other portion of the office always take their barley straight.

SOCIAL DANCE. — Preparations are being made, invitations extended, etc., for quite a grand ball at the Post, to take place on the evening of the 13th (next Friday).

TOO LATE.—Our Benton letter this week just as we were "closing up," this morning, so it will have to go over.

THE Carson and Gold Hill papers of the 4th, received this morning, report the Colorado election on the 3d as having gone Republican.

SAN FRANCISCO is to have her Centennial to-morrow. One hundred years ago, as the records tell, the first settlement was made on the sand-hills of that city.

THE Sutro Tunnel is now in 14,444 feet from the surface to the face of the header.

PIUTE ADRIFT.

CHAPTER II.—THE DESERT.

"A wide domain of mysteries,
And signs that men misunderstand!
A land of space and dreams; a land
Of sea, salt lakes and dried up seas!
A land of caves and caravans,
And lonely wells and pools.
A land that hath its purposes and plans
That seem so like dead Palestine.
Save that its waters have no confine
—Joaquin Miller.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Reno is 293 miles from San Francisco; altitute, 4,507 feet; is situated in the Truckee Meadows, which are 15 miles long and 8 wide. Alfalfa is extensively raised there, and from 8 to 10 tons of hay per acre is cut in a single season. Most of the meadows, years ago, were covered with sagebrush, which proves how suitable that sort of land is for alfalfa. Thousands of acres in Owens Valley now producing only sagebrush might be thickly covered with alfalfa.

Wadsworth is 328 miles from San Francisco; elevation, 4,077 feet. The railroad company has works here, and a round-house 500 feet of circular length. Huge freight wagons are loaded at this point for Columbus, Belleville and elsewhere. There are a number of lakes in this region—Carson Lake is 40 miles south, and directly south of it is Walker Lake. At Brown Station we pass Humboldt Lake proper, into which flows the Humboldt River. A little southwest of this lies the Humboldt and Carson sink. The waters from Carson Lake flowing nearly east, find their way into this sink. Thus the waters of the two rivers, Humboldt and Carson, each flowing through a small lake, finally meet in the same sink. North of Wadsworth some 21 miles is Pyramid Lake, and east of it is Winnemucca Lake, 26 miles distant, into which Quin's River and other streams empty. They have no visible outlet, and both of them receive the waters of the Truckee River. North of Pyramid is Mud Lake, another sink of the great Nevada desert.

Humboldt Station is 423 miles from San Francisco, with an elevation of 4,236 feet above the sea. It is remarkable what fine taste is displayed at some of these solitary houses on this vast desert. For the benefit of Owens Valley farmers and others, allow Piute to mention a few facts noticeable at the Humboldt House. East of the house locust and poplar trees grow finely. A field of alfalfa is close by, which is cut from five to seven times a year. In the garden a variety of vegetables grow luxuriantly. The average yield of potatoes is 300 bushels per acre. There is also an orchard of apple trees six years old, bearing good fruit; also peaches, pears, plums and cherries are raised. In the orchard is a fish pond 25 or 30 feet in diameter where, thick and shy, fine speckled trout are sporting. Rocky coves have been built for them in the bottom and center of the basin, and here they seek shade from the rays of the hot Summer sun.

In the midst of the Great Desert, with alkali, barrenness and desolation surrounding, these successful experiments prove that, with enterprise, labor and water, the desert can be reclaimed and "made to bud and blossom like the rose." Yes, water is essentially necessary, and where can you find a better watered country than Owens Valley? What beautiful and attractive homes could be made there, where you have an abundance of water—purling streams continually flowing.

CHAPTER III.

Ogden, the junction of the Union and Central Pacific Railroads, is 883 miles from San Francisco, and 1,043 miles from Omaha; elevation 4,340 feet above sea level. This is the second city in size and population in Utah. It is the shire town of Weber county; has a $20,000 brick Court House, three churches and a Mormon Tabernacle. Besides being the terminus of the two great transcontinental lines, Ogden is also the starting point of the Utah Central Railroad and the Utah Northern Railroad. Salt Lake is the southern terminus of the Utah Central—the whole line being 36½ miles long. Another railroad is the Utah Southern, it being a continuation of the Central. There is "heap talk" of extending the Utah Southern to the Pacific Coast—to Los Angeles or probably Santa Monica. This will be a pleasant route in Winter, avoiding the deep snows of the Sierras. However, Owens Valley farmers may have serious objections to a railroad.

Utah is very productive. Whole fields of wheat produce from 50 to 60 bushels per acre, 25 being the average. The population of the Territory is said to be about 125,000, and its area 84,000 square miles, or 54,000,000 acres. Still only a small quantity, comparatively, is susceptible of cultivation—deserts and mountains constitute a vast area. Salt Lake City has a population of about 30,000, and having rich mineral and agricultural resources, with its railroad to the coast, sometime some enthusiasts prophecy that the city in ten years will number 250,000 people. What will Inyo number then? Salt Lake is a wonderful body of water, its extreme length being 80 miles, width about 50. Reliable men say that in 1850 three barrels of its water evaporated would make one of salt; now four barrels are required to produce the same result, which proves that its saline character is lessening. The elevation of the lake is 4,200 feet above the sea. The elevation of the city is given at 4,351, a difference of 151 feet; hence, there need be no apprehension of an inundation of the city during our life time.

Going east we soon come to Evanston, in Wyoming Territory. Its distance from Omaha is 757 miles, elevation 6,770 feet. This is quite a large and lively place, on account of coal mines, lumber interests, machine shops, etc., which give employment to a large number of men. The town is built on the banks of Bear River. This stream beats our own Owens River for fish. The streams flowing into it (Bear River) north and south of the town are also full of trout. Game is also plenty in the vicinity. They say that Bear Lake, 60 miles north, is the "chosen home of trout, and the very paradise of fishermen."

Alma, three miles from Evanston, is the coal miners' town, where extensive coal mines, owned by the Central and Union Pacific Railroads, are worked. They have mined in one year as much as 150,000 tons of coal. How would a six-foot vein of this coal operate on the rich smelting ores of Inyo and Mono?

Forty-one miles north of Evanston valuable mines are worked. The company claim that they have a mountain of coal. It is thus described: "The veins on the ground level are 4½ feet thick; above it there is about 6 feet of slate; then a 10-foot vein of coal; then sandstone 5 feet thick; then 3 feet of fire-clay; then 2 feet of coal; then alternate layers of fire-clay and coal 26 feet; then 125 feet of solid fire-clay; then sandstone, limestone, etc., to the summit, it being about 400 feet above the level surface around it. A shaft has been sunk from the ground level, and another vein of coal struck 10 feet from the surface. A large number of ovens for cokeing purposes are in operation. This coal produces 50 per cent of coke, which is used for smelting. Before many years the steam horse will bring vast quantities of coal and smelting ores in contact.

Treaty with Spotted Tail.

Press advices from Spotted Tail Agency, September 23, via Sydney, Nebraska, September 26, have the following: A treaty with the Indians at this agency was concluded this evening, after a three hours' council. Spotted Tail made another lengthy speech, in which he insisted upon going down to Indian Territory first, to look at the country, and then go to Washington and talk with the Great Father before he would touch the pen. At the same time he wished to delay signing the treaty until he heard the war was satisfactorily and peacefully settled. He said: "I wish to have two men help me—Bishop Whipple and the Rev. Hinman—to settle the matter. You have the words of the Great Spirit, ahd you try to live according to his will. You know this war is a great trouble and does not please the Great Spirit, and I want you to help me. I would like to have some female ministers [the lecherous brute] dressed in black clothes to receive the girls in one house and teach them, and have white ministers dressed in black pants and coat to take the boys to another house and teach them. Tell these ministers I want to get names of the things sent us, and when they come to see what they are."

"Three Blue Teeth." Spotted Tail's father-in-law, wanted to know who was the one to carry their words to the Great Father, and upon Solicitor General Gaylord being pointed out to him, handed him a handsomely decorated pipe and tobacco pouch, which he said the Great Spirit has given him. He told Gaylord to tell them at Washington who he heard speak at the council, and ask the Great Father to be merciful to the Indians and pity them, and help them to remain in their own country.

Speeches were made by several other Indians, and by Judge Gaylord, Col. Boone and Bishop Whipple; but the Indians were still undecided when Spotted Tail addressed his people, saying: "If our friends belonging to Red Cloud had not signed we would help them, but as your friends up there have signed I will sign, and I want all good men who are trustworthy to come up and sign."

A half an hour later the necessary signatures were attached and the treaty made. The Indians all want the present agent removed and Howard restored.

COOLNESS OF BISMARCK.—The coolness and readiness of Bismarck, the German Chancellor, is one of the sources of his strength. He is never caught unprepared. No sooner does the occasion arise for speech or action than the speech is uttered and the deed done. Gen. Von Moltke's motto is, "Erst wagen, dann wagen," which may be freely translated "Ponder and dare" (first to ponder, then to dare; literally, first weigh, then wage). Bismarck seems to have joined to this motto Macbeth's words:

——"'T were well
It was done quickly."

An incident in his first diplomatic mission illustrates his cool readiness. In 1851 he was appointed Prussian Ambassador to the German Confederation at Frankfort-on-the-Main. The Austrian Ambassador, who was also President of the august body, was haughty, arrogant and disposed to make the Prussian representative feel his relative inferiority. At Bismarck's first visit of ceremony, the Austrian received him in his shirt-sleeves. Bismarck, as soon as he caught sight of the coatless President, called out, "You are quite right, Excellency; it is awfully hot here!" and coolly pulled off his own coat. The Austrian, completely taken aback, jumped up, flung on his uniform, and apologized to the Prussian for his inadvertence.

INCOME TAX SUITS.—A Washington date of September 27 has the following: Internal Revenue Commissioner Raum has issued circular letters to United States Attorneys in Philadelphia, New York, Chicago, Cincinnati, Milwaukee and other important collection districts in various cities of the country, authorizing them to institute suits against all parties against whom evidence can be presented of not having paid the whole or any portion of the income taxes due the Government under the law. Numbers of persons are liable to suits for such recovery from the date at which this tax first went into effect, and the Commissioner entertains the opinion that the result of this action will be to recover a considerable sum of money to the Government. The consolidation of the various internal revenue districts, recently decided upon, will be perfected on the 1st of October, and the new order will then go into effect.

A WEST HILL man went into the kitchen last night without a lamp, to wash his hands, and while grooping about for a towel he ran plump into the arms of the hired girl. "Why, Maggie," he chuckled, "you darling little witch;" and then he held her and crowded his moustache under her reluctant nose. Just then the lamp-lighter touched off a lamp on the side street, and by the flickering rays that fell through the kitchen window the West Hill man knew his wife's aunt, who is visiting them. He started for the Black Hills at midnight.—Burlington Hawkeye.

SOME people are too trusting for this world. At a recent trial the prisoner entered a plea of "not guilty," when one of the jurymen put on his hat and started for the door. The judge called him back, and informed him that he could not leave until the case was tried. "Tried?" queried the juror, "why, he acknowledges that he is not guilty."

A VERY sympathetic gentleman went into a jail, and while looking about among the inmates he saw one fine-looking fellow whom he pitied most sincerely. "How came you in here?" said the s. g. to the jail-bird. "Oh, I came in here to get out of the crowd," replied the tender youth.

CALIFORNIA'S BEST PRODUCTION.

Yerba Buena Bitters.

The Great Cathartic and Regulator.

Purely a Vegetable Compound!

Harmless but Powerful!

MESSRS. WILLIAMS & CO.—GENTLEMEN: It is with pleasure I indorse your YERBA BUENA BITTERS. I have never found such instant and permanent relief as from the use of your most invaluable compound. I have been subjected to costiveness and a torpid liver for five years, and am now entirely cured, after using only two bottles of your YERBA BUENA. I am certain that it was YERBA BUENA that cured me of the palpitation of the heart. I am happy to state through the use of your BITTERS I am a well man. Anything to be convinced of the above, I will give you my residence: 209 Diedesdorff street, San Francisco. JOHN R. STEERE.

MESSRS. H. WILLIAMS & CO.: Dear Sirs—As long as I can remember, I have been troubled with Pin Worms, and at times felt as if I was being devoured alive. Early in March, 1875, I was induced to use your YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and within One Month I was entirely cured. I have not been troubled with them since, and am satisfied that I am PERMANENTLY cured. I think it is the best preparation for Constipation and Billious Troubles known.

A. B. HOWARD,
No. 12 Quincy street, San Francisco.

I take pleasure in recommending the YERBA BUENA BITTERS. I have used three bottles and found more relief from them than anything I have ever used. I had been troubled with Constipation of the Bowels, Torpid Liver and general debility for a long time, and found no relief until the YERBA BUENA BITTERS cured me.

S. BROOKS, Petaluma.

Seeking health on the Pacific Coast, my attention was called to Dr. Warren's YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and took some for headache, which cured me so perfectly that I bought a bottle and have not taken any other medicine since. It is a perfect cure for any derangement of the stomach or constipation, and I recommend it before any other medicine, as it leaves the system in a healthy state and no dieting is necessary. Please send your Bitters all over the world, for it will be a blessing to humanity beyond the power of words to express. I write you freely and from actual experience CYRUS CUMMINGS,

Land Cases, Land Warrants, and Scrip.

Contested Land Cases prosecuted before the U. S. General Land Office and Department of the Interior. Private Land Claims, Mining and Pre-emption Claims, and Homestead Cases attended to. Land Scrip in 40, 80, and 160 acre pieces for sale. This scrip is assignable, and can be located in the name of purchaser upon any Government land subject to private entry, at $1 25 per acre. It is of equal value with Bounty Land Warrants. Send stamp to Gilmore & Co., for pamphlet of instruction.

Arrears of Pay and Bounty.

Officers, Soldiers and Sailors of the late war, or their heirs, are in many cases, entitled to money from the Government of which they have no knowledge. Write full history of service, and state amount of pay and bounty received. Enclose stamp to Gilmore & Co., and a full reply, after examination, will be given you free.

Pensions.

All Officers, Soldiers, and Sailors, wounded, ruptured, or injured in the late war, however slightly, can obtain a pension by addressing Gilmore & Co.

Cases prosecuted by Gilmore & Co., before the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Claims, and the Southern Claims Commission.

Each department of our business is conducted in a separate bureau, under charge of the same experienced parties employed by the old firm. Prompt attention to all business entrusted to Gilmore & Co. is thus secured. We desire to win success by deserving it.

PIUTE ADRIFT.

CHAPTER IV.—THE PLAINS.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Having left the great desert, salt lakes and coal mines, we now speed our way across the mighty plains.

"The solemn silence of that plain,
Where unmanned tempests ride and reign.
It awes and it possesses you—
'Tis, oh, so eloquent."

The great Laramie Plains have an average width of 40 miles and are 100 miles in length. They comprise an area of over 2,500,000 acres of rich grazing land. Those sturdy veterans who, before the railroad was built, plodded their way across the plains with ox or mule teams, may not be averse to learn of the rapid strides, made of late years, on these plains and prairies. Laramie, called the "Gem City of the Mountains," is located on the Laramie River, in the midst of the plains, and has about 3,000 people. Large machine and repair shops, belonging to the Union Pacific Railroad Company, are located here. The Company's mills, which are rerolling the worn out rails brought here for that purpose, give employment to about 300 men. A variety of rich minerals have been discovered within a radius of 30 miles. From its mining and manufacturing capacities, it is thought that Laramie will eventually become one of the largest cities on the railroad in Wyoming. The Laramie plains are claimed to be a paradise for sheep. Considerable capital has been invested in sheep husbandry there, which pays well.

After we leave Laramie we come to a light, airy looking structure called the Dale Creek bridge, built of wood. Its length is 650 feet, and hight 130.

We now climb the Rocky Mountains—"the back bone of the Continent." The station on the summit is Sherman, called after Gen. Sherman, the tallest General in the service. This station is 549 miles from Omaha, elevation 8,242 feet above sea level. This was the highest railroad point in the world, but higher points have lately been reached by rail in South America. The highest on the Central Pacific is Summit Station, 7,017 feet above the sea. The ascent is so gradual up the Rocky Mountains that we were surprised when told of being on the "tip top." Comparing these mountains with the rugged, abrupt Sierras, the great "Rockies" don't seem much like mountains. Should Wyoming boast of her huge mountains we'll have to introduce to her notice one of our own snow-clads—Mount Whitney or the 15,000-foot Fisherman's Peak.

The distance from Laramie to Sherman is 23 miles, and the average grade is 50 feet to the mile, while the maximum grade of any one mile is 90 feet. We now go down hill toward Cheyenne, the average grade being 67 feet. Cheyenne ("the Magic City of the Plains") is 33 miles from Sherman, 6,041 feet elevation. Several years ago Cheyenne was a rendezvous for roughs and desperadoes, which gave it the sobriquet of "Hell on Wheels"—but the Vigilantes hung up a dozen cut-throats, an operation which purified the atmosphere. Cheyenne now is a large and prosperous city, with elegant and substantial buildings, and is the capital of Wyoming Territory.

The Denver Pacific Railroad runs direct from Cheyenne southward to Denver, Colorado, a distance of 106 miles.

In the next letter we'll trot briskly through to Omaha.

TINNEMUCKAHEE.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 28.

MESSRS. EDITORS—The commencement of the grand match between the Irish, Scoth, Australian and American Rifle Teams, which took place near this city, yesterday morning, was the event of the day; the banquet given them at the Arlington by the Citizens' Committee was the event of the night. Owing to the inclemency of the weather, the attendance at the day's event was small, but all who were invited manfully braved the storm and honored the occasion by their presence. A rehearsal of all the witty things that were said and done would furnish a volume that might well dispute the palm with "Tom Brown's Jest Book," and the outbursts of patriotism and international love flowed in an uninterrupted stream, keeping pace with if not outstripping the flow of wine from the bottles. Altogether it was a joyous occasion, and most of them were "happy." The President and family are expected to reach home about the middle of next week; Mr. and Mrs. Sartoris will arrive here the day after to-morrow. The President was invited to be present at the reception given the Rifle Teams, but as a darkey would say "He done make prev'us 'gagement fo' hand," and consequently was compelled to decline.

Nineteen million fifty-eight thousand two hundred and fifty-two dollars in silver coin has been paid out of the Treasury for the redemption of fractional currency and in payment of obligations since the 19th of April last, leaving a balance of ten million of coin on hand.

Mrs. James K. Polk, the widow of the President, is living at Nashville, Tennessee, honored and beloved, at an advanced age. Gen. Pennypacker, who has been for some time in command of the Military Department of Tennessee, conveyed the earnest invitation of some of the citizens of Philadelphia to Mrs. Polk to visit the Exposition. They offered to the venerable lady, whom they had known over thirty years ago in this place, the hearty hospitality of their homes, but she declined in graceful and grateful terms.

A special dispatch from Vigo received at New York yesterday says Tweed was removed last evening from his fortress prison to the United States ship Franklin. He offered very little objection to being removed, and was treated with every consideration, the quarters of Rear Admiral case on board the ship being assigned to him. Tweed's companion, Hunt, was taken on board the ship, but almost immediately set at liberty. He has the manner and appearance of a mechanic. In an interview with him after his release he was very reticent, refusing to give the history of their wanderings. He still maintains that his friend Secor is not Wm. M. Tweed. After leaving the ship he immediately went to see a friend at the Hotel Europa, who was registered there under the name of R. Sands. Sands is said by a Spaniard who knew him in New York to be Tweed's son-in-law. There is much opposition here to the surrender of Tweed to the American authorities, and the action of the Government was almost universally condemned. The Franklin may be expected in New York in three weeks.

The Sioux has been at last dragooned into signing a treaty. Blue Teeth, Spotted Tail's father-in-law, wanted to know who was to carry their words to the great father, and upon Gen. Gaylord being pointed out he handed him a handsomely decorated pipe and tobacco pouch, and asked him to present them to the great father at Washington (wonder if he ever heard the popular accusation of the great father's high appreciation of presents?), as from a man he heard speak at the great council, and ask the great father to be merciful to the Indians, pity them, help them and let them remain in their own country. Two Strikes said the reason why we are afraid to touch the pen and are silent before you is becase we have been deceived so many times before; if we knew the words you were telling us were true we would be willing to sign every day. The Cherokee and other civilized Indians in the Indian Territory are greatly excited over the proposed removal of the Sioux into that country. They say the Government is again proposing to violate the treaty made with them by removing these Indians to their country without their consent. I am inclined to think if these Indians were a powerful nation we should have less trouble with them.

SAXON.

CREMATED.—H. S. Thomas, who returned from Hardyville a few days ago, reports the death and cremation of the mother of Macadow, a noted captain of the Mojave tribe. The "wake" was kept up for several days, during which time fourteen fine horses, the property of the relatives of the deceased, were burned. It is the custom of the tribe to burn all the effects of the relatives of the deceased at the time of death. In this instance a large amount of property was consumed, as the Macadow family for some years past had been unusually healthy, and consequently accumulated considerable wealth. Besides the fourteen horses mentioned, several tons of mescal, a large quanfity of seeds, a considerable sum in silver coin, and all the provisions and clothing of the relatives of deceased were consumed. Even the clothing they were wearing when they commenced their march around the funeral pyre helped to feed the flames, and the mourners returned to their homes as naked as when they came into the world.—Wallapai Enterprise, Sept. 23.

THE ELECTION.

As a matter of course the election news expected this morning was looked for by all with great interest. That received is by no means conclusive, and may be summed up for our columns in a few words. Ohio has undoubtedly gone Republican. Barnes for Controller, being duly elected by about 4,000, while Boyton for Judge on the same ticket, gets from 8,000 to 10,000—the Republicans gaining five new Congressmen. There is nothing reliable from Indiana at all. Both parties claim it, but the chances are that Harrison, Republican for Governor, will be elected by a small majority while the rest of the State ticket will be Democratic. The Republicans, however, claim to be assured of three new Congressmen in this State, also. The Republicans also claim the election of their Governor in West Virginia—the rest of the ticket being Democratic. It will be born in mind that the reports in relation to both the latter States are not to be considered as reliable. There seems to be no question as to Ohio. Our latest dates are to the 11th, only one day after the election. The Presidential fight is not yet decided by any means.

A SKIRMISH WITH INDIANS.—News from Fort Fetterman states that on the 6th instant a haying party of twelve men and seven ox teams were attacked by a band of twenty or thirty Indians, twenty-five miles from the above post, badly wounding John Ottens, wagon master, and killing one horse. Two of the party were out hunting and about 8 o'clock heard the Indian war song and hastened to the train, which was immediately prepared for defense. Four of the men started to find the Indians, which they did and made a lively retreat, hotly pursued by the Indians to within fifty yards of the train, when eight men sent a volley into the reds, who retreated to the shelter of the bluffs and commenced firing upon the train, which was at a disadvantage and was compelled to move 200 yards. The fight continued nearly four hours. The number of Indians killed is unknown—two were seen to drop. Mr. Powell, contractor, states that the Indians showed great courage and were strongly armed with Winchester and army rifles. The telegraph line between Fort Fetterman and Cheyenne was cut about the same time, it is thought, by the same band. Ottens is doing nicely, but will undoubtedly lose his right arm.

THE intolerant course of the Spanish Government has aroused the Protestant missionary and Bible societies. A deputation from these has waited upon Lord Derby, who says he does not think the Government will insist upon closing the Protestant schools. No Protestant school or place of worship is allowed to display a sign. This, however, ought not to be considered a hardship, for with us churches do not generally display their own names on signs, but rather those of their sextons and undertakers.

CARRYING on Sunday schools in Sicily is a work of considerable difficulty. It is impossible to introduce the American system of classes for want of teachers. No lady teachers are to be had, for ladies are not expected to go out without male escort, and husbands, fathers and beaux do not generally take the trouble to act as escort. In Messina there is a flourishing Sunday school of over fifty children, but it is conducted entirely by one clergyman. He gathers the whole company together and lectures them on the lesson.

JAY GOULD and Sidney Dillon are expected on this coast in a few weeks for the purpose of examining into the affairs of the Utah Central railroad and Pacific Mail Steamship company. Not long since it was stated that Gould had perfected arrangements with the Central Pacific company, by which their road would be continued as the outlet to the Pcific for the Union Pacific and all its eastern connecting lines. Such being the fact, as is quite probable, our hopes of his powerful aid in a through extension of the Los Angeles and Independence road end right there.

AMERICA is declared on British authority to be at present the arbiter of the price of wheat. Should our merchants decline to ship at the current prices, nothing, it is said, can prevent higher rates in the English markets. This assurance means many million dollars in our farmers' pockets.

THE statue of Gen. McPherson will be unveiled at Washington on the 19th instant, during the meeting of the Army of the Tennessee. Gen. Logan will deliver the oration.

PATENT INSIDES.

The poor deluded readers of Eastern country papers are made to wade through a wilderness of flaming circus illustrations, quack doctor advertisements and stale news taken from the city weeklies—pay their $2 subscription and imagine their local editor is possessed of brains and intelligence, and that they are contributing toward the support of a home institution. Local advertisers insert their modest little cards—pay about four times the rates that are charged the black-mailing city quacks, the cheeky sewing machine man or the irrepressible lighting-rod peddler, by the association in the city who run the patent bowels arrangement—still the local advertiser is happy (in his ignorance) in the conviction that he is supporting a strictly local paper and receiving his money's worth by patronizing one of the greatest humbugging systems ever conceived by the newspaper fraternity.

The farming community and in fact a large porportion of all classes in the State of Illinois will support a paper published in a town of 4,000 or 6,000 inhabitants, and printed on the one side of the entire sheet in Chicago with stale romances, cheap John advertisements, etc., and think because they get a large sheet and a big print that their local jackass of an editor is ably discussing all the important issues of the day. Our spicy little California and Nevada papers which are made up at home and out of home brains and backed up with a shot-gun, are compared with their big circus poster bed-quilts and the Eastern man is amazed at our rates and at the condensed domestic news spread before him on such a diminutive sheet of paper.

The gigantic fraud perpetrated upon merchants and others who pay their money for local advertising, needs not explaining. The manner in which political news is served up may be seen in the subjoined taken from the Mendota (Ill.), Bulletin; that paper, however, like its cotemporary—the News—is printed on one side in Chicago, over 80 miles distant, and is received every week with its entrails nicely crammed with defunct matter taken from the city papers hours after the latter is in the mail—and all this in a land of telegraphs and railroads:

"Our cotemporary, the Mendota News, seems at last to have struck its political affinity—having been, within the last twelve months—first, Neutral—next Independent, with strong Democratic leanings—then a straight-out Republican organ—until last week, when it suddenly ignores all its previous political proclivities, and comes out red-hot and flat-footed for 'Alex. Campbell and the greenback party' on its first page—and yet flies the full Republican ticket (including Hays, of Morris, for Congress) on its second page!"

COLORADO AND GEORGIA.—The first reports of grand Republican successes in Colorado were subsequently denied, on the authority of the Chairman of the Colorado Democratic State Central Committee. Accounts, mostly official, show that fifteen counties give an aggregate Republican majority of 2,415. Seven counties show an aggregate Democratic majority of 1,170. There were on the 9th yet four counties to hear from, but none of these have to exceed 200 votes, so that no material changes are possible. According to the above showing then the Republicans elect their State ticket by a net majority of 1,248. The Republicans have about two-thirds of both houses of the Legislature. The Georgia election of the same date may be summed up by saying that it went about 80,000 Democratic, there not being a Republican elected to any office in the State. No disturbances of any kind are reported as having attended this election.

ANOTHER WHISKY THIEF AT LIBERTY. A New York dispatch of the 9th says that the President has commuted the sentence of James Rehm from six months imprisonment and $10,000 fine to three months and $1,000, and that Rehm, having paid the fine, was released from the county jail, where he has been imprisoned. The commutation was made in accordance with a petition signed by 5,000 citizens representing both political parties, and upon the representation and recommendation of District Attorney Bangs and Judge Blodgett.

WENDELL PHILLIPS told the Woman Suffrage meeting at Faneuil Hall that seven-tenths of the husbands are frauds. He didn't say what the other three-tenths are, and nobody had the courage to ask him.

THE subscription fund for the benefit of the family of the murdered bank cashier at Northfield, Minnesota, has already reached $11,000.

A BLOODY battle is reported between the Turks and Montenegrins, in which the former lost 8,500 killed.

THE Moody and Sankey revival meetings at Chicago continue to be largely attended.

ARTICLES of incorporation of the Los Angeles and San Diego Railroad Company were filed October 9.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO LETTER.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9.

MESSRS. EDITORS—"The rich man also died and was buried." Since the original discourse in holy writ, perhaps this has not been used as a text for any funeral oration, and yet it is not the most inappropriate one which might be used on such occasion. As your correspondent watched the funeral cortege of James Lick in its passage toward the Pavilion, where the last services were to be held, this rang upon the air as persistently as the mournful refrain of Poe's raven. "The rich man also died and was buried," and a friend near by helped the suggestive train of thought by saying, "I am richer now than James Lick. I have life, vigor and this beautiful world, and he has only a magnificent coffin." The Pioneers were in attendance in very large numbers, but aside from that there was no display to speak of. We learn by telegraph that the son of the deceased millionaire is on his way to San Francisco, and that "he knows what he is going to do." In due time the public will doubtless be enlightened upon this point. Opinions are divided in respect to the final destination of the property, but the prevailing impression is that it is very doubtful if his great bequests are confirmed. It would be quite as easy to establish his insanity as it was that of the late Horace Hawes, as his eccentricities were quite as strongly marked. Then the appointing and removing of so many trustees will create confusion, the books, deeds and other papers having never passed into the hands of the last named Board, and John Lick having never resigned as trustee on the second Board, so that there is a strong possibility of the last named gentleman coming in for the bulk of the estate. He is said to resemble his father in many particulars, and to possess a character quite as eccentric and strongly marked.

For the benefit of your lady readers, I can say that pinbacks are tighter than ever. Rumor says that for the Winter season the fair sex are to be invested in full suits of buckskin underwear, made in masculine fashion, to give the desired slimness of figure, combined with warmth. Underskirts will in consequence be discarded, The trimming on the dress skirt will be entirely wanting, or as compact as possible, and the long polonaise will reach almost to the bottom of the skirt. The general aspect of a lady of fashion at present much resembles a bird common in our woods, slim and jet black as to its body, the only color visible being a spot of bright scarlet on its crested head. What occupation the dyers will have this Fall in bringing to the prevailing blackness of dark, darkness the pale grays and browns of those who must be in the fashion and cannot afford to cast aside the half worn suits of the past season. Even light gloves are displaced by black ones, white collars and ruches disappear, white cuffs and wrist ruffles give place to black bracelets, and one wonders at last whether this new sombreness of attire is not an astute political dodge to ruin the celestial laundryman and drive him from the land.

Meantime the health officers of San Francisco are purifying him by the gradual process of fumigation, and one may now, if never before, shrink from an approach to the Chinese quarter, when this new odor is added to the thousand and one already prevailing there. The health of the city is good, and we hear of no new cases of small-pox. The hotels and boarding houses are filling up by those returning from the country or from more extended tours, to go into Winter quarters.

The latest sensation is fashionable circles is the abrupt departure of Alfred Van Mehr for Mexico, having in his possession $30,000 of his employers' money, and a frail fair one with whom he had for some months been engaged in riotous living.

The export of wheat for the month of September is the largest on record from this port, amounting to 1,635,235 centals, making a total for this year thus far of 3,225,957 centals, valued at $5,044,882.

The mint coinage for September amounted to $4,000,000, of which $450,000 were trade dollars.

Wells, Fargo & Co. report that for the three months ending on September 30th they have received of treasure $17,021,011, and shipped $15,269,577.

Bonded sugar is still being reshipped to Honolulu. Since my last I am informed by a resident of the Islands that the sale of several large crops by Hawaiian planters to Claus Spreckles was almost compulsory—he declared that if they refused to sell him their crops he would ruin them—that he could do it, and would, if he had to spend a quarter of a million to accomplish it.

It is a singular thing that a man with such far-reaching business qualifications as Mr. C. P. Huntington should have such a bad memory. In his testimony in the Cohen case, a few days ago, he could not recollect any important fact except that the building of the Central Pacific cost $150,000,000. He didn't recollect whether or not he received $100,000 as his share of the San Francisco and Alameda bonds. Didn't recollect whether or not Messrs. Stanford and Crocker were members of the Contract and. Finance Company, nor how much he received as his share of railroad stock issued to said company. He did not know even what the capital stock of the Contract and Finance Company was, though he supposed they had a capital stock. All he seemed to know was that the Central Pacific Railroad cost $200,000 a mile, while the average cost of railroads in the United States is only $54,000 a mile. What a convenient thing a bad memory sometimes is.

Jennie Niell, a fair but frail creature, residing at No. 51 Fifth street, is lying at the point of death, with three bullets in various parts of her body, while her infatuated lover, Thomas D. Niec, languishes in prison for attempted murder. Niec was a night watchman at the mint, and made the acquaintance of Jennie some two months ago. His passion grew upon him to such an extent that it culminated Friday night in a resolution to either possess her wholly or kill her. As it is, Jennie will die a slow, lingering death, and Thomas will lie in jail a year and be acquitted on the ground of insanity.

Mrs. Emily F. Edwards places the damages of her blasted hopes at $50,000, and Robert P. Keating, aided by half a dozen lawyers, is defending himself in the United States Circuit Court, against the buxom Emily's claim. A brief history of the case may not be uninteresting: In 1858 Miss Emily, then 15 or 16 years of age, married Mr. Edwards, at Grass Valley. He was old enough to be her father, and cross as a grizzly bear. The marriage was unhappy, and a separation was the result, Emily taking their child with her. Meantime Keating, ardent, amorous and apparantly loving and sincere, sought by all a suitor's wiles to win the undivorced widow's heart, finally succeeded—the time for the happy union being fixed at rather an indefinite period, namely, when she had obtained a divorce and he had made $100,000. Both these events came around, however, after some years of waiting, and Emily was counting the days and weeks lying between her and happiness, when, to the shame of all lovers be it said, Bob went and married another girl. Now Emily wants $50,000, and she ought to get it.

The political pot is boiling in San Francisco. Meetings of both political parties are held nightly, in overflowing halls and club rooms, while bonfires, brass bands, long torch light processions and a shouting populace add to the general enthusiasm. Running the political machine in this city must cost money, a "barrel o' money," if your correspondent is a judge of such matters.

Yesterday, October 8, 1876, was our Centennial, it being 100 years since Father Juniper Serre founded the Mission of San Francisco, subsequently known as the Mission Dolores. The day was appropriately observed by a grand possession in which some forty Catholic and Military Societies participated. At 9 o'clock the various societies began to assemble at the Mission. At 10 o'clock pontificial and high military mass was celebrated, and sermons in English and Spanish were delivered. The procession was then formed, extending over four miles in length, and after marching through the principal streets was reviewed in front of the Pavilion. Exercises of an interesting character were then held in the Pavilion, including orations by Hon. J. W. Dwinelle and Gen. Vallejo. It was a gala day in San Francisco.

The most successful theater season ever known on this coast has resulted from the engagement of Edwin Booth. If the attenadnce should keep up during the present week as it has through the past five weeks, it is safe to estimate the receipts of a six weeks season at not less than $120,000.

The Vienna Female Orchestra, composed of twenty-two young and beautiful feminines, are at Salt Lake on their way to this coast.

Threatened Indian Outbreak.

Dispatches from Leavenworth, Kansas, dated on the 5th, give the following: Reports received here indicate that there are fears of a general uprising among the Ute Indians in Colorado, as the warriors of that tribe have been for some time in a doubtful attitude, and some fear of an outbreak has been felt in New Mexico. The Indians of that section have made several warlike demonstrations, and have collided with the United States troops more than once. From information received from New Mexico it is extremely probable that the red devils will indulge in a general insurrection as soon as an opportunity offers, as they are without doubt one of the most treacherous tribes on the continent. Sheriff Giles, of La Platte county, telegraphs from Parrott City to Governor Roult asking for assistance, saying that the Utes number full 2,000 and are about to make a raid. Col. Hatch, Commander of the New Mexico District, also telegraphed to Governor Roult from Santa Fé, saying, if he so authorized him, he would issue arms to the citizens, as the inhabitants of La Platte, Los Anamos and Parrott City were afraid of an immediate outbreak. Gov. Roult telegraphed to Gen. Pope at Fort Leavenworth informing him of the state of affairs, and asking him to authorize Col. Hatch to issue arms to the citizens, but received a reply to the effect that only the President could authorize him to do so. Gen. Pope, however, stated that Col. Hatch had enough troops at Fort Union, Wingate and Garland to suppress an outbreak, should any occur. This is the way the matter stands at present.

South Carolina.

A special to the New York Tribune, dated on the 7th, says: Gov. Chamberlain's fears are well founded. South Carolina is practically in a condition of war. The old rebel element is coming to the front again with their old passions and prejudices and ready for the old work. They boast that they are better prepared to fight now than in 1861. They have organized to overcome the negro majority of 80,000, and no violence or murder if necessary will be omitted to accomplish this work, unless restrained by the general Government. There are likely to be such scenes in South Carolina during the present campaign as will make free institutions a mockery and burlesque. Whenever the Republicans attempt to hold a meeting these Democratic clubs ride in, all armed, to the number of a thousand or more, and claim half the time. This works very well until a Republican attempts to speak, and then they commence yelling and cursing, completely drowning his voice. The situation is very grave. The result seems to be a choice between yielding to armed mobs or to crush them by force. The civil authorities have given it up and are even afraid to ask for troops for fear of being killed. When the troops are removed the white men shoot down negroes in open day, and not only own, but boast of it, and yet escape arrest, though remaining at home.

Universal Suffrage.

Our system permits a mere numerical superiority to "lord it" over the minority. It counts for nothing that the minority may be in the right, that its principles may reflect the true interests of the country and the better sentiment of mankind. The mere force of votes paralyzes and defeats it. The purchased vote of the ignorant wretch who cannot distinguish one letter from another offsets that of the most conscientious and enlightened citizen; and as our country increases in population, the art of controlling this ignorant and purchasable vote will be reduced to a science, and the best thought and element of the country will be found in the minority. This is that to which the "despotism of universal suffrage" is leading us, and until we accept the fact that all the people, minorities as well as majorities, should be represented in the political power of the country, it will be possible to decide important Presidential elections just as it is believed this one will be decided by the influence of a contest which bears no logical relation to the great question at issue. It would be a source of great gratification to the friends of independent thought and fixed principles if the event should disappoint those who claim that next Tuesday's contest in Indiana will decide the Presidential election. That would show that the people of the Union generally held opinions of their own, and that their judgment was deduced from a higher standard of principles than that derived from a desire to be on the strongest side.

TAXES AND MONEY GRABBERS.—Great complaint is heard of the burden of taxes in this city and in most of the counties of the State. We do not wonder at it. Several years ago an Act of the Legislature provided that all property should be listed at its full cash valuation—the poor man's shanty and the rich man's palace, the widow's ten-acre farm and the monopolist's one hundred thousand-acre rancho. For one year the law worked tolerably. In every case the poor had paid on full cash value. But in a year or two it was found that the rich, the land monopolists, the water and gas and railway corporations, the owners of palaces built upon capital begged, borrowed or stolen, the dead-beats of the body politic, who want protection for their property and are always demanding new improvements at the public cost, were shirking and making false returns, and throwing the great burden of the State and municipal government upon the owners of small properties. This is the present situation and the explanation in part of the high taxes. These monopolists, who want to own all the land, water, light and transportation of the State, and who live in palaces built with other people's money, and who are eternally clamoring for greater protection, have in the aggregate not less than $150,000,000 worth of property not taxed at one-sixth of its cash value, while the common people and the poor are assessed up to the highest figures on their cottages and cows and small properties.—S. F. Chronicle.

WATERMELON VINEGAR. — Solomon Jewett, now a resident of Vermont, writes to the World as follows: About ten years ago, while on a sheep ranch, 165 miles back from Los Angeles, Cal., from whence we received our supplies, I took a 40-gallon oaken cask, and filled it with ripe, or nearly ripe, watermelons, all being bruised to a pulp or into quite small fragments, with a wooden pounder, as they were thrown in. Then the head was replaced, and every day we changed ends; one resting on the ground. In a little time the rinds of the melons changed to a pulp, and the whole mass was formed into a pleasant but not strong vinegar. But by the addition of a few quarts of molasses, we drew out occasionally from the larger cask into a smaller one, supplied with the plant, or "mother," all of which made very fine vinegar.

A LONDON News correspondent in Herzegovina writes that he has everywhere received the heartiest welcome as an Englishman even among the irregular Turkish troops. It would almost seem, he says, as though an opinion prevailed in Turkey that Englishmen were a Mohammedan sect, differing only in some trifling doctrinal matter from the orthodox believers.

THERE is a great change in dances. The galop has become a glide waltz and the waltz has a brisk exercise, a cross between the movements of the legs induced by colic and a hop-scotch set to music. The polka is in high favor again and the minuet will be danced more.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 14.....1876.

KEARSARGE.—The Kearsarge mill is pounding away to a good purpose on surface ores principally, but owing to the fact that the ores will soon become too wet for dry crushing, which is the process in use, it is likely that in a few weeks the mill will have to shut down for the Winter. The tunnel heretofore referred to as being run to tap the Kearsarge mine proper at 180 feet below the bottom of the shaft, is now in about 50 feet, having some 250 feet yet to go. As before stated, the ore in the bottom of this shaft is not only abundant but exceedingly rich, and high hopes are entertained for a big thing in this mine. No ore can be taken out to advantage, if at all, until the air connections between tunnel and shaft are complete, which will require several weeks. We were wrongly informed as to this tunnel producing ore enough to supply the mill; there is no ore in the tunnel so far, nor is it likely there will be before reaching the ledge at the shaft. The Cliff mine, situated higher up on the mountain, is furnishing the principal supply for the mill, and is looking very well. The Bruckner roaster has been run constantly, giving satisfactory results, and without trouble other than the clouds of dust it sends forth from its charge; it is quite likely that this dust also carries off quite a percentage of the precious metal, but if so there is still enough left from these ores to satisfy all reasonable expectations and desires.

DIED AMONG STRANGERS.—Henry Hawlew, whose death is recorded under the proper heading, died, like so many in this country before him, a stranger among strangers, but unlike so many of those, suffering for nothing kindly hands could administer. Deceased arrived here from Benton four weeks previous to his death so reduced from disease as to leave but a shadow of hope of final recovery. Though he had no means of his own, Thompson, of the Blaney House, saw to his every want down to the very last, while Dr. Matthews, of the Post, was, from a like spirit, unremitting in his attentions as a physician. All that is known of the deceased is that he leaves a family in Dodge county, Wisconsin, and that for a time prior to his last illness he had been in the employ of the Northern Stage Company.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION. — Quite a pleasant and most highly enjoyable affair in the way of a birthday celebration came off at Squire Joe Schalten's on Thursday evening, it being the occasion of his —tieth birthday. It's best not to be too precise about even men's Winters and Summers; still, this was not Squire Schalten's Centennial by some sixty-two years, more or less. The supper served up to a goodly crowd by his better-half would have done credit to the very best cook and cusiner in the land, while the dance and general fun averaged considerably better than common. Query—Why is it the ladies above sixteen never have birthday parties? There is no instance of the kind on record that we now recall. That's why we never ask any of 'em how old they are.

THE BEAUTIFUL.—As a ruling principle we always rigorously refrain from quoting "the snow, the beautiful snow," and even now, with plenty of the fleecy article just newly mantling the mountains around, and giving us the first right to the obnoxious quotation for the season, we still adhere to our rule; we won't harrow anybody's feelings by giving place to the line "the snow, the beautiful snow." But it is beautiful, though, and its beauties crop out all the more beautiful because it is away off on the glistening mountain tops; there is also plenty of it, considering how early it is.

LIVE STOCK.—We are told that the stock that has been kept in Monache Valley and other high up Summer pastures are in much better condition this season than usual. But it is getting frosty up there, and already the stockmen are beginning to move out for the Winter. Scott Broder started his big bands for this valley several days ago. In that connection we will add that that sheep vs. cattle and land question in Monache Valley was amicably settled, the sheep men withdrawing all claims to the land in question.

BAPTISM.—Some young ladies administered the special right of baptism to a party here a few evenings ago, but whether to a religious purpose or not we can't say, therefore will say nothing about it. The "Modocs," an entirely differently constituted organization, do talk some of trying the efficacy of the water cure for family afflictions, but it may end in talk—that depends. Except in the mere similarity of the water rite or right, the two cases referred to are wholly different and disconnected.

A MATTER OF A FEW FEET.—There was a slight error in the report of the Lucky Jim mine of Darwin, last week, in regard to the depth attained. It should have read 600 feet on the tunnel—the actual depth being some 300 feet or over.

ON HIS OWN ACCOUNT.—Mr. Holt, of the Rex Montis, got the old Silver Sprout Mill refitted and started it up last week, since which time it has been running steadily. We are told that the prospects for a big clean up are firstrate.

COURT.—On the 23d instant Judge Hannah will hold an adjourned term of the County Court, to give Hawkins a chance to explain how about those horses he stands accused of "borrowing" from Sears, as mentioned heretofore.

GOING BELOW.—John Broder and John Lucas start in a day or two for a trip to the Bay, matters of business and of health respectively being the inducements.

LOG SPRINGS.—Unless a "dicker" can be made by which to obtain ores from some other than its own mines to supply the Broder & Moffat furnace at Log Springs, the prospects are that all work in connection with that property will soon be suspended for the season. Ever since the furnace shut down a small force has been kept at work on the Uncle Sam, driving a tunnel to open the mine at a lower depth, where it was hoped a permanent body of ore might be found, and in sufficient quantities to justify running the furnace. As yet no such strike has been made, though we are assured the indications are really encouraging, but still hardly sufficient of themselves to render a "Winter campaign" advisable, all the surroundings and circumstances considered. There is, however, an abundance of ore in the adjacent district of Sylvania already on the dumps, and the owners are desirous of furnishing the furnace and keep it running. But as none of this is in the immediate vicinity, the cost of transportation and reduction, together with the purchase price, leaves no margin for profits except upon first-class ores. Whether a sufficient quantity of this kind can be obtained to justify starting the furnace is a question that will be determined in a week or two. Kincaid has about 600 tons of good smelting ore on his dump, but how much of it is of the kind that will pay to transport and reduce at the Log Springs furnace remains to be seen. If good wishes would do any good the Log Spring furnace would certainly go right along, but something more substantial is needed; what the chances are may be guessed from the foregoing statement of facts and probabilities.

FROM LIDA VALLEY.—L. Wick, who has stuck to Lida Valley all this time, was in town this week, after more goods. He says the future prospects for the camp appear to be about as heretofore for a year or so back—somewhat mixed, since the leading property became involved in litigation, and contingent thereupon. The mill is kept running most of the time, the miners having it on lease to run themselves on their own ores. Nothing is being done at the once most promising camp of Gold Mountain, some twenty miles south. There is some probability, however, that a mill ere long will be built to work the ores from the somewhat famous "State Line" ledge, situate some five miles from the camp. This is the best defined ledge and largest body of clear ore we have ever seen outside of the one invariable exception at Virginia City. As shown by croppings for several hundred feet and a shaft 12 feet wide and 80 feet deep, all in ore, it has within our knowledge no other rival in the above named advantages. About three feet in width of the ledge is said to be quite rich, while the whole mass would pay to work if there were wood and water close at hand to supply a mill on the ground; but, for that purpose, water would have to be piped about fifteen miles, while there is but little wood any nearer. The mine certainly offers great inducements for the investment of capital.

CHANGE YOUR SEED.—Omie Mairs' team on its last trip from Mojave brought in a quantity of barley, which some of our farmers immediately purchased for seed. This was a wise move, for it is high time that a pretty general change should be made in seed grain for this valley. Experienced, practical farmers know the harm of using the same seed year and after year; small grain especially deteriorates rapidly without change of soil and climate every three or four years, and a mere exchange from one farm to another in so limited a region as this gives no marked variation in either particular and therefore effects no good. Grain, as does nearly all vegetables and fruits, requires just as careful attention in this respect as the production and maintenance of pure blood live stock. We would strongly advise our farmers to give this matter the attention its apparent importance demands; plant imported seed if you can get it. Though we do not mention this to advertise Omie Mairs' business, we will state that he intends to haul in grain suitable for seed, and raised on the other side of the mountains, as long as there is any demand for it.

WEATHER.—Though we do not speak from the record (meteorological) yet it is safe to say we have been having most remarkable weather in this section since last Spring; so much more of moisture than ever before in the same months as to lead to the belief that our climate is changing. If we remember rightly there has not been an interval of as much as three weeks this Summer without cloudy weather and often quite a sprinkle of rain. Heretofore there would be from two to four months with scarcely a cloud visible. Scientists, remarking upon similar changes elsewhere in the Great Basin, conclude that telegraph and railroad lines are the cause—their tendency being not only to equalize commercial matters, but also electrical currents, and thereby the weather through a more equitable division of the air's moisture. Not knowing about this we can't say. Perhaps it would be just as safe to conclude that, as remarkably dry or wet Winters, either, are only incidents in a cycle of time; so likewise is our unusually moist and cool Summer a mere incidental exception, not at all indicating a permanent change as deduced by the scientists aforesaid.

OUR LOCAL CROPS.—We now have reliable information from J. R. Westerville, who in circulating around with his threshing machine this season has every means of knowing, that the small grain crop of Inyo county will fall short some 350 tons of last year's yield. Teamsters and others who have had occasion to buy any of the last crop of barley complain of weeds, sticks and dirt being so badly mixed with the grain that unless it pans out better they will be forced to take the barley shipped in from the lower country.

"HAVE YOU REGISTERED?"—This is the question earnestly asked by the country newspapers. It is suggested by a disappointed "Comp." that it would be practically more interesting to ask, "Have you paid your subscription?"

INDIAN TROUBLES.—We understand that a state of war exists, or at least is imminently threatened, between the small band of Piutes living at Hunter's Ranch, southeast of Cerro Gordo, and some of their Indian neighbors known as the Muddies, living on the Armagosa. It seems that the latter from some unknown cause killed one of the Hunter band, leaving his body on the desert, where some white men discovered it. His band, numbering about twenty warriors all told, at once began to put themselves on a war footing, and unless the "great powers" interpose and command the peace we will certainly have a bloody Piute internicine strife that will awake the echoes over toward the Armagosa. The matter has been laid before the Post Commandant, Lieut. Wotherspoon, but we are not advised as to what action, if any, has been decided upon. The sympathy of the whites is all with the peaceful Hunter band as against their more powerful foe, who number about seventy fighting bucks.

FLAG AGREEMENT.—If the Democrats came out ahead in Indiana, Johnny Irwin was to run the flag up on Connelly's staff, and yell if he wanted to; per contra, if the Republicans shoved ahead Connelly was to exercise the right. Connelly, after reading the dispatches received this morning, ran the flag up, but reserved his right to yell till the receipt of further news.

INCREASING.—Our population, locally considered, has received some slight additions the present week, so we are told, but as we have no official confirmation or reliable details of either of the happy events, we cannot without a violation of rules make any use of our "Born" heading this issue.

ANOTHER STAGE ROBBERY.—The up stage which arrived here this morning was robbed yesterday evening just below the Panamint junction. We can learn none of the particulars, but it is clear that Wells, Fargo & Co. are the sufferers, as usual, since the express brought not even a paper.

AT the late term of the District Court for Esmeralda county, Nevada, S. Sever & Co. obtained a judgment by default in rather an important suit against the Lida Mill & Mining Company, Lida Valley.

STAGE ROBBED.—The Aurora stage was stopped a short distance the other side of the Mountain House on Tuesday last by two masked men, who demanded Well's, Fargo & Co.'s treasure box. There being no other alternative, Con. Denice, the driver, politely handed it over; whereupon one of the robbers proceeded to saw a hole in the box and disgorge its contents—$228 in coin. They then handed the box back to the driver and told him to proceed, which he did. There were six passengers on board, but not one of them prepared for an occasion like this, and as the robbers made no attempt to "go through" the passengers they doubtless were inclined to let them pass. We are told that two suspicious looking characters had been loafing around in that vicinity for a number of days previous to the robbery, to the great annoyance of the Indians in that neighborhood (they had threatened to kill the Indians if they did not keep out of their way), as well as people who owned good horses, and it is thought that they are the same two men who robbed the stage. It is supposed that after the robbery they went across the mountains towards Monitor. —Carson Valley News, October 5.

A TRAP FOR FOOLS.—We have been annoyed by receiving through the mail a newspaper published in this city for the declared object of spreading "useful information in regard to matrimony," which means to get money from people for printing a lot of maudlin stuff in the shape of advertisements for partners in marriage. We make mention of this worthless abuse of journalism, because, doubtless, copies will be sent into the interior and the weak and unwary will be entrapped into squandering money for what is a fool's game, or worse. We caution our readers against this delusion and snare in the shape of a newspaper.—Rural Press.

THE Methodist Episcopal Conferences severally voted upon what is known as the "third restrictive rule," which relates to the episcopacy. The suspension, if authorized, will be availed of to introduce the following law descriptive of the duty of a Bishop: "To form the districts according to his judgment, the Conferences having authority to determine the number of districts, provided no Conference shall have less than two or more than eight districts, nor shall any district have more than sixty pastoral charges." The Detroit Conference voted unanimously to nonconcur in the suspension, the vote being 143. The vote in the Columbia River Conference was 8 for and 6 against.

WALKER RIVER.—Henry Rickey, who spent a part of the past week in town, tells us that the putrid sore throat, which has been a terror to the people of Walker River for several months past, no longer carries death and desolation to the homes of the good people of quiet little Antelope Valley. He explains the reason by saying that the children have all died or been sent to less afflicted localities.—Genoa News, October 5.

DON'T WANT IT.—No person appears to want the office of Sheriff of Mohave county.—Wallapai Enterprise.

JOHN JACOB ASTOR has been nominated for Mayor by a Greenback Association. After this there can be nothing grotesque in politics.

IT is intimated that President Grant may possibly countermand the Secretary of the Navy's order placing officers on waiting orders on furlough pay.

THE Greenbackers of New York have nominated John Jacob Astor for Mayor of that city.

GEO. Q. CANNON has been renominated as Delegate to Congress from Utah.

OUR MONO LETTER.

BENTON, Cal., October 4.

MESSRS. EDITORS—There are but few who visit Benton (unless it is with a view of locating in this vicinity) who can give anything like an accurate idea of its resources. The mining interests are far more extensive than any one can describe from hearsay, and whilst mining is the principal resource it is by no means alone. There are better facilities for working mines here than any place on this side of the mountains, and ore can be worked cheaper. Although water power has not so far been utilized, yet we have a water power hanging 900 feet above Benton, in a lake which if brought down in pipe would run all the mills this little valley could seat. Another valuable water power is Montgomery Creek, flowing from the White Mountains, which would run a string of mills two miles long; and in my opinion water is the cheapest motive power this side of perpetual motion. Wood, mining timbers and lumber is no object. A large team can drive to the woods, get a load of mining timbers or wood and return in eight hours; can go to the saw mills and return with lumber in one day and a half. Thus the cost of building and timbering mines is a cipher compared to that in our neighboring mining towns of Belleville and Columbus. Farming is another one of the resources of this vicinity; though not so extensive as it might be, there is a great deal of arable land lying idle for the want of some one to till it, and plenty of water going to waste. There are Moore's Creek, Montgomery Creek and Marble Creek, flowing from the White Mountains, without a single diversion for farming purposes. Mr. McBride and Mr. Howell have quite extensive gardens, but they cannot supply the market.

POLITICAL.

At the meeting of the Hayes and Wheeler Club last Saturday evening, Hon. Wm. Witherell delivered a very able and exhaustive political address on the "burning issues of the hour."

PERSONAL.

The Benjamin troupe played here two nights, acquitting themselves creditably, and gave the ball goers of Benton a chance to trip the light fantastic. They left this morning for Belleville. Frank Hutch is in town, and declares that if Tilden is not elected to never cast another vote (sorry that he should thus disfranchise himself). Dr. Middleton was in town yesterday; left this morning with the Benjamins. Hess Yaney has gone to the Yo Semite with his cousin, Mrs. Murphy. Mr. Partz and Mr. Ball have gone to the Centennial. Judge Cross has gone to San Francisco, and there has been no one born, married or died for several days.

RURAL JACOB.

A CURIOUS LAW SUIT IN MASSACHUSETTS.—Commonwealth agt. Stratton, p. 303. It appeared that the defendant gave a young girl some figs to eat, upon which he had sprinkled some "love powders," not, however, mentioning this fact to her. He had been told that the powders were harmless, but in fact they contained cantharides and made the girl ill. The Court held that Stratton was guilty of an assault and battery. In the most favorable aspect of the facts for him he had administered to the girl without her consent and by deceit, a drug or foreign substance, of the effect of which he was ignorant. It was an unlawful interference with her personal rights "calculated," says the court, "to result, and in fact resulting, in physical injury."

A MINNESOTA firm has adopted a new method of doing business. No books are kept. When a customer wants credit he goes to the desk and borrows the money for which he gives his note, bearing interest. He then buys his goods and pays for them.

SOME twenty years ago the Boston Post, in alluding to Charles Francis Adams, who was before the people for office, said: "The mantle of his father's greatness fell on him and smothered him."

A Great Irrigating Project.

[From the Kern Co. Gazette, Oct. 7.]

Mr. O. P. Calloway, an engineer of great practical ability, who has supervised some of the most useful works on the Pacific Coast, is in Los Angeles, en route to Arizona. This gentleman, for the past year and a half, has been engaged in carrying out his contract to build the Kern River Land and Canal Company's ditch. The enterprise is a great one, and cannot fail to have an important bearing upon the future of our neighboring county. As the people of Los Angeles are interested in everything that relates to Southern California as a section, some notes of this scheme will probably be interesting to our readers.

The canal, when completed, will be thirty miles long. It will be 120 feet wide at the bottom and four feet deep. It will start at the Southern Pacific railway bridge over the Kern River, and will irrigate an immense tract of land on the northeast side of that stream. Two subsidiary canals, 60 feet wide at the bottom, will also be constructed. These canals are not only designed for irrigation, but will serve to transport the grain and other produce of the settlers to the Posey Creek Station of the Southern Pacific. For this purpose canal boats will be provided. The waste water of the canal will be let off into Posey Creek, which in turn will discharge itself into Tulare Lake. During its whole length of thirty miles, the canal will run parallel with the railway, and at its terminus it will be twenty miles distant from Tulare Lake. The soil aligning the canal is a rich sandy loam, and it only requires the water thus liberally provided to make it as productive as any in the world. The canal has been already completed for a distance of five miles and a half, and the land over which the fertilizing waters were distributed has yielded an average of 60 bushels of wheat and 90 of barley to the acre. The Kern River Land and Canal Company is the name of the corporation which has undertaken this splendid work of development.

Story of a Book Agent.—A book agent recently met with a serious accident in the suburbs of La Crosse. He was walking along the railroad when a freight train came along. The unfortunate man was struck by the engine and knocked directly across the track, some fifty-three cars passing over him. He was then tumbled down a bank 800 feet high, over stones and stumps, and just as he got to the edge of the river he struck against a pile-driver that was at work, and, his head lying on the top of the pile for a minute or two, the ponderous hammer descended, striking him on the cheek, bruising his face somewhat. The shock rolled him into the river just as an up river packet was passing, and by some mishap the unfortunate man was entangled in one of the wheels, and whirled round and round for an hour and a half before he was discovered and released. He was picked up nearly senseless and removed to the cabin, where his wants were supplied. After he had eaten a hearty meal he was approached by the captain, who asked:

"Is there anything you would like to have?"

"No, no," replied the canvasser, "there is nothing but this——"

"What! what!" ejaculated the captain, "what is it?"

The book-agent smiled sweetly as he produced a subscription list, and said: "Subscribe for that beautiful book entitled 'The Poisoned Gum Drop; or, the Candy Woman's Revenge,' by the author of 'Jones, the Button-Hole Maker.'"—La Crosse Leader.

Jellies.—Currants and grapes make the best and cheapest jelly for home use. Select large, ripe currants, fresh from the bushes as possible, pick out all the leaves or old currants, let the clusters remain on the stems; weigh six pounds of the fruit thus cleaned, put into a stone or earthen vessel, add a pint of fresh water, then take a wooden masher and crush the berries thoroughly. I have a strong, thin linen towel sewed into a poke, into which I put a pint or so of the crushed berries, wring and squeeze them completely; emptying and filling until all the juice is secured, of which there will be about five pints. To this juice add five pounds of best brown sugar, putting the whole into a porcelain kettle over a good fire; stir slowly with a silver or wooden spoon, and let it boil 15 or 20 minutes. By this time, if the fruit is fresh, there is no failure of the jelly. Then I put up in pint-size, self-sealing glass jars for common use. It is, I really think, as cheap and far more delicious for meats than cranberries, and as a relish of fruit. It costs about 25 cents a pint, or pound. The best brown sugar makes the richest jelly, and with more uniform success. If you want a delicate color and more acid jelly use white sugar. Black currant jelly is considered very beneficial in diarrhea, and other diseases of like nature.

Deer Bill—Doant kum to see me enny moar for a while enny way. Father has got awfully skeered about burglars and he sets up every night till lait with a dubble-barrelld shotgun watchun the backyard. He put moren a pound uv led into Smith's big nufoundland dog which was kummin over the fens after a bone last nite.

The roses red the violets blue,
I wouldn't cum now if I was you.

Yours, as ever, Nancy.

Yerba Buena Bitters.

The Great Cathartic and Regulator.

Purely a Vegetable Compound!

Harmless but Powerful!

Messrs. Williams & Co.—Gentlemen: It is with pleasure I indorse your Yerba Buena Bitters. I have never found such instant and permanent relief as from the use of your most invaluable compound. I have been subjected to costiveness and a torpid liver for five years, and am now entirely cured, after using only two bottles of your Yerba Buena. I am certain that it was Yerba Buena that cured me of the palpitation of the heart. I am happy to state through the use of your Bitters I am a well man. All wishing to be convinced of the above, I will give you my residence: 209 Liedesdorff street, San Francisco. John R. Steere.

Messrs. H. Williams & Co.: Dear Sirs—As long as I can remember, I have been troubled with Pin Worms, and at times felt as if I was being devoured alive. Early in March, 1875, I was induced to use your Yerba Buena Bitters, and within One Month I was entirely cured. I have not been troubled with them since, and am satisfied that I am permanently cured. I think it is the best preparation for Constipation and Billious Troubles known.

A. B. HOWARD,
No. 12 Quincy street, San Francisco.

I take pleasure in recommending the Yerba Buena Bitters. I have used three bottles and found more relief from them than anything I have ever used. I had been troubled with Constipation of the Bowels, Torpid Liver and general debility for a long time, and found no relief until the Yerba Buena Bitters cured me.

S. BROOKS, Petaluma.

Seeking health on the Pacific Coast, my attention was called to Dr. Warren's Yerba Buena Bitters, and took some for headache, which cured me so perfectly that I bought a bottle and have not taken any other medicine since. It is a perfect cure for any derangement of the stomach or constipation, and I recommend it before any other medicine, as it leaves the system in a healthy state and no dieting is necessary. Please send your Bitters all over the world, for it will be a blessing to humanity beyond the power of words to express. I write you freely and from actual experience Cyrus Cummings,

CHAPTER V.—THE PLAINS.

MESSRS. EDITORS—The South Platte River, which the railroad follows for about 85 miles, rises in the mountains south and west of Denver. It receives a large number of tributaries—Laramie, Sweetweter, North Platte and others—and then pursues a due east course to the Missouri River.

Williams, in his valuable Guide Book, makes the following remarks respecting the vast region traversed by the railroad: "South of the North Platte River quite a number of Homesteaders have farmed it for years with indifferent success, having to contend with drought and grasshoppers. Some plan of irrigation must be adopted before agriculture con be made a paying investment." Of the plains he further says: "Into this vast area of plains, which reaches from east to west 500 miles and from north to south 1,000, there can be poured nearly all the population of Europe and Asia. Into this area can be put the whole of India. It is twice as large as Hindostan, and as large as the whole of the United States east of Chicago. Agriculture is certain as far west as the three hundredth mile from the Missouri River; from thence westward to the vicinity of the mountains no crops can be at present raised. This reach of 200 miles or more is for many years yet to come to be only the grazing fields of thousands of buffaloes or herds of cattle. Water is scarce, irrigation impossible, rains uncertain, and in many parts the soil is full of soda and alkali." The western march of settlement practically ends at the one hundredth meridian of longitude—North Platte. These plains must become the great beef producing region of the continent. The numerous tributaries to the North Platte and South Platte Bivers are from ten to fifteen miles apart, with high rolling prairies between, affording abundance of water with adjacent pasture, and this pasture is the home of the richest natural grasses. For 200 miles or more west of Omaha numerous flourishing settlements may be seen along the line of the railroad. Before the railroad was built the Platte Valley was the great highway of overland travel to Colorado, Utah and the Pacific Coast. Those who journeyed through there fifteen or twenty years ago would be greatly astonished at the vast improvements made since then.

We were pained to see the devastation made on these plains by grasshoppers. Whole fields of corn were completely stripped of leaves and ears—nothing left but the bare stalks. Other large fields of small grain and corn had been devoured—not a vestige of green remained in some places. What a discouraging aspect for poor farmers! And this they say occurs frequently. Even when they do raise large crops of corn, the prices being low they realize but small profits. Ye growling Owens Valley farmers, who always raise a crop and get good prices therefor, just think what a favored locality you reside in.

It occurred to this Pinte that the aforesaid grasshopper region would be suitable for an Indian reservation. You know what a choice article of diet, to an Indian, is the grasshopper. White man is a little more fastidious in his taste. No matter if the "varmint" should devour the corn crop, what an abundance of good hogadie would the myriads of fat, corn-fed grasshoppers furnish!

CANNED SALMON.—Three hundred and eighty thousand cases of canned salmon valued at $1,900,000, exclusive of a ship load of 10,000 cases, have been shipped from the Columbia river this season.

GOV. HENDRICKS was 57 years old September 7th.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 5.

MESSRS. EDITORS—The politicians here are in a state of great perplexity over the Colorado election, which took place day before yesterday. Yesterday morning the Republicans claimed that State by a handsome majority; last night it was conceded to the Democrats, and this morning both parties seem to think it exceedingly doubtful. The strong probability is that both parties will claim it up to the 10th, that being election day in Ohio and Indiana. The election just held will determine the choice of Colorado for the Presidency, as the Legislature now elected will, under an ordinance of the Constitutional Convention, choose the three Presidential Electors as well as two United States Senators. Fears are entertained that a difficulty may arise in counting the electoral vote, where the majority in any State is not of such a decided character as to leave no room for doubt. By the nineteenth joint rule of the Senate and House either branch might object to the vote of a State, and it was at once thrown out. The last House deemed it necessary that that rule should be enacted by each successive Congress, and with that view early in the session sent the resolution to the Senate for its concurrence, but that body permitted it to lie on the table and took no action in the premises. As it now stands the President of the Senate has the counting of the electoral votes, and at his sole option may allow or reject the vote of any State he may esteem doubtful. Of course no one doubts Mr. Ferry's entire honesty, but should the majority in any State be very small or any unfair means be alleged to have been used in the election powerful influence will be used to bias his judgment.

A Cabinet meeting has been called for to-morrow evening, at which it is expected all the members of the Cabinet will be present except Mr. Cameron and Attorney-General Taft. It is currently reported here that the latter gentleman will not again resume his place in the Cabinet.

The latest news from the Indian war is to the effect that Terry and Crook's positions are unchanged; they are being supplied with fresh horses and ammunition, and will begin the new campaign in a week or ten days. Sitting Bull is marching towards the British Possessions.

Much speculation is being indulged in with reference to continuing the work of the Washington Monument upon its present foundation, some fears having been expressed as to the nature of the ground upon which it now stands. As most persons throughout the Union have at some time or other contributed towards the erection of this monument, and naturally feel an interest in the work, it may be interesting to know that the Board of Engineers appointed to examine the foundation of the present structure are collecting all the documentary evidence which relates to the examinations and tests made at the time the foundation was laid and have devoted the earlier portion of this week to the consideration of such data, and will proceed to verify by actual experiment the former tests made in connection with this matter. Before the foundation was laid a shaft was sunk some distance from the site, and the earth there was found to consist of some twenty feet of hard clay, which required the pick to break it; this rested upon six feet of compact gravel, and then the shaft being continued several feet further a vein of water was struck. A similar shaft was sunk at the monument site, showing the same strata, and it was walled up and used as a well to supply the water needed in the construction of the monument. In this solid earth proper excavations were made and 80 by 80 feet of a foundation formed of the compact blue stone of the Potomac was laid, the stone being first subjected to tests in a hydraulic press. This stone was brought from the quarries in natural masses of three or four tons weight. These natural masses of the stone were so fitted and dovetailed together as to be stronger than any combination of squared stone could be made. The cement used was a well-tested compound of hydraulic cement and stone lime of sharp sand and every crevice of the stone work was filled with this cement and granite, forming a mass as solid as though the whole foundation was a single stone. This was certainly the estimation in which the foundation was held by builders at the time the monument was begun. And the strong probability is that the Board of Engineers will be satisfied with it.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 21.....1876.

SENTENCED TO BE SHOT.—At Beaver, Utah, on the 10th instant, Judge Boreman passed sentence upon John D. Lee for participating in the Mountain Meadow massacre, nineteen years ago. In doing so he called attention to the atrocity of the crime; the inability heretofore of the authorities to produce evidence; that the conspiracy to murder was widespread; that Lee was finally offered up as a sacrifice to popular indignation, but that others equally guilty might hereafter expect punishment. The prisoner having the right, under the laws of the Territory, to chose death by hanging, shooting or beheading, and having chosen to be shot, was sentenced to be shot to death January 26, 1877.

I. O. G. T.—The Fourth Session of the Grand Lodge I. O. G. T. of California closed on the 11th instant. John B. Carrington was chosen Grand Worthy Chief Templar for the ensuing year; Mrs. C. E. Fowler was chosen Grand Worthy Vice Templar, and the present incumbent, Geo. B. Katzenstein, Grand Worthy Secretary. The Lodge recommended the formation of a temperance political party. A vote of thanks was tendered Creed Haymond for his efforts in the last Legislature in behalf of the Orphans' Home. The general condition of the order throughout the State is shown to be quite as prosperous as at any time heretofore.

THE GRANGERS' BANK.—There were 18,000 votes cast at the recent annual meeting of the Grangers' Bank, in San Francisco, nearly three-fourths of the stock being represented. The old officers and directors were re-elected, and a dividend of 10 per cent for the year declared. The actual paid-up capital of the bank on the 30th of June was $210,-240, which makes the dividend $21,000. The amount of capital subscribed for at that time was $660,180, and the gross assets were $848,223, including $54,212 in cash.

EUROPE.—The situation in Europe is very critical; in fact, a tremendous war between the leading Powers seems almost inevitable. The London Times says that Bismarck by a single word can restore peace or plunge the whole continent into deadly strife, compared to which the late Franco-Prussian war was but child's play. The Turks are getting worsted. Russia's open intervention for Servia now seems certain, unless at the eleventh hour Germany interposes her objections.

SURVEYOR-GENERAL'S REPORT.—H. G. Rollins, United States Surveyor-General for California, has completed his annual report from which we obtain the following summaries: Acres of public land surveyed, 3,245,753; acres confirmed private land claims, 3,345,63; Indian Reservations, acres, 6,183; swamp lands, 53,548; unsurveyed public land, 39,268. Total acres surveyed since last report, 3,034,355; returned in previous report, 1,446,330—making a grand total of 4,480,686.

THE ELECTIONS. — In Indiana the Democrats elect their Governor, "Blue Jeans" Williams, by 5,119. The Republicans claim an offset by a gain of four Congressman. The Democrats carry West Virginia by about 10,000 majority. In Ohio the Republicans elect their ticket by from 7,000 to 10,000, aed also gain four Congressmen there.

FERDINAND GRANFORTH has been held to answer before the Grand Jury of San Francisco in the sum of $2,000 for endeavoring to obtain naturalization papers through misrepresentation, and Louis Brenener was held in a like amount for falsely swearing to the same.

IT is stated that the Council of Cardinals have unanimously adopted a proposition to omit in the meeting of the future conclave some ceremonies purely secondary, in order to hasten the election of a new Pope, and thus prevent the operation of foreign influence.

THE Pall Mall Gazette contends that at the present Russia is actually at war with Turkey, and that further diplomatic effort is therefore useless. It is announced that the Russian Railway contracts to hold in readiness trains sufficient to transport 5,000 men daily.

GOSPEL TRUTH.—A contemporary truly says: "When you hear a man speak against the local paper you may be sure that he never pays a cent for its support."

UP to the 5th of October the Centennial Exhibition had taken in $2,210,-263 24, which it is said makes it a financial success.

IT is rumored that Hayes will resign his Governorship this week.

LIFE OF MORSE.

The life of Samuel F. B. Morse, of telegraph fame, has been written by Samuel Irenæus Prime, S. F. D., and the book is now ready for agents. This new work must be of intrinsic value, and should find place in every public and private library in the land. Professor Morse's fame as the inventor of the electro-magnetic recording telegraph is widespread in all countries, and brief biographical notices were published at the time of his death by all the leading papers of Europe and America, but his memory deserves a place by the side of the undying names of Faust, Watt, Newton, Fulton and Franklin, and something more than the monument which marks his last resting place.

We remember frequently seeing Professor Morse in the beautiful city of Poughkeepsie, on the Hudson, where he had a country residence, which in later years he called his home. He was then a hale, genial old gentleman, unostentatious and very modest of his many honors. He was as unrestrained, as pleasant, polite and as void of consequential air in converse with the student as with the mightiest genius in the land. There are many flashy mountebanks in the East who, inheriting cash or securing a little fortune through strategy and successful humbuggery, retire with a string of titles, and every time their names appear in print the glaring "LL. D." affixed shows what hollowness there is in the money-purchased title and the name without the fame—but unlike these titled frauds, Professor Morse never flaunted the honorary titles which he had earned and so richly merited. Besides the LL. D. won at Yale, he was President of the National Academy of Design; Professor of the Literature of the Arts of Design in the University of the City of New York; and President of the American Asiatic Society. The honorable titles conferred upon him were: Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, France; Knight Commander of the Order of Isabella the Catholic, Spain; Knight of the Order of the Tower and Sword, Portugal; Knight of the Order of Saints Lazaro and Mauritio, Italy; Knight of the Dannebrog, Denmark, and Member of the Turkish Order of Glory.

The volume presents the most extraordinary and romantic story in the annals of science and art, and is appropriately illustrated with portraits of Morse, Humboldt, Lafayette, Arago, pictures of Morse under various circumstances, copious drawings of the several parts of the telegraphic apparatus, each step being illustrated by a drawing made by Morse himself for the purpose, the whole series exhibiting a perfect and intelligible history of the invention, development, introduction, progress and triumph of the American telegraph, which now is employed upon ninety-five of every hundred miles of line on the globe. The original documents necessary to the fullest vindication of the truth are given. From it the general reader and student of science may readily apprehend the origin and advancement of the most wonderful of all human inventions. A. Roman & Co., San Francisco, are the general agents.

TWO WEEKS.—But a little over two weeks remain in which the party hacks may lie and insult common intelligence to prove their own fealty to party, certainly with no hope of making votes by such flimsy, transparent lies as some of them love to indulge in. By the way, what claims for belief and respect in ordinary affairs can a newspaper, country or city, have upon its readers whom, in political matters, it knowingly and habitually tries to deceive and mislead? The verdict even among its friends will be that if it will lie and maintain lies for one purpose it will for another; and it does appear to us that a number of papers we could name are thus selling their own self-respect for less than a mess of pottage. And among these most to be pitied are the one-horse country concerns who feel under obligations for party's sake to not only lie to produce effects but persist in efforts to mislead after the fact, knowing that nothing of permanent good can possibly come of it in these days of quick and universal intelligence. In this category comes the ridiculous ecstacies over elections just past, concerning which the truth is smothered under a vast spread of six-line superlatives, making believe a glorious, ga-lorious victory, when every one knows that the very best that either party can claim is that neither more than escaped absolute defeat. What's the sense of indulging in such clap-trap especially when if deceives anybody it is the very ones it is intended to please, and most always to their cost if they act accordingly? That sort of lying will not end on the 7th proximo, nor for weeks after, but let us hope that time will close out the most of those villifications that ought to permanently damn every paper that knowingly makes itself their spouser.

THE total amount of coin in the State of California at the present time is estimated at a trifle over $20,000,000, all of which except some $19,999,999 75, is locked up in the money vaults of this office.

THAT SCHOOL TAX APPORTIONMENT

Elsewhere will be found a communication from Supervisor Meysan, in which he ventilates his views in relation to the tax levy for school purposes. He presents his estimate of resources and products. He is, we believe, correct in his figures and calculations so far as they go, but does not go far enough, since he makes no reference to or allowance for expected receipts from delinquent poll and dog tax, nor from fines levied in Justices' Courts throughout the county. The sum of these, unless we are misinformed as to the facts, is amply sufficient to cover the deficit he shows in his estimate, and still leaves a surplus of about $174. The aggregate due and collectable on the first two sources named foots up to $300, a little more or less. Its collection can be counted upon as certain as that for delinquent personal property and real estate taxes, since it is assessed to delinquents in these taxes and in common therewith. The amount of fines is of course a matter of uncertainty; in the past year the sum total so collected was $129 or thereabouts. This year it is likely to be fully $150. Since the adjournment of the Board there has been $40 paid in from this source. It is altogether probable that in the course of the year the remainder of the estimate, $110, will be received. In that event the surplus in the school fund will be $174 as stated. But in any event the delinquent poll and dog taxes are expected to be quite sufficient of themselves to complete the amount required. To recapitulate: Mr. Meysan figures out a deficit of $286. His colleagues considered this deficit more than provided for in expected receipts from sources above mentioned, but for which Mr. Meysan makes no allowance at all. The sum total of them is $450 approximately. This would leave quite a handsome little surplus of itself to go to the sole benefit of one district, viz.: the one with which Mr. Meysan is personally identified. This ought to be premium enough this year for the extra four or five children shown in the Census Marshal's report for Lone Pine, being that number above the maximum allowed by law for one teacher. For this passing year the premium given was nearly $1,000. In view of these facts Mr. Meysan need not feel surprised that his strenuous advocacy in favor of doubling the tax apportionment above what his colleagues deemed necessary was considered somewhat selfish and unbecoming in a public officer supposed to be acting for the general good. We agree with Mr. Meysan that it is better to err on the safe side and be sure of a sufficiency for school purposes than to fall short ever so little. But in these hard times people generally do not feel under the slightest obligation to raise a handsome surplus for the exclusive benefit of any single district in this peculiar manner. It is quite possible that it was an injustice to suppose that Mr. Meysan was actuated in this matter by selfish motives, but as before stated he must remember that the coincidences gave some ground for such a belief. This suspicion he could entirely remove if he can show that his colleagues were in error in their calculations regarding the resources mentioned, but entirely ignored in his own estimates. If he can show that little or nothing can be relied upon from those sources, or that he did so show during the long discussion in the Board wherein these facts were duly set forth, then he is in the right and all the rest are in the wrong.

In regard to the vote on Mr. Curtis' motion, by agreement of the Board no record of the yeas and nays was ordered or made. Our information on the point was based on the recollection of a bystander, and therefore we are not in the least disposed to question the correctness of Mr. Meysan's statement in reference to this unimportant point.

We fully agree with Mr. Meysan's views as set forth in his conclusion in relation to a change in the present system of apportionments. His plan is certainly fairer and better in every respect than the present one. We shall attempt no argument in the matter now, but commend its consideration to our readers, in the hope that in time for action by the next Legislature some such plan may be devised and united upon in lieu of the present, which works a hardship in more ways than one, particularly in outlying counties like our own.

FRED HART, formerly of the Reese River Reveille, and a distinguished member of the Sazarac Lying Club, is now swinging Fabers on the Eureka Sentinel. That paper is to be congratulated on its acquisition.

THE case of Ann Eliza vs. Brigham Young came up before Judge Shaeffer on the 14th, and unless the Prophet pays the money previously adjudged within ten days, he will be brought into Court for contempt.

Minietta Silver Mining Company.

[From the S. F. Stock Report.]

We have made mention of this mine before, but recent developments of an important character in the lower levels place it now beyond the pale of a mere mining venture and calls for more than a passing notice at our hands. The Minnietta Belle is situated in Lookout District, Inyo county, California, and adjoins the Modoc, a mine well and favorably known in this market. It is now being worked by four different shafts, from all of which ore of a very high grade is being extracted at the rate about 30 tons per day. The main shaft has been sunk to a depth of 200 feet, at which point a large body of ore has been cut which is heavily charged with manganese, iron and carbonate of lead, assaying average samples upwards of $100 per ton. Drifts are now being driven north and south on this vein at this level, and they are now in over 40 feet each way in a solid map of ore, with a well-defined porpharated wall, smooth as glass and standing almost perpendicular. The ore bodies at all points are looking well, and run from 8 to 45 reet in width. The four dumps now contain about 1,800 tons of ore, nearly all of which is of a free milling character. Mr. J. B. Low, one of our most cautious and best posted mining men, recently visited the mine with the Secretary, Mr. J. G. Riley, and carefully sampled the various dumps and drifts. The average assay of his samples was $131 45 per ton. The mine now shows about 10,000 tons of ore in sight, which it is believed by all good judges will mill close on to $150 per ton.

The Minietta Belle has now levied its first assessment of 25 cents per share. All the expenses of working the property up to this time have been paid by the sale of working capital stock, which was sold for $2 per share. This is now exhausted, and an assessment was rendered imperative to bring in water from the Company's springs in Snow's canyon, distant six miles, and pay the running expenses of the mine until their mill can be started up, which will be in about ten weeks. The mill will consist of ten stamps, and will be complete in every respect. It will be erected and run by Mr. R. C. Jacobs, one of the most practical mill men on this Coast. Mr. Jacobs confidently expects to be able to ship from $50,000 to $60,000 per month with this mill, or some $25,000 or $30,000 a month more than will be needed to pay all the expenses of the Company. They have a first-class Superintendent in charge of the mine, and for economy and systematic working his administration is perhaps without a parallel in Inyo county. All facts considered the Minietta Belle is perhaps equal to any mine in the county. The stock will soon be listed on the Stock Boards. In the meantime those who desire to investigate its merits fully can do so by calling on the Secretary, 209 Sansome street.

MR. JAMES HUME, chief of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s detective force, received a dispatch on the 8th instant informing him of the arrest in Amador county, California, of the two men who lately stopped the Aurora stage and helped themselves to the contents of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s treasure box. Hume put Hank Woodruff, shot-gun messenger for the Express Company, on the robbers' trail, and this arrest is the result. It was hinted some days ago that the arrest of these rogues was but a matter of time, the direction of their flight being well known. It is probable they will be brought over the line and duly incarcerated in the Douglas county jail before many days. This is quick work and shows how well Hume understands his business.—Carson Tribune.

THE LICK TRUST.—The statement that the old Board of Trustees of the Lick estate refuse to resign and intend to contest the appointment of the new Board is authoritatively denied. The old Board have emphatically expressed their intention to resign and turn over their accounts to the new Board just as soon as John Lick says that he will or will not do likewise. In case he declares his intention not to do so, the remainder of the Board will, and leave the court to settle with Mr. Lick.—S. F. Chronicle.

Father Genin defies anybody to prove that Sitting Bull ever did any mischief to man or beast, and declares that the killing of Custer was not a massacre, but an incident of honorable warfare.

A Strange Story.

[From the Eureka Sentinel.]

We published a few days ago an account of the arrest of the supposed perpetrators of the famous Idaho stage robbery of 1868, with the circumstances which placed the detectives upon their track, and yesterday we received by telegraph from San Francisco the following subsequent developments made by the officer in working up the case:

In working up matters preliminary to the arrest of the men Thompson, Wilson and Lingley, supposed to have been connected with the Idaho stage robbery of 1868, the detectives have discovered that for several years past the gang of which these men are evidently members has been engaged in a series of bullion robberies involving many of the mines on the Comstock. The method of operation has not as yet been developed, but will be as soon as some of the operators now in custody have a chance to explain in the courts. The gang, which is the perpetrators of the famous Ingraham organization, first commenced business in the stage robbing line, but as bars of bullion took the place of coin and gold dust, the robbers found it exceedingly difficult to carry off and divide their spoils. Besides being very heavy and cumbersome to carry off, the bars were always stamped with the brand of the mine, and they would tell the whole story at sight. To prevent this the bars were chopped up and at the first favorable opportunity melted and run into bars or blocks, but the mere fact of bullion being without a stamp was suspicious, and with the stamp of some particular mine the fact of this would be very easily followed, so that the disposal of a second lot would be next to impossible without the risk of being taken. In following up Thompson, who professed to know all about the Idaho plant, both Baily and Robertson the detective run across in the vicinity of Reno and Truckee several places where bars of bullion had been chopped up and melted down into different shape. The work had evidently been very clumsily done, and the places selected were generally some old mill or wood-chopper's shanty in the mountains. This bullion as a rule was stolen from the mines and its loss generally attributed to the dishonesty of some of the employes. The Consolidated Virginia is said to have been plundered to the amount of over $50,000 one time and another. The robbers had two or three confederates in the work, and in transporting bars from one point to another, one of them would be slipped off and secreted. It is said that Robertson has got on the track of some of this Consolidated Virginia bullion, and has made a contract with Flood & O'Brien whereby he receives one-half of the amount recovered. The method of getting rid of the bullion has been to work it up into small bars and send it to the Carson Mint for coinage in the shape of the product of small and unimportant mines. Robertson started yesterday morning with warrants for the arrest of several individuals known to be connected with this wholesale system of plunder. The gang is said to be a very extensive and well organized one, with confederates in nearly every one of the large mining towns.

INDIAN SUPERSTITION.—An intelligent correspondent of the Pittsburg Chronicle has been visiting Two Bears and the Blackfeet at Standing Rock on the Upper Missouri. He gives this account of a sacrifice to the Indian devil: "A dog is killed by torture, and divided into four parts, which are put into four kettles and set on the fire until boiled tender, or till he is supposed to be as tender as a dog ought to be. A young squaw, supposed to represent chastity, strips herself entirely nude, and to the sound of a low chaunt by her associates and vigorous beating on drum or tom-tom, performs a peculiar dance with a sidelong motion around the fire on which are the kettles containing the pieces of dog, all the time muttering some kind of incantation. At a signal the young braves, or old ones either, in turn step up to one of the kettles, and reaching in hand and arm, take out a piece of boiling meat, tear off a mouthful, and swallow it. They keep taking out the scalding mass and eating it till the skin of hands, lips and mouth hang loose in whitened shreds, and all this time no sign of pain finds expression on any face, and the seething morsels are slowly masticated and deliberately swallowed with a composure absolutely diabolical. The miserable dupes, like those of many another religious delusion, feel themselves the better for it." The aboriginal notion is that if they torture themselves and evince insensibility to pain, they will convince the evil one that it is not worth while to waste his time in afflicting them.

WOODEN WALL PAPER.—The machinery for the manufacture of wood paper hangings has been so perfected that an inch of white maple or other fine grained wood can be slit so as to furnish 200 thin leaves, having the surface and grain of the wood. These leaves are laid upon a paper backing, and thus constituted may be fastened to the wall the same as common wall paper. A room thus finished presents the appearance of a paneled apartment, since all the surface visible is that of the actual wood. With smoothed and polished woods of a coarser or more open grain, the number of leaves or veneers to the inch is 125. The machine which produces these leaves is a marvel of mechanical ingenuity and skill.

ASSESSED COSO CONSOLIDATED.—The dissatisfied Coso stockholders held a meeting last evening, and it appearing that a sufficient amount of stock was represented, the Committee was ordered to present the petition for an election to the Directors on Monday. The meeting adjourned to Tuesday evening to receive the reply of the Directors, and in case of a refusal the matter will be taken before the Courts.—S. F. Chronicle, Oct. 11.

A Queer Discovery.

[From the Arizona Miner.]

For some years the existence of a large deposit of micaceous iron, east of the East Fork of the Hassayampa, some sixteen or eighteen miles south of Prescott, has been known, and assays of it have been made from time to time, but nothing more valuable than iron discovered, until one day last week, when a Mexican came to town and sold to Wm. M. Buffum some fifteen ounces of silver bullion, which he afterwards said he extracted from seven pounds of this ore, samples of which he showed. An assay was made by Blake of the samples brought in, which gave $447 10 in silver and $715 79 in gold. Wand and Saffenberg, with the Mexican, went to the mine on Thursday and brought in some of the ore. Kelly made an assay of it, and found no trace of any metal but iron. Blake tried another piece and obtained $1,541 99 in silver and $25 11 in gold, aggregating $1,567 10. Martin Saffenberg, on Monday, again went to the mine and selected a sample himself, with which the Mexican had nothing to do; this he brought in and Keily made an assay of it, and found $1,410 32 in silver and $108 76 in gold, aggregating $1,579 08. Blake then assayed a piece taken from a very large chunk brought in by Wand and Saffenberg, and found $680 18 in silver and $12 54 in gold; another gave only $3 14 in silver and only traces of gold.

No one at all acquainted with the brittle iron ore, as it is called in California and Nevada, would ever suspect this to contain anything but iron and mica. Some have called it plumbago, from the fact that it is quite black and shines with a bright metalic lustre. It is easily pulverised, and when rubbed in the hands has the appearance of being mixed with oil; for this reason many have given it the name of stove-blacking, which it very much resembles. Altogether it is a curious discovery, and puzzles the assayers and experts, who are unable to tell any more about it than those who make no pretensions. It may be that an entirely new mineral has been discovered.

WHAT THE CENTENNIAL IS DOING.—Every day brings to our notice fresh indications of the great advantages which the International Exposition must almost immediately and from time to time bring to city and country. We have just seen a letter from a large house in Geneva, having extensive connections throughout Switzerland, making inquiries respecting the manufacture of hosiery, of which very favorable and gratifying accounts have been sent home by the Swiss experts in attendance upon the exhibition. This house was led to believe that American goods in the hosiery line could be more profitably introduced into Switzerland and the adjoining States than similar goods of European manufacture, and they desired full information as to dealers' prices, terms of sale, etc., with a view of extensive operations. From Naples, also, we have seen a communication inquiring as to American sewing machines. These are but indications of the widespread interest in American manufactures which has been awakened, and which cannot fail to be of immense practical advantage to all our industries.—Philadelphia Press.

THE LENGTH OF DAYS.—At London, England, Bremen and Prussia, the longest day has sixteen-and-half hours. At Stockholm, in Sweden, the longest day has eighteen-and-a-half hours. At Hamburg, Germany, and Dantzfg, Prussia, the longest day has seventeen hours, and the shortest seven hours. At St. Petersburg, in Russia, and Tobolsk, Siberia, the longest day has nineteen hours and the shortest five hours. At Tornea, in Finland, the longest day has twenty-one-and-a-half hours and the shortest two-and-a-half hours. At Wardnuys, in Norway, the day lasts from May 21 to July 2 without interruption; and at Spitzbergen the longest day is three-and-a-half hours.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 21.....1876.

SERMON ON THE STREET.—The quiet of the street was suddenly interrupted the other night by the appearance of an ambulance looking vehicle with a flaming torch-light swinging at both ends, in the flickering light of which an occasional glimpse could be had of cabalistic characters painted in gaudy colors. In any other part of the globe there would not have been anything remarkable or novel in a sight of this kind, but here in a country whose either end is a hundred mile desert blockaded by the News and the Tarantula and the sides boxed in by the highest mountains in America, it struck most everybody that Old Neptune had driven out of a thunder cloud or else some disconsolate inhabitant of the infernal regions was out on a prospecting trip with the view of bettering his condition. The coffin shaped gondolier put on brakes in front of the Blaney and a figure was seen to rise out of one end and deliberately wind itself up, and while a little crowd gathered around in the anticipation of hearing a first-class political sermon, it commenced to gesticulate and shoot its mouth off with such astonishing rapidity that, had they been here, Tom Fitch or Bob Ingersoll would have fled in dismay. The orator belabored Adam and the crooked rib, jumped down into modern events, floundered in the possibilities and the impossibilities, turned a double somersault in bad grammar, incited a voracious gabbering among a few Chinamen and finally got lost in a maze of tangled and distorted subjects and came to the point by declaring that he was a diplomat and the best physician in the United States or Indiana. He then produced a bottle and a glass and swore by all the eternal that his purpose was to give—not to sell. The crowd drew nearer and he invited all to come up and take a dose—everybody, deranged or sound, needed it. Then came a recitation of his wonderful antidote, which was delivered somewhat thusly: "This bottle which I hold in my hand contains a remedy for all the ills that flesh is heir to; besides it will resusitate a dead nigger and give a healthy tone to the morals of a whole community in less time than it takes to get the returns of an Eastern election; it will take the growl out of your wife and the kinks out of a colored voter's hair and make him cast a Democratic vote in less than fifteen seconds; a single drop will resurrect the tails of every Chinamen ever jerked up in the San Francisco police docket; one-half of a spoonful will blacken the reddest hair and the cussedest Democrat in the land, and a half-pint mixed with reform will everlastingly cure the latter of killing little niggers; a quart will take the stains out of a bloody shirt, turn greenbacks into gold and protect Tilton on a railway journey." Here he was interrupted by Happy Jack and his banjo. Jack was asked to take a dose, but he declined and told the preacher to go to h—, whereupon the exhorter remarked that he never called on a gentleman when he wasn't at home and asked Jack when he'd be at home. Other interruptions followed, after which he continued: "Gentlemen, I have given away 20,000,000 bottles of this invaluable antidote and I know whereof I speak; this wonderful, magical, radical, tragical, compound, back-action remedy is a certain cure for lying in bed late of a morning."—Another interruption and amid the drawing of corks and filling of glasses the orator found time for a little rest.

COMPLETED.—The Great Register for Inyo county was completed at this office this week, and with the election blanks, the usual number has just been transmitted to the several precincts. The body of the Register was printed in August; the Supplement not until this week, at which time the printed registrations closed as provided by law. Only the exact number required by law was printed this year, therefore there are none for general distribution except by precincts during and after the election. The printed Supplement contains but fifty-one names, which added to the others make 1269 names upon the Great Register. Since that was closed some eighty-five certificates have already been issued from the Clerk's office. At this rate the whole number of registered voters for Inyo county will reach perhaps 1320. But it is altogether unlikely that the actual vote polled in November will exceed 800.

THE ARMAGOSA WAR.—Later reports from the scene of the expected war between the Hunter band of Pintes and the Armagosa "Muddies" give a more hopeful outlook for the preservation of peace, as they say in relation to such things between the European nations. It turns out that the Indian found dead, whose presumed foul taking off by the Armagosas was the casus belli, had just laid down and died of his own accord and free will. This fact becoming apparent his tribe concluded to forego warlike demonstrations, so matters will again run smoothly between the two bands.

NO GRAND JURY.—Unless somebody kills somebody, or steals something worth bothering about, Judge Hannah will not order a Grand Jury for the November term of the District Court, now close at hand, there being no one under arrest or other important matters needing immediate investigation by that potential body—for which everybody, citizen and alien, has some respect greater or less, but of which none are anxious to form a component part.

FOR A TOUR NORTH.—Dr. Stoekley started yesterday morning, accompanied by Fred Burckhardt, for Big Pine, there to sojourn awhile, then go on north as far as Bellville. The doctor will fix up teeth in as good a style as any dentist in the country, while Fred will attend to watch repairing and all such work in his line.

RELATING TO CERRO GORDO AND ITS NOTABLES.—After some months' absence, during which he has spent several weeks time in the East, Mr. M. W. Belshaw—the originator of Cerro Gordo, so to speak—is among us again. He returned to Cerro Gordo about a week ago, since which he paid this place a business visit. He tells us that the Union Consolidated furnaces and mines are not paying as well as in former times, the obtainable ore having depreciated both in quantity and quality. But the furnaces are kept continually under steam, and are turning out the usual number of bars and probably will continue to do so unless the deep prospecting shaft, now down about 450 feet, demonstrates that no large body of richer ore is to be found in a reasonable depth. He is quite sanguine that such will be the result. There is nothing in sight, nor has not been for several months, of a profitable or very encouraging character, whatever people may have thought to the contrary. In consideration of this fact, as we hear incidentally, Mr. Belshaw, as Manager for the Company, intends to insist, even to the extent of a suit at law, upon a reduction in the assessment upon the property as finally fixed by the Board of Equalization. Passing that, we hope soon to be able to present some figures in detail showing the actual cost per ton for mining and reducing ores in Cerro Gordo. From what we hear of the system there adopted we think these figures will show that the reducing if not the mining is done for less money than in any furnace district on the coast. Anyway, the details will possess considerable interest, since all such published heretofore so far as we have seen were estimates merely, not practical results of extensive operations. Referring to the original subject again, we must say, judging from personal looks, that the world has been using Mr. Belshaw remarkably well since he was last here. John Belshaw, who also went East, is expected to return to Cerro Gordo in a few weeks. That is also our understanding in referance to Mr. Beaudry, the Treasurer of the Company, but as he took to himself a wife not long since we should think it mighty doubtful about his coming back so soon.

INDIAN TROUBLES AT IVANPAH.—Superintendent Messic, of the Surprise Valley Company, Panamint, addresses Lieut. Wotherspoon in relation to a reported Indian outbreak at Ivanpah, 140 miles southeasterly from Panamint. He encloses two notes addressed to himself from parties residing at the scene of the troubles. In them it is stated that but thirteen white men aer in the district, and that the Indians are making it very warm for them; that they have no arms or ammunition, and appeal to Capt. Messic to send them men and ammunition as soon as possible. Capt. Messic refers the matter to the Post Commandant, stating that he has but very few men in his employ at Panamint, and therefore can send no aid. It is also doubtful whether the Post Commandant can do anything, since the scene of the reported troubles lies beyond the lines of his bailiwick. The cause of the outbreak is not stated, neither are any of the attending circumstances or particulars given. The notes referred to were brought to Panamint by an Indian; one of them was written from a place the name of which is illegible, stated in the address to be 90 miles southeast from Panamint; the other is written from Ivanpah—the two being written similarly in wording and requirements, but by different writers, one being John S. Lee and the other by —— McFarland. There are some pretty wild Indians out in that region. It was some of them that threatened to give the Wheeler party a big fight a few years ago. It would not be at all surprising if they caused considerable trouble yet.

MAY MAKE A DIFFERENCE.—Elsewhere we have referred to a possible suit to compel a reduction in the tax assessment of the Union Consolidated Mining Company's property. Should the result be to reduce it to the extent originally demanded it would lessen the assessment roll something like $200,000. This would cause some of the apportionments to fall short of the requirements, among the rest that for schools—a subject to which considerable space is given in this issue. But we wish it distinctly understood that our information on the possible contest matter is all at second hand, and therefore given more as a supposition than fact.

ENJOYABLE AFFAIR.—A very agreeable and pleasant time was enjoyed on Saturday night last by the shining lights as well as a number of the obscure, or rather, the periodical luminaries (our reporter is said to have resembled a defunct comet). Dancing was participated in by all, while in other quarters champagne corks flew pretty lively for a time. The occasion was gotten up in honor of Miss Ida Hardy, who intends taking her departure in a few days over to the warmer side of California. Miss Hardy will leave many friends.

WHAT'S BECOME OF THEM?—We mean the myriads and millions of the so-called "yaller-jackets" which every Fall previous to this have during the warm part of the day made things musical and extremely hot to persons now and then in every building to which they could gain access. So far we do not have one to sing and buzz and go for us where usually we have had thousands. The Summer has been unusually cool—perhaps the grubs didn't hatch well. Quien sabe?

HAD HIS TURN.—Connelly floated his Whayes and Heeler stars and stripes for one day, certain of Ohio, hopeful as to Hoosierdom; Johnny Irwin got some fresher news and thereupon flew, as per agreement, his Hilden and Tendricks bunting, the same that did duty for the other, only that he tacked on a tail, addendum, streamer, narrative or what not bearing his champions' names, and so loading the old flag it could not stream gallantly any to speak of.

The School Tax Apportionment.

LONE PINE, October 15.

MESSRS. EDITORS.—In answer to your remarks entitled, "Didn't make it stick," published on the 7th, I agree with you in the first paragraph wherein you say that "the school money last year was apportioned according to law"—I add: and which which must be satisfactory to every American citizen who respects the will of the supreme power of the State. But when you say that I was trying to so fix the tax rate to produce this year a surplus of $1,000 for the exclusive benefit of Lone Pine school district you attribute a very wrong motive for my action, nothing being further from the intent of your humble Supervisor, who believes he has done his duty toward all the school districts in the county in voting against Mr. Curtis' motion instead of voting for, as you state in your remarks. Mr. Garretson voted for Mr. Curtis' motion and not against.

I have no doubt but my honorable colleagues voted against my amendment believing sincerely that one cent on each $100, added to the amount derived from other sources would produce the necessary amount to apportion $500 to each school district in the county. I consider that an error; and in support of my position I give you the evidence in round numbers:

There being 10 school districts according to our honorable County Superintent's estimates, it will require $5,000 to give each $500 for the school year 1876–7.

Required	$5,000
Receivable from the State	2,744
Amount of county funds needed	2,256
Amount of poll and dog taxes received, 1875–6	1,500
Balance needed from property taxes	4,756

The assessment roll for 1876 amounts to $2,000,000; an apportionment at the rate of 3 cents on $100, after deducting the 15 per cent. as provided in Sec. 1818, sub. 1, produces $4,710, which gives a surplus of only $54; so, at the rate of one cent as fixed by my honorable colleagues, the general school fund for 1876–7 will be short $286, which deficit cannot be made up by drawing upon any other fund, and except in the happy event of an increase in our population of poll tax payers, must come from the private purses of those neglecting to raise the same.

In reference to the point argued and as shown by the records as you mentioned, I have not the least knowledge of the same. I consider them very poor arguments when based on such views, as I understand them. I would like you, Mr. Editor, to show if you can that my figures are incorrect, and that one cent on each $100 will produce a surplus of $175, and that 3 cents would produce a surplus of $1,000. Exhibit the figures through your valuable paper to the public, omitting not to point out the sections in regard to the same in support of your estimate, without accumulating funds from sources not authorized by law.

The Lone Pine school district has in the last school year received from state and county the sum of $1,445, or $994 more than any other school district in the county. If you think, Mr. Editor, that the Board of Supervisors could foresee and prevent such happy circumstances I will endeavor to show you the evidence to the contrary, and undoubtedly you will change your mind in relation thereto.

[REMARK.—If a Board of Supervisors cannot foresee and prevent such extensively "happy circumstances" as that they ought to resign in favor of others who could. An error of $1,000 in an estimate for but $5,000 is too happy a circumstance to bear a repitition that would be universally agreeable. Elsewhere we have called Mr. Meysan's attention to certain school fund resources supposed to be both legal and reliable, all of which he seems to have overlooked or else deems them unworthy of consideration. Had the other members looked at it in the light of, and adopted Mr Meysan's original proposition, the happy circumstance would not have been materially less happy this year than last—near enough to justify our remark referred to above: in effect that there would be a similar surplus.—EDS.]

Inyo county received in the school year 1875–6 from the State $250 more than the estimate, which was based according to law, on the amount received in 1874–5; and on the same basis, and in the same period, received from poll taxes $600 more than the estimate contemplated; and by a particular coincidence, extraordinary fines have been imposed by the Courts, amounting to $129, making a total unforeseen amount of $979, nearly the surplus sum received by Lone Pine school district.

Now, Mr. Editor, let all the school districts of Inyo county shake hands with Lone Pine district, which, through THE INYO INDEPENDENT, invites them to join in an effort to do something better in the apportionment of school moneys. Tell the people that every elector ought, under present circumstances, to consider himself as a legislator, and that the best way to insure a full understanding and a proper concert of action is for each to give his views through THE INDEPENDENT. [We cordially second that motion.—EDS.] Thus every county in the State will be induced to consider the propriety of an effort to induce the next Legislature to so amend the law as to make it possible to have a more equitable apportionment of school funds among the several districts.

In my humble understanding of the matter I would recommend the plan of apportionment proposed by H. N. Bolander, as follows: Every district having not less than 15 census children to receive not less than $500, of which $470 is a fixed amount to each district containing from 15 up to 100 children, the balance above the $470 to be made up pro rata on a basis of $2 for each child. Thus, a district of 15 children will receive $470 (absolute apportionment) plus 15 multiplied by $2, to make up the $500. A district of 40 children would likewise receive the fixed amount of $470, plus 40 multiplied by $2, raising the amount to $550, while by the same rule a district of 54 children would receive $578, and so on, up to 100 children when the total would be $670 starting as before on the fixed amount of $470. Very respectfully,

C. MEYSAN.

BRING IT BACK.—The individual who took without leave a certain shotgun, belonging to a member of this office, from Dr. Stoeckley's room at the Blaney House will please return it and save trouble.

BENDING WRAUGHT-IRON TUBING. Ziegler, in the Maschinen Constructeur, recommends tubes, up to 20 centimeters diameter, to be chalked in the part which it is desired to bend, and laid on a fire with a small blast, on the part opposite to the curve which it is desired to make. The lower part of the tube only is to be heated; if the fire is insufficient to heat the whole length, the tube must be passed backward and forwards till enough is heated. The tube is then placed in a close fitting hole up to near the warmed surface, and then carefully twisted around, not backwards. As the tube crushes, the bending is stopped, and operations begun again. The walls on both sides of the tube being at first of equal length, but the outer side getting longer during the bending, an equal heating would lead to buckling. Frequent heating is to be avoided.

THE POLAR EXPEDITION AND SYMMS' THEORY.—The recent news from England is that the steamer Pandora that was sent north about 1st of July, to bring the news from the exploring expedition that went out last year under Captain Nares, has got as far north as as Upper Navie, which lies beyond Disco, and is the residence of the Governor of Greenland, and the last point north from whence there is communication this way, and she reports no news from Captain Nares, but would steam on northward, as the sea was clear of ice, and would reach Smith's Sound in a few days, at which point Captain Nares was to leave a report of his discoveries up to that time. He is to remain a year longer, and the Pandora is to bring home some news from him, and she may be expected home in a few days; and if Captain Nares is fortunate enough to reach the open Polar Sea, as the Swedish exploration did last year, and runs into a warm and genial climate, and can report the finding of a rich country abounding in rich land, large rivers and splendid forests of timber, as the Swedes report, then the "Symms' theory" will be proven beyond a doubt, and the country of "Symmzonia" will become a fixed fact. Who is not anxious to hear the news from Captain Nares?

ON HIS EAR.—A New York man was reading a story to his wife, the other night, and came to a piece of "fine writing," in which the ear of the heroine was compared to "some creamy white, pink-tinted shell of ocean."

"By the way," said the husband, cutting short his reading, "that description of the ear reminds me of your ear—you have an ear like a shell."

It was the first compliment she had received from him since the early days of their marriage, and a blush of pride suffused her face as she asked:

"What kind of a shell, darling?"

"An abalone shell," he replied.

She had never before heard of nor seen an abalone shell, but she did not want to display her ignorance, so she made up her mind to hunt it up in the "Condensed Conchology" that ornamented the center table. Next morning the first thing she did after her husband had left the house was to hunt up the description of an abalone shell. She found it. It was described as a shell about the size of an ordinary wagon wheel. She nursed her wrath during that day, and when her husband came home that night she met him at the door with a towel roller, and now his ear is as big as an abalone shell, but it looks like a piece of pounded beef.

THIS note from a Chicago girl to her lover was made public through a lawsuit:

Dear Samie—Papa's water-millions is ripe. Come and bring some more poetry like you brought afore. My love for you will ever flow, like water running down a tater row. Bring a piece as long as your arm, and have a heap more about them raven ringlitts and other sweet things. Come next Sunday, and don't fule me.

SERVIA-TURKISH WAR.—Of course the most important news at the present time comes from Indiana and other parts of the East. Therefore in this connection we give the following stolen bit of news for the benefit of the numerous friends of ours who are betting on the election: Fearful complications have since our last issue arisen in the course of the Servia-Turkish war. The Servians have been driven out of Gurgusovatz; Harvatovitch has fallen back on Alexinatz; Sevenyearsovitch has defeated Crackyerjawigatz; Pulldownyervestovich has inflicted a crushing blow on Wypoffyerchinoski, and Hitchupyerpantsovitch has publicly stated that Whiskisuckerovitch is a dirty sonuvagun—Gold Hill News.

A PREACHER walked up to a young man who was staring around at a revival once, and remarked: "My dear young fellow, are you looking for salvation?" "No," was the answer; "I was looking for Sal Sloper."

THE Coroner of Boston is charged with having abducted a child in order to furnish a young and childless couple from San Francisco with apparent offspring, and thus secure to them the possession of a handsome legacy.

UP to date 1,556 miles of new railroad track have this year been completed in the United States, against 746 miles reported for the corresponding period in 1875, 1,025 miles in 1874, 2,570 miles in 1873 and 4,623 in 1872.

Antidotes for Poisons.

[From Peterson's Magazine.]

Mothers and nurses not infrequently give those under their charge poisonous doses of acids, laudanum, etc., or administer them in haste by mistake; or children, ever restless, prying into cupboards and finding some bottles or vials have, out of curiosity, hastily swallowed laudanum, mineral acids and the like, whilst the younger children have been known, again and again, to get hold of saucers placed on floors and windows, containing a solution of cobalt, "fly-stone," or fly-paper.

Opium is the most common poisonous agent, taken or administered in the form of laudanum, Bateman's drops, Elixir paregoric, Godfrey's cordial, and, I fear, some soothing syrups, as well as most diarrhea and cholera mixtures. Any of these articles, administered to young children with unsparing hand, are liable to produce the dull, heavy stupor of opium poisoning. When the quantity taken is supposed to be sufficiently large to produce death, the first and great object is to remove the poison from the stomach by an active emetic dose; and the most convenient and safest for a mother to give is finely powdered mustard, suspended in warm water. This, or ipecac, may be given freely, till copious vomiting is excited.

The patient must be kept constantly roused and in motion, by walking; cold water being occasionally dashed over his head and face. After vomiting has been effected, strong coffee and aqua ammonia may be administered with good results.

When sulphuric acid, or oil of vitriol, nitric acid, or aquafortis, and oxalic acid have been swallowed, or poisonous acids of any kind, the mother should administer as speedily as possible an alkali to neutralize it, such as chalk, baking soda, lime-water, magnesia, saleratus or strong soap suds. For prussic acid give diluted ammonia, and resort to the cold douche and electricity. If there should be any delay in getting any of these antidotes ready, mustard and warm water may be given with dilutents till vomiting occurs.

If arsenic or any of its preparations has been unwarily taken, magnesia or charcoal may be administered freely, stirred in milk, which will hold or arrest poisonous action, at least till the physician arrives with hydrated protoxide of iron, stomach-pump, etc.; though there is ample evidence in medical records to prove that patients have been saved by the free use of charcoal, suspended in milk; so also has an infusion of tobacco given freely, been successful, in those unused to the noxious weed. One of these agents are almost always at hand in every household, and hence no serious alarm need be manifested in slight accidents of this kind.

As mothers are apt to have in the house solutions of corrosive sublimate, or "bug-poison," children may tamper with the bottle; and, in such cases, prompt action is salvation to the child. She must not wait to summon a physician, but give immediately the whites of eggs, beaten up in water, without measure. The gluten of wheat flour is also useful, which can readily be employed by throwing a handful of flour into two or three pints of water, and administer it as fast as possible.

Poisoning in families by other agents are so rare that it is unnecessary to mention them. To recapitulate: In all cases where poisonous substances have been taken into the stomach, the first step is to cause their ejection by vomiting, by simple means; if possible, or by neutralizing them by the proper antidotes.

Explosive Agriculture--Dynamite versus Plows.

[From the Scientific American.]

The agents of Nobel, the well-known inventor of nitro-glycerin, have lately found a novel use for dynamite in grape culture, which suggests further possibilities. The explosive was not used for its chemical effect, but in a purely mechanical way, literally to "shake up" the earth and allow the free percolation of water and the access of air to the roots of the vines. To this end holes were made in the soil to about ten feet in depth, and at points where no roots of the vines were likely to be injured. Then cartridges of dynamite were introduced and exploded, and the result was that, for the entire depth noted, the earth was made loose and friable. The ground, in short, was not only rendered in better condition than could have been effected by plow and harrow; but every phylloxera, so the writer says, on roots of the vines was killed. The quantity of dynamite used is not stated, but it is likely to have been but small, just enough to shake the soil without blowing up the vines.

It seems to us that the use of dynamite in agricultural operations need not stop here. Instead of breaking up old pasture lands with the plow with great labor, the farmer might bore holes here and there, drop dynamite cartridges, blow them up, and in a second find his soil loosened and all noxious worms and insects therein destroyed. Dynamite, however, is a dangerous material, and hardly one of which to counsel the indiscriminite use; but nevertheless it might prove a profitable venture for engineers and powder and nitro-glycerin manufacturers, and others who may be safely and lawfully trusted with the explosive, to offer their services in breaking up land for farmers.

A DRESS must literally fit like a glove to be in the fashion. A lady at Newport last week wore a skin-lke covering of amber satin that was so tight from throat to toe it had to be drawn on. The train was quite a separate affair, apparently, and though a good many yards of the material were consumed in its construction, she could not bend her knees without bursting the front of the jupe. Poor thing! There she stood all the evening like a brass candlestick, and as unlimber as an old fashioned wooden doll. The days of the Empress Josephine have returned in all their glory.

Yerba Buena Bitters.

The Great Cathartic and Regulator.

Purely a Vegetable Compound! Harmless but Powerful!

MESSRS. WILLIAMS & CO.—GENTLEMEN: It is with pleasure I indorse your YERBA BUENA BITTERS. I have never found such instant and permanent relief as from the use of your most invaluable compound. I have been subjected to costiveness and a torpid liver for five years, and am now entirely cured, after using only two bottles of your YERBA BUENA. I am certain that it was YERBA BUENA that cured me of the palpitation of the heart. I am happy to state through the use of your BITTERS I am a well man. All wishing to be convinced of the above, I will give you my residence: 209 Liedesdorff street, San Francisco. JOHN R. STEERE.

MESSRS. H. WILLIAMS & Co.: Dear Sirs—As long as I can remember, I have been troubled with Pin Worms, and at times felt as if I was being devoured alive. Early in March, 1875, I was induced to use your YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and within One Month I was entirely cured. I have not been troubled with them since, and am satisfied that I am PERMANENTLY cured. I think it is the best preparation for Constipation and Billious Troubles known.

A. B. HOWARD,
No. 12 Quincy street, San Francisco.

I take pleasure in recommending the YERBA BUENA BITTERS. I have used three bottles and found more relief from them than anything I have ever used. I had been troubled with Constipation of the Bowels, Torpid Liver and general debility for a long time, and found no relief until the YERBA BUENA BITTERS cured me.

S. BROOKS, Petaluma.

Seeking health on the Pacific Coast, my attention was called to Dr. Warren's YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and took some for headache, which cured me so perfectly that I bought a bottle and have not taken any other medicine since. It is a perfect cure for any derangement of the stomach or constipation, and I recommend it before any other medicine, as it leaves the system in a healthy state and no dieting is necessary. Please send your Bitters all over the world, for it will be a blessing to humanity beyond the power of words to express. I write you freely and from actual experience CYRUS CUMMINGS,

CHAPTER VI.—THE RAILROADS.

MESSRS. EDITORS—One of the greatest mechanical wonders to be seen upon the overland trip is the Union Pacific railroad bridge across the Missouri River at Omaha. This huge structure was completed February 20, 1872. Previous to that date passengers and traffic were transferred across the great river in steamboats. The bridge comprises 11 spans, each span 250 feet in length, elevated 50 feet above high water mark. For about two and one-half years 500 men and 10 steam engines were constantly employed on this magnificent bridge. The total length of the iron structure is 2,750 feet. Considerable trestle work from the first abutment to the bank has been constructed, so that the entire length of the bridge with necessary approaches is 9,950 feet—about 200 yards short of two miles. Total cost $2,650,000, and the annual revenue is $400,000.

Very fast building was done by both the Union and the Central Pacific Companies. Almost incredible instances of fast track-laying is on record. The Pacific Tourist has the following facts and figures: "A little engineering rivalry was manifested, good natured but keen, as to the largest number of miles each company could lay in one day. The Union Pacific men laid one day six miles; soon after the Central followed suit by laying seven. The Union Pacific retaliated by laying seven and a half; to this the Central sent the announcement that they could lay ten miles in one day. Mr. Durant, Vice President of the Union Pacific, sent back a wager of $10,000 that it could not be done. The pride and spirit of the Central Pacific had now been challenged, and they prepared for the enormous contest. The 29th of April, 1869, was selected for the trial. Work began at the appointed time, and by 7 o'clock P. M. of that day they had finished their task of ten miles, with 200 feet over—or at the rate of 144 feet of track to every minute! This was the greatest feat of railroad building ever known in the world. To put this material in place over 4,000 men had been constantly employed. The laborers on that day handled 25,800 crossties, 3,520 iron rails, 55,000 spikes, 7,040 fish-plates and 14,080 bolts, the weight of the whole being 4,362,000 pounds."

Wonderful results have been accomplished in a few years by the Pacific Railroad. In 1850 the Far West was almost unknown and unexplored. In 1860 its total population was but 619,000, most of whom were residents of the Pacific Coast. In 1870 the population had doubled. In 1876, seven years after the opening of the Pacific railroad, the population of the far Western States and Territories had again increased 40 per cent. Population in 1875, 1,524,703; area of square miles, 1,445,332; area of square acres, 1,332,744;755. The entire capital now invested in this vast region, in railroad enterprises, exceeds $750,000,000. Over 300 towns and stations have arisen on the great transcontinental route and its branches. The annual receipts exceeds $30,000,000, and the number of passengers, through and local, exceed 1,000,000.

Piute has dwelt thus long on railroads in order to convince some of his dusky brethren in Owens Valley, many of whom are strongly prejudiced against railroads. They contend that two horses and a cart, or a lot of pack-mules, are amply sufficient for transportation purposes, and for the full development of Inyo and Mono. Of course we have no souls above buttons and taboose.

CHAPTER VII.—WESTERN FARMING.

The distance from Omaha to Chicago is 400 miles. The passenger trains running east rush at the rate of 40 or more miles per hour. The rolling prairies, fine swelling hills, highly cultivated farms, with beautiful groves of various kinds of trees, give a charming air to the whole region between Omaha and Chicago.

Although the grand prairie, dotted here and there with comfortable houses and inhabited by noble people would to a Piute be suggestive of a paradise, still discontentment lurks there as well as elsewhere. The farmer recounts the mishaps and shortcomings connected with his avocation—too much rain or too little; heavy winds or poor market; but the worst of all, probably, is the irrepressible grasshopper! I can give you the distance in miles, yards, feet or inches from San Francisco to New York or from there to the moon, but it is impossible by any of the combinations of arithmetic to convey to the human mind the number of grasshoppers which infest many localities. At every step you take they start up from the ground by millions; they are in the air by millions, circulating in a gyratory nebula composed of hundreds of thousands of millions, etc., etc. It is thought that the "varmint" will soon cease hostilities, being that the king grasshopper was lately captured at Owatonna, Minnesota. His royal highness measured 2½ inches in length, ⅝ of an inch across the back and 1¾ inches in circumference. The grasshopper is an overwhelming subject—too great for a newspaper article, but might do for a Congressional report.

I had a conversation in the cars with two farmers, one from Iowa and the other from Kansas. The latter stated that the crops of small grain were light there this year. In his county the average yield would not exceed eight bushels to the acre. The Iowa farmer said the crops were also light in his State. His own experience this year, was thus related: "Last Spring I sowed 160 bushels of wheat and from the whole have only threshed 130 bushels, being a loss of 30 bushels on the seed." Many others, he said, shared the same fate. The failures were caused by draught and grasshoppers.

Fine crops of corn could be seen in places along the line of the railroad, and where the grasshoppers do allow it to grow they say it is "huge corn." However, Piute has seen corn on Bishop Creek and in Round Valley that would compare favorably with the best he has seen on his travels. These Western farmers complain bitterly of the small margin of profits realized by them. They say that fully one-half the crop goes to transport the other half to market. Corn often sells as low as ten cents a bushel! Should such a rate prevail in Owens Valley, Mr. Sneden would have to get a sack of corn for a pound of sugar. Ugh!!

TINNEMUCKAHEE.

AMOS' BOOK-KEEPER.—We asked Amos how his boy was getting on at school.

"Why, what for?"

"Uh, oh! he was gittin' mos' too smart down dar wid dat book-larnin'. 'Twon't do fur som niggers to be too agikated."

"Why not, Amos?"

"Well, sah, jess take dat boy, frinstance. I put dat boy ter keep books for me 'bout de sellin' ob de gardin' truck dis Summer. Well, sah, he jess writ down charges dar in de book fer all dat we eat'in de house, for all de truck dat I tuck out de gardin', an' charges fer all dat I sole, and den credit hisself wid de little 'mounts dat I let him hab 'long at odd 'casions, an' den he go an' add dem all up and struck er balunce, he say."

"And how did you come out?"

"Come out? 'Fore de Good Marster I didn't come out 'tall! Dat boy dun stuck me fer 'bout thutty-fibe dollars, 'sides his wages as de book-keepah. Now, dat's wat de figgers sed."

Well, what did you do?"

"You did?"

"Yes, sah, I did dat. Why, boss, ef dat boy had 'kep' dat book on me tell now, he'd done owned dat house an' gyardin' patch, an' ben chargin' me an' his ole mammy fer bed and bread! I tell yer dis hyar book larnin' is ruinin' dis young breed ob niggers—'tis shore!"—Atlanta Constitution.

HOW TO MAKE THE TEA GO FURTHER. A method has been discovered for making more than the usual quantity of tea from any given quantity of the leaf. The whole secret consists in steaming the leaf before steeping. By this process, it is said, 14 pints of good quality may be brewed from one ounce of tea.

Two things, well considered, would prevent many quarrels; first, to have it well ascertained whether we are not disputing about terms rather than things; and secondly to examine whether that on which we differ is worth contending about.

ONLY 1,100 tons of ore a day are to be taken out of the California and Consolidated Virginia mines hereafter. This will give a yield of $1,500,000 monthly for each mine.

THE English Commander-in-Chief is said to have orders to hold three army corps in readiness for immediate dispatch to the Mediterranean.

A PROPOSITION will be submitted at the next session of the German Parliament to largely increase the silver coinage of that country.

WHALERS DESTROYED. — The bark Florence, of the Arctic whaling fleet, arrived at San Francisco on the 21st, bringing the news of another of those fearful disasters by which twelve vessels were caught in the pack beyond hope of rescue, and, with full cargoes of oil and bone, had to be abandoned. But two of the fleet, the Florence and Three Brothers, escaped, and upon these were packed about 400 of the survivors of the abandoned ships; about 60 preferred to chance their lives with the natives or aboard the ships in the ice rather than to face the dangers and intense suffering attending the effort to reach the vessels in open water. It is thought they have no chance but for a lingering death. No vestige has ever been seen of any part of the large fleet similarly abandoned in the same waters in 1871.

A STORY FOR BOYS.—A serial story entitled "His Own Master," by J. F. Trowbridge, begins in the December number of the St. Nicholas Magazine. No one who has ever read any of this writer's splendidly told stories but will look for this one with great interest. The November number of the magazine is at hand, and it is enough to say that it is fully up to its usual high standard. We do not know that the fact makes the St. Nicholas any more or less desirable, but the London Times says it is the best magazine for young folks in the world—which is pretty high praise, but not in the least extravagant as we appreciate its excellencies.

WHY NOT?—Settle this little election business, and then while Europe is fighting over her Sick Man of the East, let the United States pacify Mexico, the turbulent Republic and the Sick Woman of the West, by establishing a Protectorate and then effecting a quiet annexation. Under the plan it might be expected that the care and attention necessarily devoted to such an elegant lot of citizens as would be acquired, would, by giving carpet-baggers and White Liners a new field to operate in, tend toward giving Mississippi and South Carolina a rest.

THE Republicans of Colorado decline to vote for a new member for the Forty-fifth Congress, claiming that the member elected at the late election for the present Congress, was also constitutionally chosen for the succeeding one. The Democrats demur, and will therefore elect their candidate next month without opposition. Then both will be on hand claiming the same seat in the Congress beginning on the 5th of next March.

A LONDON dispatch of the 23d says that the steady advance of consols and other international stocks, which fell during the panic of the previous week, indicates a prevailing impression there that war is not imminent, and that a peaceful solution of the Eastern question is not impossible.

THE London Times is in favor of leaving the "Sick Man" to his fate—of letting Russia and the rest take and divide up his territory as they please, England, however, to hold on to Constantinople to the last extremity. That is just about how the thing ought to be fixed.

IF the "United States Election Inspector" now nosing into the San Francisco Great Register should happen to mosey around Inyo, some of us in this benighted region would learn of the existence of a federal official that we never heard of before.

STAGE ROBBERS ARRESTED.—Alexander Condree, and two brothers of the name of Kelly, were arrested in Siskiyou county, October 21st, for complicity in the Scott Bar stage robbery. One of them has confessed.

DISRAELI, now Lord Beaconsfield, says all Europe is honey-combed with secret societies. London, Berlin and St. Petersburg are their headquarters; they are all political, and their power is tremendous.

THE constitutionality of the Enforcement Act and of Attorney-General Taft's order have been called in question in Georgia.

THE loss on the New Bedford whalers in the Arctic fleet is nearly half a million. The vessels were well insured.

FAMINE is threatened in India. Crops have failed, rivers are drying up and cattle are dying of starvation.

A THREE days' battle is reported between the Turks and Servians, in which the latter were defeated.

THE WAR IN EUROPE.

It was thought for a time that a general European war could not be averted. Later dates, however, state that there are fair prospects that hostilities will be confined to Russia and Turkey alone, with a chance that diplomacy may stop even that. But, up to the 22d, Russia was actively engaged in preparing for bitter war against Turkey, and unless England, France, Austria and Germany or some of them step in to uphold the Turk there is hardly a doubt but that Turkey as a nation will soon be among the things that were—a consummation most devoutly to be hoped for. This is why the sympathies of the American people generally are on the side of Russia, and certainly not at all with England, if her interference is solely with the view and purpose of maintaining the Turkish government as it is, which was the object and result of the Crimean war. But we hope for better things from this great Power, this time. Civilization, not to say religion, would most assuredly be much more the gainer if England should gobble up Turkey than for Russia to do the same thing. This is probably just what England will do, if Russia and the other great Powers will permit. But therein lies the trouble; neither of the Powers can afford to allow Britain to have the undivided control of the Bosphorus, while, on the other hand, the very existence of Britain as a first class power is contingent upon preventing either of the others, and especially Russia, from gaining that great vantage ground. Then, as the only alternative short of a long and ruinous war, England, France, Austria or Germany, one or all, must interpose to prevent the Czar from getting possession of Constantinople, while at the same time there are cogent reasons why the others cannot allow either one of their own number to obtain control of the same. It is not at all likely that England will stop for mere sentiment, and allow Russia to kill off the Turks in the interest of humanity to the people of the provinces over which they domineer only for murder and rapine. No; the same old question of commercial interests will compel her to step in and maintain "the Sick Man" in all his most shocking iniquities. That is to say, she must maintain him as he is, rather than to permit Russia to drive him out and take possession herself. In that contingency also humanity would throw our sympathy with Russia, for be the Russians as intolerant and bigoted as they may, by no combination of circumstances could their supremacy in the Turkish provinces be any worse than is that of the Turks, while the chances are it would be a thousand times better for the people most interested if not for the world at large. It would be better for civilization, too, but for this one reason: England, as it appears, would then cease to be a leading power, and her vast civilizing influence would be correspondingly cut down, to the Christian world's loss and sorrow.

The whole Eastern question, both in fact and sentiment, is a most complicated muddle. The only solution of the problem, regarded as a sentiment, would be—first, to annihilate the Turkish power; and, second, to divide up her territory among the leading nations in such a manner as to leave the balance of power somewhat as it now is.

These very complications and mutual jealousies give the best assurance that no general war will follow. The Turk will be compelled to relinquish his hold on those provinces, and Russia will be compelled to stop before she reaches Constantinople, where "the Sick Man" will still be allowed to linger along merely to fill a place it would not do for any well man like Russia or England to be allowed to take and hold.

BRUTAL ASSAULT.—The San Francisco Chronicle, in publishing what is called the "black list," classed a large number as "squatters," but whether in an offensive spirit or not does not appear. Among these were John and Charles Duane, the latter being the somewhat notorious individual who got a ticket of leave from the Vigilantes some years ago. For the alleged offense John Duane laid for Chas. de Young of the Chronicle, and meeting him on the street, at once assaulted him in the most savage manner. Physically the latter was unable to cope with the beastly ruffian, the result being that he was nearly killed before rescued by outside interference. During the time de Young made some demonstrations as if to draw a pistol and defend himself, but we are sorry to say that he did not carry out that praiseworthy intention. The Alta, from which we derive the facts, adds:

Strangely enough, no arrest was made, and indeed no complaint seems to have been entered by any one. It is singular and unfortunate that an assault of this violent nature can be committed in broad daylight on the public streets, without any measures being taken to punish the disturber of the peace.

A CONSPIRACY, having for its object the murder of the Grand Vizier and Midhah Pasha, has just been discovered by the Turkish Government.

A FREIGHT ISSUE.

As we observe by the Coso Mining News, quite an issue has sprung up in regard to freight charges by the Cerro Gordo Freighting Company. We have not given the subject the attention its importance probably deserves, and in any event perhaps could not offer anything likely to better the matter.

In times past THE INDEPENDENT has had a good deal to say about what it considered the vital importance to this section of cheaper freights. It is no less a desideratum now than heretofore. We did not expect then, nor is it to be hoped for now, that this great desideratum can ever be attained until the iron horse takes the place of mules and horses. The reason for this, as deduced from facts and figures at that time, is that teamsters could not make a living with freight rates any lower than they were. In fact it was only the bullion teams that could do it at all at the then prevailing rates. The charges for up-freights were, if we remember rightly, just double those for the down-freights, which was the bullion. But as it took twice as many teams to haul the bullion out as it did to haul the merchandise, machinery, etc., in, about the only profit left the teamster was what he got for his back load, as the other barely paid current expenses for the time it was on the wagon. In the nature of the case, the whole control of freights fell into the hands of the bullion shippers. By refusing to let contracts for the removal of the whole of their bullion they could have kept many independent or "jerk-water" teams on the road. In the usual run of affairs these would have bid against each other for the occasional loads of up-freight, and no doubt the rate for this class would have been much lower at times. The bullion, though, would have had to lay at the furnaces to suit the conveniencies or return loads of the teamsters, or else would have had to pay a considerably heavier rate. Nothing but the contract system would subserve the bullion interest, and such contracts could only be taken by a teaming company of heavy capital, thoroughly equipped for the most economical work. The matter of rates for up-freights was thus placed in their hands, as it was rarely an independent or outside teamster could afford to load at all. This made the freighting for this county almost as perfect a monopoly as that across the continent. Like the Central Pacific and all other monopolies, that freighting company (afterwards merged into the Cerro Gordo Freighting Company) fixed the tariff on up-freights at just such a figure as would keep out competition. These rates, all the facts and circumstances considered, have up to the present been accepted as quite fair and reasonable. So long as there is no margin or inducement for competition, we are bound to conclude that the monopoly is not materially abusing its privileges. Four cents from Mojave probably pays the Company better than did five from Caliente, and if there was enough freight from that direction to make a fair balance for the bullion from this, the Company could well afford to reduce something like 50 per cent. on present rates, and if they did not then independent teamsters might find tolerably steady work and make a living; but as it is there is no room or pay for enough outside teaming to enforce a reduction. As before intimated, none but a thoroughly equipped, regular line of teams, run on the most economical principles, can do the work and make a fair per centage on the capital invested, even at the present high rates. All the points considered, we think the mining and merchandising interests, the ones chiefly concerned, ought to be satisfied that freight rates are not more burdensome. As things are the Freighting Company has an absolute monopoly, subject to no control at the hands of this public or any other, save that of the more powerful monopoly, the Southern Pacific. Both have done pretty fairly by us. We can hope for no material reduction in freight charges until we have a railroad. That could and would reduce freight costs to such an extent as to make a vast difference in mining developments, and thereby people both mountains and valley. The extent of reduction now possible would certainly be a material help to existing mining enterprises, and to merchants, but the advantage thus gained will not extend far enough of itself to induce new enterprises, as would a railroad. The latter would reduce the selling rates of goods as well as farm products, but it would also give a more extended market for the latter, since it would vastly increase the number of consumers. A possible reduction of half a cent or so in wagon freights would not make the slightest perceptible change in favor of the merchants' customers, whether miners, farmers or what not. The benefits to accrue in that event would be limited principally to merchants and such mining companies as imported their own supplies. This is simply the ethics of the case, and is not in any sense offered as an argument that even so slight a reduction as that mentioned is not worth an effort to obtain. But there is hardly enough in it to the general public to be worth making much of a fuss about, unless there is enough in it to justify a freighting opposition, which does not appear to be the case, or else the road would soon be lined with "jerk-waters."

THE SAN FRANCISCO "BLACK LIST."

All around about quite a howl has been raised because a revision of the Great Register of San Francisco shows that there are some 4,000 names upon it in such wording as not to fulfill the plain requirements of law. These rejected registrations are published as a notification to the parties, so that they can come forward and re-register if they can prove the right. There are various causes for these rejections, but the principal portion were for non-compliance with that part of the statutes requiring the applicant to establish the date, place and Court, when he cannot produce his original papers, showing, on his own oath at least, when, where and by what Court he was naturalized. The simple entry, so common on every Great Register in the State, of "naturalized; papers lost," does not constitute a legal registration. We do not know that such defects would afford tenable grounds for challenge at the polls, but that would be the logical inference, and it would be well for all interested to look into the matter in time to amend their registrations if deemed requisite. This is what they are doing in San Francisco at the rate of 200 and 300 a day. This is all the hardship there is involved in the whole matter. If it is too much of a hardship for a man to re-register in proper shape and thus show his asserted citizenship, it is also too much for him to go to the polls at all. Either comply with so plain a letter of the law or disregard the law in toto and make it a free fight. It don't look well for the very ones who enacted this really good law to be the first to kick up a childish muss at the enforcement of one of its leading safeguards. This so-called "black list" contains the names of many leading citizens both native and alien; the former mostly for the reason that they had not previously voted in the time limited by law. No doubt most of these inefficient registrations are attributable to carelessness of registering officers; and then again there are some there by false swearing, and they are the only ones to be seriously affected.

THE NEXT CONGRESS.

Considerable figuring is being done as to the probable political complexion of the next Congress. The present one, the second session of which expires on the 4th of next March, stands thus: Senate—43 Republicans to 30 Democrats, including three Independents with the first and one with the latter; in the House the Democrats have a clear majority of 60. For the next Congress 26 Senators are to be elected. As the majority of the places to be filled are now occupied by Democrats, their highest possible gain will be 5. This would leave at the lowest a Republican majority of 6 in that body. In the House, as figured out by the Chicago Times, a Tilden paper, the Democrats will have a majority of but 17. This estimate, however, was made prior to the late elections, making no allowance for the Republican gain of nine Congressmen made in Ohio and Indiana jointly. These nine credited to the other side leave the totals: Democrats, 146; Republicans, 147. This assumes that the relative proportions will be maintained in New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, California, Wisconsin and New Jersey. That these proportions will be maintained is improbable, but others can guess quite as well as we as to the extent and character of the change. It is quite certain, however, that neither party will have an overpowering majority in the House.

NEW POSTAL ARRANGEMENT.—Since the 10th instant the work of the Dead Letter Office at Washington has been so much curtailed that it is no longer possible to send back to the writers any but valuable communications. Since 1861 the Dead Letter Office has sent back to the writers all letters remaining in the Postoffice unclaimed one month. This now ceases, and no letters are sent back but those containing checks, receipts, money, etc. This will work serious inconvenience throughout the country, but is rendered necessary by the reduced appropriations for the United States postal service.

A Railroad to the Black Hills.

[From the Omaha Bee, Oct. 18.]

Col. H. B. Jenks, Director of the West End Passenger Railway at the Centennial grounds, Philadelphia, has been in this city about a week, investigating the feasibility and prospects of building a railroad from Sidney to the Black Hills. He has thirty-seven passenger cars, several engines, a large amount of rails, and other material, for which he will have no use after the Centennial closes next month. He is a man of considerable wealth, as well as enterprise, and if everything is favorable he proposes to build the road above mentioned. He had a long conversation with Sidney Dillon and Jay Gould when they were here in regard to making up a pro rata arrangement as to freight, but they could give him no definite reply until they had a meeting in New York. We understand that Col. Jenks is having a preliminary survey of the route made and a measurement taken, and is now waiting for his engineers to complete their work and make their report. If Col. Jenks becomes thoroughly convinced that the Black Hills contain plenty of quartz, and are going to hold out, he will construct the road. We have no doubt that he, or anybody else, would receive liberal aid in the enterprise from various sources, especially from the miners themselves, and also from Omaha, which would be greatly benefited thereby. If Col. Jenks does not construct the road, his skirmishing around may wake up the Union Pacific ro undertake the work. The indications now are that Omaha will have railroad communication with the Black Hills within a year.

STAGE ROBBERY.—A Tehechepi correspondent of the Kern County Gazette has this to say about that last stage robbery below here:

On Friday night last, as the Lone Pine and Panamint stage was on its up trip from Mojave it was stopped by a single "road agent." Wells, Fargo & Co.'s treasure box was taken, which contained $2,000. The whole affair, as related by T. L. Neely of this place, who was a passenger, is shrouded with mystery and conveys a suspicion that all was not right. Mr. Neely states that after leaving Indian Wells station and having traveled about two miles (this being about 7 o'clock P. M. and quite dark), the stage came to a sudden halt; but thinking little about the stopping, the driver in a few moments proceeded, when he and Jerry Glenn, who was also a passenger, asked what was up? whereupon the driver replied that a "road agent" had overhauled him. Neely states that they thought they heard the box drop and that everything, if there was a robbery at all, was done very quietly, and they heard not a word spoken. The driver, alike to "Baldy Green" (whom everybody knows), passed on.

OATMEAL IN THE HOUSEHOLD.—In Great Britain children of all ranks are raised on an oatmeal diet alone, because it causes them to grow strong and healthful, and no better food can possibly be found for them. It is also quite as desirable for the student as for the laborer, and for the delicate lady as for her hard-working sister. Indeed all classes would be greatly benefitted by its use, and dyspepsia, with all its manifold annoyances, can be kept at a distance. Oatmeal is most substantial food. It is said to be better than veal, pork or lamb, and quite equal to beef or mutton, giving as much or more mental vigor, while its great desideratum consists in one's not becoming weary of it. It is a welcome for breakfast or tea as wheat or Graham bread. It can be eaten with syrup and butter as hasty-pudding, or with cream and sugar like rice. It is especially good for young mothers, upon whose nervous forces too great a demand has been made, and they lose the equilibrium of the system and become depressed and dispirited. Oatmeal requires to be cooked slowly, and the water should be boiling hot when it is stirred in. — Baldwin's Monthly.

"IT IS NOT MINE."—It often happens that the very people most particular respecting their own things are most wanton in their disregard of the property of others. Habits of neatness and economy are assuredly commendable, but they become mean when applied to one's individual use, and when the reflection "it is not mine" is looked upon as a release from care. This thought, on the contrary, should render the merest trifle important in our eyes. A truly benevolent heart and thinking mind dictate a desire to protect the right, reputation and property even of a stranger. We like the man who goes back in the night to fling aside a stone against which he has hurt his foot, so that the next passer-by, whoever he may be, may be spared the same evil. It is a trifle, but springs from good principle, and carried out into the great ramifications of society may produce happiness incalculable.—Ex.

CARROTS INSTEAD OF EGGS.—An exchange says: It is not generally known that boiled carrots, when properly prepared, form an excellent substitute for eggs in pudding. They must, for this purpose, be boiled and mashed, and passed through a coarse cloth or hair sieve strainer. The pulp is then introduced among the other ingredients of the pudding, to the total omission of eggs. A pudding made up in this way is much lighter than where eggs are used, and it is much more palatable. On the principle of economy, this fact is worthy of the prudent housewife's attention.

THE Danbury News says: This is not only an exciting, but a very interesting political campaign. Women as well as men have a duty to perform to their country, and they should not shrink from it. They cannot vote or appear in public processions, but they can cut wood and bring up the coal, and thus leave the men more time to talk up matters.

DURING the past three days herds of Mormons have been gathering at the sink-hole of iniquity, and it is estimated that more than a hundred polygamous marriages have been solemnized within its unholy walls.—Salt Lake Tribune. Oct. 18.

For the protection of workmen who are obliged to handle lead and mercury compounds, the French chemist, Melsens, recommends daily, but in very small doses, iodide of potassium taken internally. Melsens affirms that this substance dissolves the lead or mercurial compounds that are absorbed in the system and effects their rapid removal.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 28.....1876.

INDIAN WIT—An old Indian known as Sam, who does odd jobs at Taboose Station for his hogadie and tobacco money, the other day perpetrated the smartest practical joke that ever a Piute was guilty of. Old Sam was on the road about eight miles south of Harry's place, footing it through the heat and dust to to the station, when he was met by a two-horse peddling outfit, which was engineered and conducted by an Israelite strictly on the make. Mr. Peddler was somewhat unsophisticated in the ways of the sage-brush, but with his eye single to business he hailed Ancient Samuel and asked if he didn't "want to buy somedings." "Yas," replied Sam. "Don't you want a fine cassimere shirt?" "Yas, me clatchum." And the Indian grunted in his blank, idiotic way his entire willingness and ability to purchase anything, but said that his money was at Harry Wright's. To meet this condition of affairs the peddler most accommodatingly turned back and proffered Sam a ride to the station, which was promptly accepted. Upon arriving there the aborigine selected several articles and proceeded to beat down the prices to the lowest possible figures. And then, after a close inspection of a shirt, he threw it back with the ejaculation—"Ugh! heap dam rotten!" He then straightway left the perambulating merchant and sailed into a wood-pile, pretending to chop like all possessed until the peddler was gone. Some one asked Sam what he meant by fooling the man that way. Said he: "Sun heap hot; Injin putty tired; heap clatchum ride—purty good."

HOW HE TRAVELED.—A good story (good because it is a fact) is told of a tramp, who, some months since, hailed from the north, and ahead of him came the report of his unmitigated cheek in his manner of bumming along the road. It was thus he managed: On arriving at a station he would call up every lounger and fellow passenger and order the drinks or cigars for all hands. After the usual ceremony of moustache wiping, etc., he would wink at the bar-keeper and say, "That's on me." The astonished cock-tail diluter would naturally inquire, "Who in thunder are you?" The bum would lay one hand on his revolver and make the rather heavy statement—"My name is Poker Bill; I have traveled all the way from Omaha on this." That was the news the stage drivers imparted at a place not a great way from Independence, and a few days later along came the irrepressible individual from Omaha. The proprietor of the station had been forewarned, but he set up the refreshments and the same performance above described was enacted until "Poker Bill" started to tell how he had traveled all the way from Omaha, when he suddenly found himself looking down the muzzle of a huge Colt's pistol in the hands of the bar-keeper who quietly informed the bum that he had traveled far enough. "Poker Bill" did not even demur, but paid his bill like a little man, remarking something about the people being so particular about trifles.

GRAND TIME AT THE TABOOSE.—The races and a grand ball will come off at the Taboose as advertised, on November 4, and there will be no disappointment as Harry has been assured by the horse men and the racing fraternity that a full attendance may be expected at the races—thus warranting him in going to considerable pains in putting the track in excellent condition. The ball which is to come off in the evening of the same day, will be the attractive feature for all who indulge in that kind of amusement. The best music attainable will be engaged and every accommodation offered for the comfort and enjoyment of the guests. But the usual hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Wright on previous occasions is advertisement enough to attract everybody who can spare the time for a little diversion. Ye knights of the alligator shoe are advised to trim their corns and secure their dulcineas in time, or perchance the walls may be somewhat uncomfortably crowded with the blooming array of night-opening burdocks, jimpson, mint-julip posies, etc.

NOT BROUGHT BACK.—That thief hasn't brought our shotgun back yet. We are now free to admit that we haven't the remotest idea in the world who he is, but we will undertake to say that any individual who can steal an old debilitated shotgun like that, and especially from a printer man, would gladly take the coppers from the eyes of a defunct Ethiopian, and therefore we conclude he is no gentleman, and hope that he may overlook the serious defect in the left barrel until it blows up and sets his nose nineteen points to the windward—moreover that every infernal cat that this old gun would have naturally pacified had it remained in this print shop, may live to caterwaul him until he becomes a decent man—which would keep the entire feline tribe in active business from now on till Tilton makes the world believe that was a pure accident, his last sleeping car escapade. Those are our private feelings concerning the shotgun.

DEPARTED.—To the regret of numerous friends and acquaintances hereabouts, Miss Ida Hardy this week took her departure for her home in Sierra county. And now the question arises, "what sort of stuff are our young men made of?"

DISAGREEABLE.—We dislike to call attention to disagreeable subjects, but nevertheless the inevitable has to be faced, and it is well for tax payers to read what the Collectors advertise they are going to do to make things as handy as possible.

TO-NIGHT.—Inyo Lodge, No. 221, F. & A. M., will meet to-night at the Hall, at the usual hour.

REX MONTIS MINE.—An important development was made in the Rex Montis, this week, and of course Manager Holt feels highly elated. The value of this discovery will readily be perceived when it is understood that now a safe estimate can be made of the extent of the chimney and approximate number of tons of high grade ore which was struck in the upper tunnel. The upper tunnel is in 112 feet, cutting 90 feet of its length in ore. Some 75 feet lower down is the second level where the men have been at work for some time, the object being to find this same body of ore and obtain some idea of its extent. Monday last Mr. Holt predicted they would strike it in twenty-four hours; this was after they had gone about eight feet without a sign of ore. Holt staked his mule to a snow-bank and awaited results; and sure enough he had not to wait long till they did strike it, and rich at that. Now it only requires a simple geometrical calculation to size the pile between the two levels. An assay was made from a specimen about the size of a man's head which give a clear assay value of $500 per ton, about the average for all the high grade ore. As long as the weather permits the ore will be packed down to the mill, there being enough now in sight to keep it running a long time, and to its full capacity.

HOW HE WON A POT.—The other evening a party of some prominence happened in where there was a little social game of bit-ante draw poker going on; into this he insinuated himself, and soon raised the ante to a dollar and upwards: not only that but he also raised six likely looking cards, and covering the ten or twelve dollars in the "kettle" with one paw gathered it in, and defiantly invited any son of a female canine there present to dispute his right thereto. No one did but still they did not think it gentlemanly. That is about what one of the sufferers tells us, but he at the same time positively declined to give the name of the somewhat prominent party, though he thought the circumstance worth mentioning, hence this reference touching something we don't vouch for in full.

SHOOTING AT DARWIN.—Last Sunday at Darwin an altercation took place between Jas. Wales, late Deputy Sheriff at that place, and —— Gillette, which ended in an exchange of pistol shots—Wales receiving one through the leg and Gillette one in the shoulder, neither dangerous hurts. We have no particulars other than that Gillette was arrested and taken before Justice McManus who, after a hearing, discharged him, and that Wales is to undergo a similar examination on the charge of having been the assaulting party. The cause assigned by rumor for the difficulty relates to one of the late stage robberies. Wales, it is said, having charged or expressed the belief that Gillette had had something to do with it.

ACQUITTED.—Hawkins, who has been in custody for the last month or more, awaiting trial for horse stealing, was put on trial before Judge Hannah of the County Court on Wednesday last, R. M. Briggs appearing as his counsel. There were but two or three witnesses examined on either side. None of them could testify to anything satisfactorily proving that the defendant had come into possession of the horses in an unlawful manner, so after brief consideration the jury returned a verdict of not guilty, whereupon Hawkins was discharged. And now people wonder why he was ever held at all.

THE BENEFIT OF A NOTICE.—Last week, in something of a congratulating spirit, we alluded to the remarkable scarcity, this Fall, of the outrageous nuisances, the "yaller jackets." It would hardly be decent to arrogate too much to ourselves in regard to newspaper influence, but nevertheless, the very next day the jackets appeared multitudinously, if any one knows how that is, and just as full of business as ever. They buzzed people nearly as bad as the one-horse politicians and we can testify to the stinging nature of the points they advanced in support of some of their own ideas.

THE COURT CALENDAR.—The District Court Calendar is not yet fully made up, for certain reasons, to-wit: Court does not meet until next Monday week, and also because many of the cases presented were not accompanied by the prerequisite Clerk's fees. Including all presented, however, fees paid and unpaid, there are some thirty-five causes, all of a civil nature, to go on.

GONE BELOW.—Mr. Rhine of Harris & Rhine, started on Wednesday for the Bay. Mr. Harris of the same firm, and family, went there a short time since in the hope of recuperating his shattered health, but shortly after his arrival there was such a change for the worse as to excite some alarm. He is now mending we are told, and will soon be able to resume business.

PERSONAL.—Judge Reed, of the District Court, and Dr. Middleton, of Bishop, arrived here on Tuesday. The first named on his regular official round and the latter enroute for the other side, having bid this section a final adieu. R. W. Woolard, who has been here for the past week, returned to Darwin on Wednesday.

NOT AN OLD BACH ANY MORE.—Under Sheriff Steve Gregg has a much better opinion of himself now than he did a few days since, all because of the return this week of his wife and little ones from their Summer's visit East.

BIG PINE STORE.—L. Wick, late of Lida Valley, has purchased McMurry & Moore's store at Big Pine, and henceforth will run that institution himself. Judge Moore, of the late firm, proposes to take up his residence in this place.

RAIN.—We are being favored this morning with quite a steady and heavy rain. But such hitherto unusual events are becoming so common as hardly to be worth noticing.

HAD A FALLING OUT.—A few weeks since a Mexican was sent up by Judge Snelling, J. P., for one hundred days for selling whisky to Indians. Until quite recently this county boarder got along swimmingly with his landlord, Deputy Sheriff Dad Moore, and everybody else, and seemed to like his place very well. He was also anxious to make himself useful, and so became a sort of a general factotum; he chopped wood for the offices, packed water and all that, going and coming within proper limits pretty much as he pleased. No one dreamed but what he was enjoying himself first-rate. But in an evil hour he and Dad had a few words before they fell out. This seemed to wear on the boarder's mind, and so, before he had fairly made a beginning on his wood contracts, he, a few days ago, gently folded his blankets and sadly stole away—and now there is nobody to cut wood. That, though, would be less a subject of regret if it wasn't feared that he will give the name a bad place—not on account of the grub or lodging, both of which seemed to suit him and which he can't malign without open lying (to which it is hardly likely that he will resort), but on account of making folks think that his host was cross and disagreeable and not disposed to do the fair thing with his patrons. That would be an injustice to the house. Mr. Swimley never got along so well with his happy lot of boarders as does Dad with his, always provided that they try to do the decent thing. But, as before remarked, the question at the Court House is, who is to cut the wood? and pack water? and clean out?

BENTON.—"What has become of our Benton correspondence" is the question with some of our readers, who feel an interest in affairs up there. We won't undertake an answer just now, hoping the aforesaid "correspondence" will answer for itself pretty soon. From a private letter received from that place, however, we learn that times were never more lively, both in a business and political point of view, and the prospects for the continuance of the former are said to be as good as any one could desire; as for the other, it is hoped that things will cool down to the normal, commonplace condition some time this coming month.

SENATOR BOOTH was accorded a magnificent reception by his friends and admirers in San Francisco on the evening of the 19th. His short speech rang with the same old fire and terseness.

Another View of the "Black List."

Under the above caption the San Francisco Chronicle of the 23d gives the views of a correspondent in relation to the registration question. The facts therein set forth are certainly worth attention, and we give them at length, especially as we have elsewhere expressed a somewhat different opinion as to the grounds for challenge. We cannot say, however, that we accept the opinion of this correspondent on that point as above question:

To the Editor of the Chronicle—SIR: The publication of some four thousand names compiled from the Great Register by Nathaniel Holland, United States Supervisor of Elections, and the announcement by that gentleman that all said names are to be "marked for challenge," has caused a very wide spread and well grounded dissatisfaction on the part of the citizens interested. It is just as well to understand that an irregularity in the record of registration, whether caused by the carelessness of the clerk in leaving out the name of the Court where the citizen was naturalized or otherwise, is no cause for challenge. Neither has the Supervisor, the County Clerk, or any other person the right to go through the Register and cancel or erase any man's name found therein, except in the manner prescribed in section 1106 of the Political Code, which provides as follows: First, upon the person's own request; second, upon his death or removal; third, upon his insanity; fourth, upon a judgment of felony; fifth, upon the certificate of an Election Board showing the voter's death or removal; sixth, upon a similar certificate that the person has not voted for three years. Section 1109 provides the manner in which the names illegally placed on the Register may be cancelled by a proceeding in Court, and that is the only way it can be accomplished. The authority of the Supervisor to challenge the voter on election day is claimed to be conferred by the United States Revised Statutes, section 2017, which is as follows:

The Supervisors of Elections are authorized and required to attend at all times and places for holding elections of Representatives or Delegates to Congress, and for counting the votes cast at such elections; to challenge any vote offered by any person whose legal qualifications the Supervisors or either of them may doubt; to be and remain where the ballot-boxes are kept at all times after the polls are open until every vote cast at such time and place are counted, etc.

It must be borne in mind, however, that the United States statute does not provide, in this Act or any other, that the voter may be challenged for any cause other or in addition to the causes set forth in the State law, which is re-enacted and by intendment made a part of the United States statute quoted. The only challenges which the Supervisor or any one else can interpose on election day are provided in section 1230 of the Political Code, and are as follows:

Sec. 1230. A person offering to vote may be challenged by any elector of the county upon either or all of the following grounds:

1. That he is not the person whose name appears upon the Register.
2. That he has not resided in the State for six months next preceding the election.
3. That he has not resided within the precinct for thirty days next preceding the election.
4. That he has before voted that day.
5. That he has been convicted of a felony and has not been pardoned.

Irregular or defective registration, as long as the name is actually on the poll list, is no cause for challenge—the Inspector cannot go behind the Register—and any person who attempts to challenge a registered voter for any cause other than is prescribed in section 1230 of the Code, above quoted, not only commits a misdemeanor under the State law, but brings himself within the provisions of section 2009 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, which provides severe penalties against "any officer or other person" acting under the provisions of the law providing for Supervisors of Elections who "by threats or any other unlawful means hinders, delays, prevents or obstructs" any citizen in voting at any election. So far as the action of Mr. Holland goes toword purging the Great Register from fraudulent names, he should be supported by all parties, and the work should be done in the manner provided by law; but if he ever had any intention to challenge registered voters at the polls that intention should be abandoned and disavowed, as such a course can do no possible good, only result in getting the Chief Supervisor and his deputies into extreme hot water. ONE OF BOB INGERSOLL'S JOKES. General Noyes tells a good story on Bob Ingersoll, representing that gentlemans's emphatic way of putting things.

Ingersoll and Blaine were at dinner together at a country hotel, and Ingersoll discovered that the butter was "strong." He called the servant and asked him if he could not get some that was better.

The waiter started and soon returned and remarked as he placed the fresh plate of butter beside Ingersoll's plate:

"There, sir, I think you'll find that butter tolerably good."

"Tolerably good!" thundered Bob to the domestic. "That's a nice way to speak of butter; why, you might as well speak of a man's wife as tolerably virtuous."

FATURDAY, OCTOBER 28.....1876.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 12.

MESSRS. EDITORS — If there was not more there certainly was as much interest exhibited here all day yesterday and until early this morning regarding the election in the West as in any other city of the Union. West Virginia being from the first conceded to the Democrats, claimed and received but little attention. Ohio, it was supposed, would go Republican by a small majority, and the chief interest seemed to center in what Indiana might do. It was a perfect see-saw up to 1 o'clock this morning. A dispatch comes in and the Republicans are jubilant; another follows and the Democrats are joyous, and so they remain. The event seems to have justified the prediction. From the most authentic information now received Ohio has gone Republican by a small majority, and Indiana has declared for the Democracy by about the same number. An estimate has been made by a cool observer who, though a Democrat in his affinities, is not a politician; he arrives at the conclusion that the Democratic majority in the next House of Representatives will be only seventeen, and maintains that it will be to the advantage of that party to have only a fair working majority, his observation of deliberative bodies leading him to believe that overwhelming majorities are never desirable.

Corton, in his admirable "Tacon," remarks that a man would feel far more excited in going to bed at night if he knew that his little finger was to be cut off in the morning than he would if he knew that at the same hour fifty men were to be executed in China. This is illustrated in the extreme apathy with which the enormous preparations for war which the great powers of Europe have made is regarded here. The vote of a single State, or some grand day at the Centennial seems to be with us of far more importance than the ultimate fate of all the nations in Europe. The Turco-Servian war seems to be the incentive to the tremendous conflict which now hangs upon a single thread, and if once begun will prove more terrible than any in ancient or modern history. All the resources of science have been applied to the development of the fighting force of the Russian, Austrian and German armies. The modern facilities for transportation of troops rapidly and supplying them with subsistence and munitions of war exceeds what would have been thought possible fifty years ago. Russia has over 2,000,000 of men now on a war footing. The German Empire can put into the field 1,100,000 men, and Austria has 1,100,000. The armies of England are almost insignificant in comparison with these, but her navy is of immense strength. Thus it is not impossible, nay, more than probable that 4,500,000 men may be engaged against each other, armed with the latest weapons and led by skillful officers, fighting for supremacy, territory and self-existence, and possibiy doubly embittered by race-hatreds and religious fanaticism. Such a prospect as this may well make the great nations stand and hesitate before they let the uplifted sword descend in deadly conflict.

Dr. Slade, as he is called, the American mountebank and American spiritualist, now under arrest in London for swindling and vagrancy, it is strange to say seems to have some influential adherents who express the determination to stand by him, and to that end have subscribed a considerable amount of money and have appointed a committee to watch the case. Prof. Lankester, who caused his arrest, swears positively that he saw Slade write messages, purporting to be spiritual, on the slate, while there are numbers willing to swear that Slade did not write them. The London correspondent of the New York World writes that Slade has been making money at the rate of $1,000 per week, and that half the people of London had been to see his exhibitions. Slade has a lucrative engagement in Russia, whither he will go from London. Is it not surprising that such scoundrels should in this enlightened age succeed so easily in deceiving people so thoroughly by pretended communications from the spirit world? It is a wonder that all Christian denominations do not at once unite to put down unchristian exhibitions, flying as they do in the face of all the clergy. Only a short time ago in New York that tea-kettle wretch who gulled Mr. Pierrepont was fairly exposed. And last week Prof. Hermann, the magician and prestidigitateur, gave exhibitions here that would have led many to believe in spiritualistic influence, had he not simply performed his feats as part of his show. I will venture to say they were as surprising as any of Slade's.

I have been subjected to costiveness and a torpid liver for five years, and am now entirely cured, after using only two bottles of your YERBA BUENA. I am certain that it was YERBA BUENA that cured me of the palpitation of the heart. I am happy to state through the use of your BITTERS I am a well man. All wishing to be convinced of the above, I will give you my residence: 209 Jedesdorff street, San Francisco. JOHN R. STEERE.

MESSRS. H. WILLIAMS & CO.: Dear Sirs—As long as I can remember, I have been troubled with Pin Worms, and at times felt as if I was being devoured alive. Early in March, 1875, I was induced to use your YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and within One Month I was entirely cured. I have not been troubled with them since, and am satisfied that I am PERMANENTLY cured. I think it is the best preparation for Constipation and Billious Troubles known.

A. B. HOWARD,
No. 12 Quincy street, San Francisco.

I take pleasure in recommending the YERBA BUENA BITTERS. I have used three bottles and found more relief from them than anything I have ever used. I had been troubled with Constipation of the Bowels, Torpid Liver and general debility for a long time, and I find no relief until the YERBA BUENA BITTERS cured me.

S. BROOKS, Petaluma.

Seeking health on the Pacific Coast, my attention was called to Dr. Warren's YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and took some for headache, which cured me so perfectly that I bought a bottle and have not taken any other medicine since. It is a perfect cure for any derangement of the stomach or constipation, and I recommend it before any other medicine, as it leaves the system in a healthy state and no dieting is necessary. Please send your Bitters all over the world, for it will be a blessing to humanity beyond the power of words to express. I write you freely and from actual experience. CYRUS CUMMINGS,

Professor Huxley's Mistake.

(Scientific American, October 21.)

It now appears that Professor Huxley made a grave mistake in giving such prominence to the Miltonic hypothesis of creation in his Chickering Hall lectures.

To say the least, it was a sheer waste of time and effort, and many aver that it was something a good deal worse; indeed, that he might just as appropriately have spent the time arguing that the moon is not made of green cheese, or that the world is not flat, or in discussing any other childish or antiquated notion, since not one of his audience ever dreamed of entertaining Milton's absurd six-day theory, which every American school boy knows to be inconsistent with the commonest facts of geology. More than one of our thoughtful journalists and clergymen have resented, as almost an insult to the intelligence of our people, the idea that a man of Professor Huxley's reputation should presume to discuss a topic like evolution, before such an audience as was gathered in Chickering Hall, in so trifling and elementary a manner—shirking, or at least shunning, the grand philosophical and moral questions involved in the evolution of protoplasm, apiarian politics, the missing link, monkey's ears, the human soul, and such things. It was altogether an insult, they make no bones of asserting, for Professor Huxley to insinuate, as he did, that Milton,s purely imaginative description is commonly accepted in any literal sense as a true account of the manner in which plants and animals came into being.

It looks that way, we must confess; still we cannot bring ourselves to believe that Professor Huxley really intended to insult us. At the worst, it was a mistake, grievous, to be sure, but unintentional; a result, doubtless, of what certain of the daily papers have so pertinently described as "Professor Huxley's habit of generalizing from insufficient data." He had heard of Bishop Coke, and, so he said, had conversed with some one who insisted that fossils were put into the rocks by the Creator to test our faith; and with characteristic haste, he jumped to the conclusion, that all American Christians, or at least the greater part of them, were equally ignorant of right views of geology, the origin of species, and such matters. Had he remained to see and hear the outburst of indignation from pulpit and press which his blunder provoked, he would have returned to his native land, we fancy, much less satisfied with the course he had adopted.

We have just been looking over a considerable pile of the religious papers of last week, to see their comments on the lectures, and we are sure that Professor Huxley would be surprised to witness how generally and how vigorously they repudiate the Miltonic hypothesis. Now and then a belated sheet stands up for it, figuratively speaking; but the majority stoutly put it aside with scorn, and profess that evolution—or, as the favorite phrase runs, "a modified form of evolution"—is not only perfectly reasonable and scriptural, but a theory which they have cherished for years and years! And we sincerely trust that the publishers of all those papers have taken pains to send copies of them to Professor Huxley, that he may be speedily apprised of the grossness of his misapprehension of the intellectual attitude of the American people.

For example, the broadly undenominational Christian Union, speaking of the present order of Nature, remarks: "If Mr. Huxley's object was to illustrate the truth that evolution has performed an important part in producing that order, he has admirably succeeded. But that is a truth which no well informed person in America doubts. The mythical Pennsylvania Dutchman, who still votes for Andrew Jackson and believes that the sun goes round the world, probably supposes that the Universe was created in a week beginning on a Monday morning, January 1, 6,000 B. C.... But no one of the exceptionally intelligent audience which listened to Professor Huxley's arguments, and few, if any, who read them, entertain the Miltonian theory of creation."

Here we have not only a positive rebuttal of Professor Huxley's insinuation, but one carrying beautiful internal evidence of its truth. The writer—doubtless one of the younger members of the Christian Union staff—so far from holding that anciently exploded theory, has never learned (or has forgotten) that, according to it, the proper date of creation is, or used to be, not the year 6,000 B. C., but B. C. 4,004!

But, it may be objected, the Christian Union is Mr. Beecher's paper; and Mr. Beecher has always been regarded by the strictly orthodox as a trifle unsound on some points. Well, then, take the intensely evangelical Christian at Work, whose vivacious editor, the Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, as everybody knows, is nothing if not sound. The Christian at Work reprovingly assures Professor Huxley that "it was not at all necessary for him to cross the ocean to demolish a poet,s fancies about creation—theories largely imaginative and not consistent with the record in Genesis, and which neither are nor have been held for a century."

That is certainly decisive, though, like most of Mr. Talmage's utterances, it is a little loose in the joints and a trifle extravagant. Our recollection does not cover nearly a century, yet we distinctly remember having been taught precisely that account of creation, order, time, and all, while at school; and to make sure, we have taken pains to hunt up the remains of our old school geographies and histories, wherein we find the Miltonian story set down with great explicitness. We would not presume to say, however, that such absurdities have been imposed upon credulous children of late years.

One more witness against Professor Huxley is all we have space for, and one will suffice. As the evangelical side of the Protestant community has been fully represented, we will take this time a representative of the other, or non-evangelical, side, the Church Journal and Gospel Messenger. This excellent paper grieves bitterly over Professor Huxley's unfairness in giving his hearers to understand that the Miltonian theory is generally received among Christians at the present day. On the contrary, "the position he attacks is not the educated Christian's position at all. And Dr. Huxley very well knows it."

It may be so: yet charity to the absent compels us to presume that Professor Huxley was ignorant rather than malicious or purposely unfair. Evidently he did not know how rapid has been the progress of sound knowledge on this point among our people. It is truly humiliating, none the less, to think that he could have spent so many weeks among us, and go away at last laboring under such a grave misjudgment of our intelligence. We fear his associations here were hardly what they ought to have been.

Since writing the foregoing, we have been thinking the matter over, and it has occurred to us that, may be, this mistake of Professor Huxley's—annoying as it has been for the moment to us, and must be sooner or later to him—may after all be useful in calling out a general expression of opinion, and so serving to emphasize, as nothing else could, the progress we have been making towards juster views of the origin of things. We believe it was Agassiz who first observed that all great truths have to go through the same course of treatment on the way to popular acceptance.

First, they are denounced as false and subversive of religion. Next, they are admitted to be probable, but not proved, and of little account either way. Finally, they are just what everybody has always believed. Evolution, it would seem, has pretty nearly arrived at the final stage.

ENLGAND'S MONSTER GUN.—The eighty-one ton gun was fired yesterday at Shoeburyness for the first time with its service charges and projectiles. The effect of the first shot was curious; there were two explosions, one from the vent the other from the muzzle of the gun; the sound to those who stood near was not so painful as had been expected, but the concussion at a greater distance was remarkable. Many windows were broken in the officer's quarters and in the villages near by; the plate-glass window of a shop 350 yards distant was broken, and the padlock of an iron gate was fractured by the shock. The gun stood on a heavy railway, with an incline of one in thirty and with an allowance of eighty feet for recoil. The first shot fired was four feet long, and the gun was given an elevation of seven degrees. The gun was fired by electricity. The shot flew with remarkable steadiness; it touched the ground at 4,500 yards, in 11.3 seconds, throwing up a pile of mud; then it went bounding along for several miles until it at last buried itself in the channel. The recoil of the gun was only twenty-one feet, and the officers were delighted. Great difficulty was experienced in keeping vessels out of the line of fire. There were seven shots in all. The last two were fired with the gun depressed so as to strike the ground at 1000 yards distance; and both of these shots entered the ground at precisely the same place, showing that the shot can be thrown with great precision.—London Telegraph, Sept. 28th.

DEATH OF CHARLES E. DE LONG.

The Virginia Chronicle gives intelligence of the death of Hon. Charles E. De Long in that city, on the 26th instant, and pays this tribute to his memory: "The death of the Hon. Charles E. DeLong has cast a shadow over the entire community, for he was a representative man of Nevada—one whom from an humble boyhood had won his way, step by step, to the foremost place among his fellow men. He was a recognized leader in his party, and ranked among the ablest men in the legal profession in the State. For his talent as a lawyer, his eloquence as an orator and his dauntless courage and indomitable energy in all the walks of life, Mr. DeLong enjoyed the high regard even of those who were his bitterest political opponents. The death of such a man is a loss to the entire community." Mr. DeLong was born at Beekmansville, Duchess county, New York, August 13, 1832, and was a little over 44 years of age. He arrived in California June 5th, 1850 and settled in Yuba county, where he studied law and was admitted to practice. His political career is fresh in the memory of all, both in California and Nevada. An autograph of Mr. DeLong, published by Oscar T. Shuck, thus fittingly concludes: "In Mr. DeLong's case, success has been the test of merit. He has won fortune and position by solitary unaided study and effort. He came to California, a boy, without friends, means or experience. By patient industry and the pursuit of an honest straightforward course, he has battled with the disadvantages and checks of youth, poverty and inexperience, and conquered them. Few men have overcome greater obstacles—none are more worthy of achieved success."

SUPERVISORS OF ELECTIONS.—In view of the fact that a great many people have but little knowledge of the duties of the United States Supervisors of Elections, the following statement of their duties—being a synopsis of Section 5 of the Election Laws of 1872—will be of interest: "The United States Supervisors of Election have the right to be present at all times after the polls are opened until the canvass be wholly completed, and the proper returns made; and to personally scrutinize, count and canvass each and every ballot cast in his or their respective election districts for Representative in Congress, whatever may be the indorsement on said ballot, or in whatever box it may have been placed or found, 'to the end (as the Act of Congress declares) that each candidate for the office of Representative in Congress shall obtain the benefit of every vote for him cast.'" Also, that "it is an offense against the laws of the United States to obstruct or interfere with the Supervisors of Elections, or United States Deputy Marshals, in the performance of their duty, or to refuse proper aid or assistance when required by them."

THE Central and Southern Pacific Railway companies having failed to comply with the law which directs them to file a statement of their transactions, the Railroad Commissioners of California have brought suit to compel them to comply with the law. It seems as if it were the settled policy of these corporations to resist any law passed by Congress or State Legislatures affecting the conduct of their roads. They seem thus to court enmities and defy opposition; and they never make any effort to gain the good will of the people, or to be regarded as of a law-abiding institution or character.

THANKSGIVING.—President Grant, by proclamation dated October 26th, has appointed the 30th instant as Thanksgiving Day. We had about concluded that President Ulysses was going to wait till he saw whether Samuel J. or Rutherford B. got away with the fight on the 7th, so as to know whether to designate a day for humiliating repentance in the former event, or of the usual thanksgiving. It seems, however, that we were mistaken about it.

DR. KAMPF, astronomer of the Wheeler Expedition, having completed his labors, has returned to Washington. The others wtll remain till about the 1st of December, when this season's work of the Expedition will be finished, and the different parties will return to Washington and begin their computations.

THREE Methodist ministers were shot in Arkansas the other day by illicit distillers, under the supposition that they were revenue officers.

IT rained in San Bernardino, Los Angeles and throughout the State northward on the 28th ultimo.

THE DREAM ENDED.

The Los Angeles Express thinks that indications pretty clearly show that Senator Jones will soon have to sell his Los Angeles and Independence Railroad to the big anaconda. He is not in a position to go on and complete the undertaking as contemplated; the people of Los Angeles, who have already derived so much real benefit from the short reach of road he has already built, have given him no encouragement—not a cent's worth—nor are they likely to. "Now, if they find themselves left as before, almost wholly at the mercies of the big monopoly, they have no one but themselves to blame. Jones is under no obligations of any sort to bring ruin upon himself in an endeavor to help people who won't try to help themselves. He, alone, cannot stand out against the all-powerful monopoly. No one has a right to blame him for doing what he cannot help but do, which is to give up his grand enterprise. When he does that Los Angeles can make up his mind to pay the tariff as Stanford shall dictate," and so on.

And all this and much more applies to Inyo. With the sale of that bit of competitive road between Los Angeles and the sea fades away Inyo's only hope of a railroad, competitive or otherwise, within her own lines. When Stanford & Co. get done building through lines for subsidy; when they get done building paper railroads to scare off threatened opposition; when they do all this and have plenty of surplus millions in bank and nothing else to do for common amusement, then it is barely possible they may extend a little branch road into Inyo county. This may be in ten years, most likely not less than twenty. Meantime, let us cherish our mules and mustangs, for in the way of transportation they are our only hope. Also, every man who now pays four cents for each pound of freight received may know that full three-fifths of that amount is just about the true proportion the killing off of this competitive road will cost him from this time on indefinitely. There is but little use to make a row about spilled milk; but, nevertheless, we feel that the business men of Inyo and of Los Angeless have made a most disastrous mistake affecting the future welfare of the two counties when they failed to freely give the comparatively trifling amount of aid which would certainly have insured the completion of the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad. The difference in freight charges for two or three years would have been sufficient for this county's share. As it is "the jig is up"—the dream is over—as regards that brilliant future for this county which was and is contingent upon railroad communication.

AN ENGLISHMAN'S VIEW.—John Bright denounces in sound terms England's narrow policy in regard to Turkey. He says England's past policy in that regard is a subject of infinite regret. Millions of pounds sterling and thousands of lives were expended in the support of Turkey in the Crimean war. And to what purpose? To enable that effete power to do as she had done for 300 years past—to prevent a single trading vessel belonging to the outside world from passing from the Mediterranean to the Black Sea. Russia had but simply demanded her natural right in claiming free passage for her ships. England and France had joined hands and garroted her and for nothing but an offense as affecting their own interests. The English people have found out that the free passage of the Dardanelles and Bsophorus was a terror England need no longer fear. England had wasted blood and treasure to clear a natural highway for all nations, and then turned about and expended other millions in purchasing an artificial one built by Frenchmen—namely the Suez canal, in order that they might send not only ships of trade but ships of war between the Mediterranean and Red Sea. In view of these facts, were England's people to elect a new Parliament to-day, the vote would be that "the blood and treasure of England should never again be wasted on behalf of Turkey. * * * The Ottoman power shall hereafter be left to the fate which Providence has decreed to corruption, tyranny and wrong."

LATER.—The Los Angeles Express, October 30th, has the following touching upon the Los Angeles and Independence railroad matter, a previous article from the same paper being elsewhere referred to in this issue:

It may be that we shall have a revival of railway work on the Los Angeles and Independence road. At least it is surmised that there is something on the tapis looking in that direction from the fact that Colonel Crawford and Mr. Moulton (the present Superintendent) have gone to the Cajon Pass to take observations. Perhaps the recent articles of the Express on the subject of extending the road have induced the authorities here to make another effort, prepare a practical scheme and submit propositions that may infuse vitality into the work of extension. We hope so. Anything but stagnation. Even railroad talk is better than that.

PROGNOSTICATIONS.

Political prognosticators will be out of business for a time after Tuesday next, but they have effected enough in that line to make a rest desirable. There are a few newspapers, and but a few, whose sources of information are sufficiently varied and extensive, and yet honest enough to give their prognostications any weight for the average reader. Among these few we accord the first place to the New York Tribune. Though clear cut enough in its Republican predilections, yet it is not of that class of political papers which either ignore, pervert or withhold facts, or descend to direct political misrepresentations for the sake of making an encouraging showing to clap-trap the wavering. On the contrary it is extremely temperate in language and sentiment, and, we believe, honest. During the October fight it kept special correspondents in the Indiana and Ohio field. These correspondents gave their opinions as what the result would be even as to individual majorities. Their predictions were verified in both States about to the letter. These observers seemed to write to give information, not merely to try to make capital from false premises and asserted conclusions. These facts together gives more weight, and certainly a little interest to the Tribune's views of the political situation, which may be briefly stated as follows:

The October elections have not simplified the prospect in the least. The fight is yet to be made pretty much the same as if these elections had not occurred at all. It is quite sure that Tilden will get every Southern electoral vote. On the other hand, the Democrats cannot claim as certain a single Northern State. But the following the Tribune sets down as doubtful: Indiana, Connecticut, Oregon, New York, New Jersey and California. All the remaining Northern States it considers certain for Hayes. Then the vote would stand: Tilden, all the Southern States, 138 electoral votes. Hayes, in the sixteen Republican Northern States, 157; in the six doubtful States there are 74 votes. Of these the Democrats will have to get 47, so that New York becomes a necessity to them, but not essentially so to the other party. This will still leave Tilden 12 short, so that if he gets New York and Indiana both, but misses a single Southern State he will still be short of enough to elect. The Tribune thinks he will quite surely fail of carrying both of these large States. It concludes its review as follows: The Republicans have only 28 voes to gain, even if they are defeated in every Southern State. Indiana with two other doubtful States, or New York alone, would give them the requisite number. They will naturally concentrate their efforts upon New York, for their prospects there are very excellent, and victory there is victory everywhere. But they are not compelled, as the Democrats are, to stake everything upon a single State. It is quite within the range of possibility that, while the Democrats are straining every nerve to win New York, the Republicans may carry Indiana, California and either New Jersey, Connecticut, or a single Southern State.

COLORADO'S VOTE.—The official vote of Colorado for members of Congress, Supreme Court and Legislature, was announced October 28, with the following results: For Judges of Supreme Court, Republican majority 148; for member of the Forty-fourth Congress, J. B. Belford (Rep.), 1038 majority; for member of the Forty-fifth Congress, J. B. Belford (Rep.), 639 majority. The Legislature is divided as follows: Senate—Republicans 19, Democrats 7; Assembly—Republicans 32, Democrats 17; Republican majority on joint ballot 27; net Republican majority for State Senators. 1,933; for members of the Assembly, 2,204. This Legislature will choose three Presidential Electors November 7th; also, canvass the vote for Governor, Lieutenant Governor Auditor, Treasurer and Secretary of State.

THE SILVER COMMISSION.—This body s still holding its meetings in rooms of the Postoffice building in New York City, and will remain in session until the next meeting of Congress, in December—too limited a time to accomplish all that the Commission desire. They are acquiring data for their report by conversations at their daily meetings with practical business men; but they will eventually obtain much more when they receive by mail from abroad responses to the inquiries made in circulars for information, sent out by the Commission.

MARRIOT, the hoary-headed black mailer of the News Letter, has been held to bail in $5,000 to answer before the Grand Jury of San Francisco, to the charge of extortion.

THE Treasurer of the Philadelphia Democratic Executive Committee has been arrested on a charge of attempting to violate the election laws of the city.

PIUTE ADRIFT.

CHAPTER VIII.—THE EAST.

MESSRS. EDITORS—What rapid strides of progress have been made during the first century of the American Republic. In 1776 only few settlers were west of the Allegheny mountains, and it is said that even statesmen of that era entertained doubts as to settlements ever being planted there! However, the census of 1870 finds that the preponderance of the population of the United States is west of the Alleghenies; and since the first national census, in 1790, was taken, that the center of population has traveled westward at the rate of 100 miles in every ten years. So that in 1876 the center of population is nearer Chicago than Philadelphia.

Chicago itself is a wonderful city. In 1833 it contained only 28 voters; in 1870 it had a population of 300,000. On the 8th of October, 1871, the principal part of the city was laid in ashes, but in a few months a grander city was reared on the ruins, and to-day Chicago is considered the principal mart in all the world for grain and provisions, and has a population of 400,000.

We now leave Chicago, and have also left the deep, fertile soil of the rolling prairie. A decided change is perceptible as we travel eastward—light, gravelly soil sprinkled on and among the rock-piles. The Western farmers, as we sped along, cracked their jokes at this region. One thought it suitable by heavy manuring for "black-eyed peas;" another thought it to be a very paradise for goats. However, many an honest farmer could be seen with his plow stirring up the stone and dodging around the stumps! which elicited the remark, "Give us the rich prairie soil and abundance of grasshoppers in preference to this." Still, the deep bowels of the "Keystone State" contain vast wealth. Having arrived in Pittsburg, allow a few items pertaining thereto:

Pittsburg and Allegheny (the latter forms part of the same community) contain an aggregate of 140,000 souls. These two cities are built at the junction of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers, which here unite and form the Ohio. Pittsburg is particularly distinguished for its iron and glass manufacturies. The capital invested in iron manufactories in 1870 was $26,962,686, and in the manufacture of glass $4,000,000. It is also the center of an immense coal trade, aggregating over 5,000,000 tons a year. The vast manufactories centered here belch forth ceaseless clouds of smoke, whence it is called the "Smoky City." At night the lurid fires give Pittsburg a grand and peculiar appearance. The distance from Chicago to Pittsburg is 468 miles, and from Pittsburg to New York 444 miles. The entire distance from San Francisco to New York is said to be about 3,300 miles.

This Piute being at the International Exhibition, will give a brief sketch of Fairmount Park and the Exhibition grounds, etc., in the next letter. Friends must not expect a detailed description of this great and grand collection. Were I competent for the task, the columns of THE INYO during the next century would not be sufficient to contain a "full report" of the greatest Exposition ever held in the world.

TINNEMUCKAHEE.

The Servians Beaten.

A dispatch which we find in the S. F. Chronicle of the 30th, dated Belgrade, October 30, says: A battle was fought yesterday, in which the Turks drove the Servians from Djunis after a crushing defeat. Tchernayeff's army is cut in two and completely demoralized. Harvatovich's command has retreated on Kruschevatz. Particulars of the battle state that the Turks attacked the heights of Djunis. The Servian artillery, irritated at General Tchernayeff's deprecatory manner, refused to fight and abandoned their position. A body of Russian volunteers defended the heights desperately. Half of their number were killed. The Turks carried their position, thus cutting the Servian army in two. After the battle of Djunis, General Tchernayeff, with his staff and part of the army, retreated to Roganj, but have since returned to the neighborhood of Deligrad. General Harvatovich's corps fought some time, but were finally completely beaten and driven back upon Kruchevatz and Deligrad, which positions are now untenable. Last night parties went through the streets of Belgrade summoning sojourners and Russian officers to proceed to the Minister of War, whence they were dispatched to the front. Prince Milan left for the army to-day, escorted by a body of Russians. The Prince had a long conference yesterday with M. Kartzoff, President of the Russian Diplomatic Agency.

APOLOGETIC.—We feel that we should apologize to our readers for the lack of lecal intelligence in the News this week, The truth of the matter is just this: We are a candidate for the office of State Senator on the Democratic ticket, and instead of attending to the interests of the paper, have been bushwhacking about the country in pursuit of voters to elect us to the above position. We ask to be forgiven this time, and should we be so fortunate as to be elected, will then make arrangements for some one else to run the paper during our absence.—White Pine News.

SEND 'EM INDIAN.—A Washoe squaw, who is exceedingly industrious and does washing for several of our good citizens, on being asked by a lady where her little boy was, replied, "Send em to school. China man go school, black man go school, me send em Indian all the same. He heap good boy, my boy; he heap learn em read; he no steal, he all the same white boy, all same his daddy."—Carson Tribune.

TO WASH WINDOW GLASS.—In washing glass never use soap; wash off the dirt with clean water. After the glass is dry rub a little paste of whiting and water in the center of each glass; with another cloth rinse over the glass, then rub it with a dry cloth till it shines like crystal.

LIFE INSURANCE.—A large number of lawsuits have been begun against life insurance companies to recover claims where the yearly payments were interrupted by the war. In the majority of instances, however, there claims have been compromised without resort to law by the leading companies. A series of decisions in the United States Supreme Court puts this matter on a legal basis. The insurance companies are not required to renew the insurance from the date when it expired by the failure of the insured to pay premiums. But on the other hand the insured who were prevented by the cessation of intercourse between North and South from paying their premiums will not be total losers. They must be paid the value of their policies at the date when their payments stopped. The fairness of this decision is obvious. It may be mentioned that most of the compromises hitherto made have been based on similar principles.

A PETALUMA dispatch of October 22d says: Wm. Brown, an old and respected resident of Marin county, living in Chileno valley, eight miles from here, while returning home between 7 and 8 o'clock last night, was dragged from his carriage and brutally murdered. He received five stabs, either of which would have proved fatal. He also received a heavy blow on the head, apparently from a revolver. Some sixty dollars in silver, a gold watch and chain, and a gold ring were taken from him. The murder causes great excitement.

TWEED.—At request of Gov. Tilden, the President, after a Cabinet meeting to consider the mattter, ordered that Tweed be surrendered directly to the Sheriff of New York, and that no unauthorized person was to be permitted to "interview him previous to said surrender."

CADET Midshipman Homer C. Poundstone of Virginia, has been dismissed from the Naval Academy for hazing. Midshipman Woodworth of California and Barclay of Missouri are awaiting trial on the same charge.

STOKES. the murderer of Jim Fiske, was released from the New York penitentiary October 28, his term having then expired.

COST OF WORK IN MINES.—The following extract from the official letter of the Superintendent of the Manhattan mine will give those not familiar with the subject an idea of the cost of running underground work. The following is a summary of the workings for the last week: Bowman incline—570 square feet were breasted on the Panamint, at a cost of 95 cents per square foot; 90 square feet on the S. Panamint at a cost of $1 33 per foot; 250 square feet on the 500-foot level, at a cost of 30 cents per square foot. The cross-cut at the head of the double chute was run 10 feet, on day pay, at a cost of $4 per foot. West drift in incline No. 2, N. Panamint, was extended 11 feet, at a cost of $4 36 per foot; chute No. 2, N. Panamint, was raised 10 foot, at a cost of $4 80 per foot. The Paxton east drift was extended 14 feet, at a cost of $3 42 per foot. Parrish east drift was extended 4 feet, at a cost of $4 per foot—the above are all on day pay. The N. Panamint drift was carried forward on contract 14 feet since the 4th inst., at $5 90 per foot, netting contractors $2 95 per day. Frost shaft, 615 square feet were breasted on the Independence ledge above the 370-foot level, at a cost of 80 cents per square foot. At the 500 foot level, 620 feet were breasted, at a cost of 74 cents per foot. On 260-foot level, North Star ledge, 120 square feet were breasted, at a cost of $1 50 per foot. The 260 east drift was extended 6 feet, at a cost of $8 per foot; 375-foot east drift 12 feet, at $3 33 per foot; the 500-foot east drift 11 feet, at $8 72 per foot, all on day pay. The 300-foot cross cut was run 13 feet on contract at $7 per foot, netting contractors $9 10 per day. During the past week the 570-foot cross-cut was run 8 feet on contract at $9 50 per foot, netting contractors $3 30 per day. The 517-foot cross-cut of the Curtis shaft was run 19 feet on day pay at a cost of $7 57 per foot.—Scientific Press.

DISARMING THE INDIANS.—A dispatch from Bismarck, dated October 26th, says: General Terry was still at Standing Rock Agency last evening. He had succeeded in disarming the Indians and gathering in all their ponies at the Agency. It is believed the Indians have hidden most of their arms, as they had a day's warning. Only about two hundred stand have been found, including shotguns and revolvers. A large number of ponies will yet be brought in. About six hundred have already been surrendered. The Indians seem to take kindly to the move as they come to understand it, but some were at first disposed to resist. General Terry informed them that the property would be sold and the proceeds invested in cattle and such things as would be useful for them. None outside of General Terry and those immediately connected with him have any idea to where he will go next, whether to Cheyenne or to strike the hostiles.

Is there a parallel case on record? Here is a newspaper published in a county that is as large as any ordinary State, and no subscriber in the county receives his paper through the mails—yet the county is rich and prosperous.—Wallapai (Arizona) Enterprse.

IT was at the funeral of the head of the family. A neighbor in the yard, while the service was going on inside, was speaking of the dead man, and took the opportunity to observe in a tone of subdued sympathy: "An' had just got in his coal and potatoes for the Winter. It is a sad case."

A HEBREW GIRL'S CURIOUS MARRIAGE.—In the Superior Court a strange case was presented to Judge Van Vorst, under the title of Laura Klein against Richard Wolfsohn. The plaintiff in August, 1875, appeared before the Mayor, and a marriage ceremony was performed, in which the defendant appeared as husband. The plaintiff declares that she did not know it was a marriage. Her father had insisted on her being betrothed to the defendant under penalty of expulsion from his home, and she had reluctantly assented to the ceremony, supposing it to be the Hebrew rite of betrothal, with its long delay before actual marriage. As soon as she found her mistake she refused to accept the defendant as a husband, and, leaving her father's house, has since maintained herself and contributed to her mother's support. She insists that the defendant deceived her as to his condition in life; that her father and he coerced and deceived her as to effect of the ceremony before the Mayor, and that as she is under eighteen, and has not lived with the defendant, the marriage must be declared a nullity. The referee decided in her favor, and the case came up on this report. Judge Van Vorst held that the plaintiff could not have a decree on the mere fact that the defendant had misrepresented his pecuniary condition, as a wife takes a husband "for richer, for poorer," but reserved his decision on the other questions.—N. Y. Tribune.

COUNTERFEITING GOLD BARS.—Rains, one of the parties mentioned in the following item from the San Francisco Chronicle of October 27, is not altogether unknown to Panamint fame:

Yesterday afternoon E. P. Rains and John F. Hardie were charged by Capt. Lees with the crime of felony in counterfeiting. They are arrested for complicity in the swindle practiced upon George Bailey, a broker, by two men, Thompson and Wilson, who are now in jail awaiting an investigation before the Grand Jury. Bailey was induced to believe, on the exhibition of a bogus gold bar, that the men knew where a lot of bullion, stolen from Wells, Fargo & Co.'s stage, was buried near Reno. The bogus bar they represented to be worth about $6,500. Bailey was swindled out of $3,000 and a gold watch. Rains and Hardie are charged with manufacturing bogus bars, eleven of which have been found, and by which they are charged with swindling a number of persons in Nevada out of several thousand dollars. Bail is fixed at $10,000 in each case. Rains is well known in this city and Nevada.

THE LAMAS AT THEIR DEVOTIONS.—About 80 of them were squatted on the floor of a large room, each having before him a little desk, on which lay a pile of manuscript sheets written on a kind of paper resembling parchment, from which they were reading in a low tone so intently that no one looked up at the entrance of the visitors. In the midst of their devotions a servitor entered, bearing a vessel resembling a huge tea-pot. Each lama, without interrupting his prayers, took from his bosom a small wooden platter, into which the contents of the vessel were poured. It was composed of tea leaves, butter, salt and beans, all boiled together into a soup. This they drank, still muttering their prayers, and then licking the platters clean they replaced them in their bosoms and went on reading. This appears to be less a regular meal than a kind of a sacrament; at least the well-fed aspect of the elder brethren indicated that they were not strangers to better fare than tea soup.—Harpers' Magazine.

IN writing of President Grant, a correspondent of the London Times says: "Englishmen who are accustomed to think of the President of the United States as one of the most powerful rulers in the world, a ruler compared with whom any monarch of a constitutional country is politically almost a cipher, are not a little astonished to find him leading the life of an ordinary private citizen of comfortable but moderate means. There is nothing to distinguish his 'cottage' from those of his neighbors except that all day the passing excursionists have been craning their necks over his fences in the hope of getting a peep at him as he walks from room to room, some of them having taken the judicious precaution to bring opera-glasses. * * * Every Englishman must hope that in England he will be accorded the reception to which his high reputation and illustrious career, and perhaps to a certain extent the harsh treatment which has so lately been dealt out to him here, so amply entitle him."

PRESSURE GAUGE TO REGISTER 54,000 POUNDS.—A mechanical novelty worthy of being placed on record is a mercury column pressure gauge lately completed by Thomas Shaw of Philadelphia, for a company in that city, which is capable of registering a pressure of 54,000 pounds to the square inch. The body of this gauge was forged solid from the best Midvale steel and bored and turned to the proper shape. The total height is six feet, that of the mercury column being four and o half feet. The area of the large plunger is six and a half inches, and of the small one three-sixteenths and the movement about one-thousandth of an inch. No gauge has yet been built to register so high a range of pressure as this one.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 4.....1876.

VOLUNTEER MINES.—The Eclipse mill has been running steadily and successfully for a number of weeks, or ever since it was introduced in the pans. The Kearsarge and Rex Montis mills are yet steadily at work, and turning out bullion at a most encouraging rate. The probabilities are, however, that both of the last named will soon have to suspend operations on account of the weather interfering in getting ore down from the great altitude of the mines, particularly of the Rex Montis. A friend of ours, in whose judgment we place great reliance, and who speaks from a disinterested standpoint, says the last named mine is truly the most promising one in all this region so far as his personal knowledge (which is not limited) extends. Regarding the others here referred to we have nothing new or definite with respect to their developments, but believe them to be entirely satisfactory. All of them are shipping bullion, as will be noted in another item.

LOSS BY FIRE.—Supervisor D. D. Curtis met with quite a loss by fire at his place, the Butte Ranch, on the 25th ultimo. He himself was absent from the place, and the hands were all at dinner, when his corncrib, part of it occupied by Thos. Waite as a dwelling, was discovered to be on fire. About thirty-five feet in length of the crib was filled with corn, and it also contained a corn-sheller, plow, etc., besides Waite's household affairs—all being destroyed. Mr. Curtis' loss amounts to $250, and Mr. Waite's about the same. It required the most strenuous exertions to prevent many farming implements and every building on the place from sharing the same fate. The disaster was undoubtedly the result of carelessness. D. Campbell, Jr., and Mr. McNeese earned especial thanks for their timely and efficient aid.

MOST READY FOR BUSINESS.—Our little, local telegraph line between this office and Camp Independence—a distance of but two and a half miles, but about four as the wire runs—will be ready for business on Monday next. It will at least furnish a fund of amusement and instruction to the half dozen owners thereof; still, it will be at the service of even those disposed to make fun of it—for coin. It isn't likely that the transmission of the first message will be the occasion of as much general rejoicing as was that through the first ocean cable, but it will be an event all the same.

FREIGHTS.—There is now an unusually large amount of freight at Cartago and on the road for merchants and others throughout this section, and the Cerro Gordo Freighting Company's delivery teams have plenty of work ahead for some time to come. Among others there is one lot of 40,000 pounds of merchandise for Sneden's store at Bishop, and any quantity for the firms of Harris & Rhine and J. S. Rothschild & Co. of this place.

READY FOR THE FIGHT.—The respective State Central Committees have sent up any quantity of tickets for use next Tuesday, but we are afraid there is not enough to accommodate very many of those patriots who like to vote more than once the same day. There will be plenty of both kinds to give everybody at least one, but for fear of an accident nobody should vote more than one each before sundown.

THE COURTS. — The District and County Courts will be duly called next Monday, but no regular business to require attendance of parties will be undertaken till after the election. The District Court has quite a lengthy calendar as will be seen by reference to it elsewhere. There is but little to occupy Judge Hannah in his Court.

NEW LIVERY STABLE.—Parties interested in such matters, when in Lone Pine, will bear in mind that Mr. Von Briesen has fitted up the Hunt stables, opposite the Orleans Hotel, as a number one horse restaurant and livery stable, and proposes to do his square best by all who favor him with their patronage.

BULLION SHIPMENTS.—Bullion shipments through Wells, Fargo & Co.'s office at Harris & Rhine's, to the amount of $10,525 were made in the past few days, in lots from different mines as follows: Lida Valley, $600; Kearsarge, $2,300; Eclipse, $2,000; Rex Montis, $5,600; one parcel, $25; total, $10,525.

BLOODED MARE DEAD.—A few days since, Paul Bennett's fine race mare Lucy Dale, laid down and died from no obvious cause, as she was fat, and but a short time previously, apparently sound and well. She was sired by Owen Dale, and was a fine blooded and valuable animal.

ON THE WAY HOME.—Jo. Fernbach, who has been doing the Centennial, and Nathan Rhine, and probably Isaac Harris and family, from San Francisco, are expected here Monday or Tuesday next.

WILL MEET.—The Board of Supervisors will meet on Monday, pursuant to law, but will then probably adjourn till after the election.

ANOTHER SHIPMENT.—Yesterday the Eclipse Mining Company shipped one beautiful bar of silver and gold bullion, valued at $3,000.

PREACHING.—Rev. L. Case will preach in this place to-morrow evening, at the usual hour and place.

A WORD OF THANKS.—W. G. Watson, whose misfortunes, by fire and otherwise, are of too recent occurrence to again recapitulate here, desires us to offer his heartfelt thanks to those friends who responded so liberally to the appeal for aid made in his behalf by his friends. Through their generosity he is again possessed of a comfortable shelter and all immediate necessities with which to make another very fair start in the world. Bishop Creek, Big Pine, Independence and Darwin responded most liberally. The heaviest cash contributor we believe, was that of a total stranger to Mr. W., namely, J. Wilcox Sharp, at Darwin. In property values given, Under Sheriff Steve Gregg probably heads the list, while H. M. Isaacs did as much if not more in proportion, in various ways than anyone. We hope no one will consider this notice in the least invidious. We have not seen the list but risk these names as merely just so far as it goes.

OFF FOR THE RACES.—Our junior and divers others started last evening for the Taboose to attend the races to come off there to-day. As the aforesaid junior took a large amount of money with him, (we judge so because there ain't any left, when there is sometimes as much as a dollar on hands all at one time)—as we were saying, he took a large amount of coin with him, and as he never misses more than one in naming the winning nag when there is but two running—and having a large amount of money with him—parties who would like to make him feel even more like a capitalist would do well to keep their reserve fund intact until after he gets a square dun at 'em.

SALIVATED.—Friend A. B. Elder, who has been in charge of the Rex Montis mill for some time past, while engaged in retorting a few days ago, got enough of the mercury fumes to salivate him quite severely, and since then he got a second dose, which, as he says, has given him such a sore mouth that it is with the greatest difficulty that he can tell the truth—showing how infernally uncomfortable it must be. He has had much experience in the work in which he was engaged, but a defect in the retort, as well, perhaps, as a little carelessness, resulted in producing a more painful affliction than that of getting leaded, in which he has also had some sore experience.

TAKEN TO KERN COUNTY.—Fred Gillette, as we learn by the Coso News, has been re-arrested on a warrant sworn out by Detective Hume, and taken to Kern county to be tried for complicity in the late stage robbing which occurred within the limits of that county. He had undergone an examination on the same charge before Justice McManus in Darwin, but as there was nothing whatever to show that he was one of the gang he was discharged. Sheriff Passmore, of this county and Gillette's counsel, H. W. Woods, accompanied him with his prisoner. Hume is Wells, Fargo's noted and indefatigable detective.

A SEND OFF.—G. Washington Brady, who proposes soon to go back to America on a visit, was the recipient of quite a flattering send-off in the way of a ball given at the Blaney House, Monday night, as a token of regard or regret or joy because of his going away, or because it is hoped that he will come back and bring a Mrs. B., or because he is not more than fifty years old, or because of goodness of heart, or because of something else or which deponent sayeth not—but a most elegant time was had and most everybody was there.

RETURNED—P. Reddy, Esq., has got back to Darwin after his extended sojourn at the Bay, in connection with the affairs of the Defiance company, and will probably return home here this coming week, particularly as he in connection with Judge Conklin are engaged as counsel in so many cases to come before the District Court. He will be warmly welcomed by lots of friends.

DISCHARGED.—Jas. Wales had an examination before Justice McManus at Darwin in reference to that shooting scrape with Gillette. There not being enough proof adduced to show that he was the agressor he was discharged from custody. In point of fact we don't see but that he was quite justifiable in the belief upon which he acted that if he did not shoot he would be shot.

FOR THIS COAST.—We observe that Albert Mack and wife were booked as passengers passing Carlin on the 27th ultimo for San Francisco, Mack, who has done so much to give a permanent status to our neighboring town of Benton, now the most prominent mining camp between here and Virginia City, probably found life rather too slow back there at Philadelphia.

IMPROVEMENT.— Numerous piles of lumber are to be seen lying in various places around town, presumptively for building purposes. The foundation for a commodious addition to the store of J. S. Rothschild & Co. has been laid, and Dr. J. D. Blair has most of the material on hand for a new drug store, to be located just south of the Masonic Hall building.

PARTIAL SUCCESS. — According to Judge Reed, Gen. Davies of Carson (a strong Democrat) is responsible for the statement that when the Chairman of a Tilden & Hendricks Club of that city called for three cheers for their Presidential nominees, the audience rushed out and got two chairs and a stool—which was the best they could do.

A CIRCULAR.—Gov. Irwin by circular, instructs officers of elections that they are to be governed in the matter of challenges for defective registration by the rules laid down in Attorney-General Hamilton's opinion treating upon this question, the opinion forming the body of the circular.

J. C. Morrison vs E. P. Skeely and J. R. Norton; assumpsit; Quint & Wilson for plaintiff.

THE REX MONTIS.—This mine is likely hereafter to be the subject of frequent reference among mining men throughout the country, and therefore a word in reference to its locality and history will bear repetition. It is situated on the north side of Kearsarge Peak, twelve miles by the road west of this place, but in an air line apparently not half that distance away. Its altitude is something near 10,000 feet, or nearly 6,000 above that of this place. It was discovered and located in 1865 by the irrepressible Jimmy Sharp, Jim Wall, Scott Broder and G. W. Brady, with which party John R. Hughes, now of Cerro Gordo, held an equal interest. Two years since it was leased to Jack Curtis and others, and while under this lease attracted the attention of Mr. J. H. Holt, the present manager of and a stockholder in the Rex Montis incorporation. Mr. Holt bonded it over the lease and last year took out enough ore to satisfy himself that it was a mine well worth attention. During this time Scott Broder deeded his interest to Mr. Holt. A short time since he completed the purchase buying out the remaining four of the original owners, the purchase money to the amount of $4,000 each being paid over this past week. The company was duly incorporated last Spring. Since then Mr. Holt has pushed work continuously, and has proved it to be really a most valuable mine. The first lot of ores from the Rex Montis was about six weeks ago reduced in the Kearsarge mill, yielding handsomely; since then that work has been carried on in the old Silver Sprout mill, which the company purchased conditionally and refitted so as to do excellent work.

THE ELECTION RETURNS.—If we are not disappointed in our arrangements we will be able to give pretty nearly the full returns in our next issue of the vote of this county. We are at least sure of something quite definite in that time from every State in the Union, however it may be as to the whole of our own county. That's a sort of a remarkable condition of affairs, but it is nevertheless true that we will have a better assurance of how things go anywheres from Maine to Texas than in some portions of our county.

RETURNED.—Still the Centennial visitors continue to return one by one. But what is still better some of the old time Inyoites are bringing brides' with them, as is in the case with Thos. Williams of Round Valley, who passed thaough town yesterday. He visited Philadelphia, married and returned—all in about six weeks. That is what we call enjoying a combination of luxuries. Keep it up, ye ancients.

DISCONTINUED.—Lagunita Postoffice in this county has been discontinued by order of the Department.

GEORGIA ENFORCEMENT ACT. — The New York Herald's special says: Governor Smith has submitted to the Attorney-General of Georgia the question of the constitutionality of Attorney-General Taft's order and the Enforcement Act. It is an open secret that the State Attorney-General believes both to be unconstitutional, and will so decide; whereupon the Governor will instruct the Georgia militia to obey no orders except from their own commissioned officers. This will be construed to relieve any citizen of Georgia from becoming part of a posse when called upon by the United States Deputy Marshal.

SOMETHING ALWAYS READY TO MEND CHINA.—Mix a little lime with the white of one egg; to use it take a sufficient quantity of the egg to mend one article at a time, shave off a quantity of lime and mix thoroughly; apply quickly to the edges and place firmly together, when it soon sets and becomes strong. Calcined plaster of Paris will answer the place of lime.

The "Black List."

Attorney Jo Hamilton has given a lengthy opinion in reference to the points in the Registry Law raised by Supervisor Holland in connection with the publication of the so-called "black list." In this he contends that the fact of a man's name being on the Great Register is prima facie evidence of his right to vote and of his immunity from challenge, except for causes named in section 1230; that the only redress for fraudulent registrations lies in the courts, etc. To this Supervisor Holland replies at length, and as we look at it, with far more of sense and law than is displayed in the Attorney-General's opinion. We cannot undertake even a synopsis of the law points raised by either, but will give the Supervisor's conclusions, which, whether right or wrong are certainly a safer guide for all who do not want to either commit or stand accused of trying to commit a fraud in voting. They are as follows:

First—That the provisions of the statute relating to challenge have no application whatever to a party who is not registered in all respects as is required by section 1,096 of the Political Code.

Second—That a registration which only contains the name, without any, or without some of the other five particulars, which section 1,096 says it must contain, does not constitute the entry of the name of an elector on the register within the meaning of the law, and is entirely void and of no more effect than if the page were entirely blank—that the person bearing the name has no more right to vote under the law than one whose name does not anywhere appear in any form on the registry.

Third—That in the case of a citizen of foreign birth there is no entry of his name on the register, in the sense of the term as employed in the statute, unless it shows the time and place of naturalization.

Fourth—That it is the duty of the Supervisor of Election appointed under the Act of Congress to challenge all votes offered by persons whose names are not registered in all respects as required by section 1,096 of the Code; and on such challenge that it is equally the duty of the Judges and Inspectors of Election to refuse the votes.

Fifth—That so much of the opinion of the Attorney-General as conflicts with these conclusions is clearly erroneous.

A PARTY of young men dined sumptuously at a restaurant, and each one insisted on paying the bill. To decide the matter it was proposed to blindfold the waiter, and the first one he caught should pay the bill. He has not caught any of them yet.

"FUNNY monkey," said Mrs. Partington, as she saw him patiently sitting, "but he sets as if he had plumbago in the back, and I could wish there wuz more hair on his reprehensible tail. I cannot believe, neither, that they are our posterity."

ENGLAND'S new eighty-one ton gun will send a seventeen hundred pound shot a distance of seven miles.

Eccentricities of Genius.

A Cork manager tells how he engaged Geo. Francis Train to spout in his theater. After the engagement had been duly heralded, the opening night came. Says the manager:

The night came! The street was blocked with people. The house was full to overflowing and I was informed by the call boy that, although it was ten minutes to eight, and the music had been "rung in," Mr. Train had not put in an appearance.

Here was a dilemma! I knew the man too well to hope. I hastened to a hotel, and found him seated, slippers and gown, reading a paper. "Mr. Train," I cried, "do you know what time it is? The theater is jammed with people, and the music is already"—

"Never get excited," interrupted he; "take things quietly. I have decided not to speak to-night."

The coolness of the reply angered me, and I said:

"You shall go to the theater if I carry you there." I then rushed around the corner to the theater, and ordered the brass band from the balcony to the hotel at once.

"There's one condition," said Train meeting me at the door of his room, "upon which I will accompany you."

"There's no condition sir," I angrily replied. "I have ordered the band here, and you must follow them, or prove your superiority in strength over mine."

Apparently in a delighted mood at the joke, he followed me to the theater entrance, followed by the band playing "The Rogue's March." At eight o'clock precisely, he walked upon the stage, leisurely removed a handsome light overcoat and a pair of gorgeous kids, and amid thunders of applause bowed to the immense assembly before him.

"Two years ago," said he beginning in that oratorical manner, as few, having once heard, can ever forget, "when I came here, you desired to crown me King of Ireland, but you made another stupid blunder! You placed a twenty-two inch crown upon me, when you knew my head measured twenty-four."

His discourse was one of his noted melanges, jumping, as the Cork Herald termed it, "from Halifax to Jerusalem, and returning by way of Hongkong." His voice was in perfect tune, and his wonderful gestures were carrying his hearers by storm, when a voice from the gallery sung out: "How about that case ye have against the English government for damages, George?"

He rushed to the floats, and in a voice of thunder shouted:

"Twenty-four hours after I'm President of the United States, I'll collect that hundred thousand pounds, or I'll hang the British minister to a lamp-post in front of the White House!"

The next minute I saw Mr. Train walked off the stage by two policemen, and only by the most strenuous effort did I get the house pacified and the speaker released.

An Interesting Experiment.—One of the most interesting entoptic phenomena is the aborescent figure, discovered by Purkinge. If, toward evening, we place ourselves opposite a dark wall in a dark room, and move a lighted candle to and fro before our eyes, looking, however, ffxedly at the wall beyond, we shall then, after a little practice, see this aborescent figure, whose intersecting branches cover the whole of the dark space, and which is unmistakably caused by the blood-vessels in the interior of the eye. The field of vision assumes a reddish appearance, upon which the veins stand out in dark shadows. The trunk of the figure rises a little on one side of the center, where the optic nerve enters the eye, and thence branches out after the manner of blood-vessels; the yellow spot, which is the most sensitive to light of all parts of the retina. If, now, the candle is moved to and fro, the figure will also move, and follow the direction of the light.—Popwlar Science Monthly.

A Brutal Murder in Tehachepi.—A most brutal murder occurred in Tehachepi on Saturday last. Jim Hayes a notorious vagabond, who has been the terror of the community of nearly every town in the county, went into Tehachepi, after a considerable absence, on Saturday last. He rode in front of the Mountain House, about 7 o'clock P. M., and got a boy to hold his horse while he went inside. After getting inside he turned to the door, and, seeing Mr. Goodwin, drew his revolver, and said: "Tom, you are my meat;" then fired, the ball passing through the body of his victim. He fired the second time, the ball striking the door. He then went outside, and has not since been heard from. The boy, frightened by the firing, let the horse get away from him, so that the murderer was obliged to escape on foot, unless he has stolen another horse, which is highly probable. There was great excitement and indignation among the citizens, and if the murderer had been caught he would doubtless have been hung to the nearest tree. Mr. Godwin died the following day. No cause is given for the act, except that Hayes had a grudge against Godwin for his arrest of him at different times while he (Godwin) was acting as constable. The murdered man leaves a wife and three children. The citizens offered a reward of $500 for his arrest, and Sheriff Wells offered a further reward of $250.—Bakersfield Californian Oct. 26th.

It is not generally known that there exists in Fresno county a rival of the Yosemite Valley. The new valley is on King's river, is forty-five miles long from east to west, and has an average width at the bottom of about a half a mile. The Fresno Republican says: It lies five thousand feet above the sea, and its walls, which are about three thousfeet high, are very precipitous. In this valley, a new grove of colossal redwood trees has been discovered. One of them eclipses all that have been discovered on the Pacific coast. Its circumference, as high as a man can reach and pass a tape line around, is a few inches less than one hundred and fifty feet. This is beyond the measurement of any tree in the Calaveras grove. The hight is estimated at a hundred and sixty feet; and a part of the top lying on the ground is over a hundred feet in length.—Bulletin.

Temper.—A hasty temper often leads young men into great mistakes. It frequently causes them to misunderstand an employer's intention; and to resent as an insult what was meant only as a just rebuke. In this way a young man sometimes loses a valuable situation, and has to begin the world over again. And, unfortunately, his hasty temper does not permit him to learn wisdom from his experience. On the contrary, it too often leads him again into the same mistake, and he is again set adrift. His temper grows worse and worse until at last he becomes unbearable, and nobody will long keep him in employment. On the other hand, a good temper and an obliging disposition, when combined with honesty and industry, are invaluable qualities in every one who has his way to make in the world.

"Building the Railroad."—Work has begun in earnest on the railroad leading from Goshen to the Mussel Slough country. There is no doubt but that the Southern Pacific intend to build about forty miles of this road, and that for the special purpose of having granted to them the odd sections of land—twenty miles on both sides of the line. This will be equal to eight hundred square miles for the forty miles they now propose to build. There are now at work on the road some five hundred Chinamen, capable of laying ten miles a day. We anticipate that the company will ask for a change of route from the original one, that is, instead of completing the road to Hollister, they will run down the west side of the San Joaquin Valley, making Antioch the terminus.—Tulare Times.

A Boy's Way of Stating Things.—A boy's way of stating things, though often inelegant, is generally nervous. Example: A lad at Easton, Pennsylvania, entered a drug store, bottle in hand, and said he wanted ten cents' worth of "armakymony." The drugger told him to repeat the word, and said, "Don't you mean arnica, or amonia?"

"I dunno," was the reply.

"What is it for?" asks druggist.

"Can't tell," said boy, starting slowly out. When near the door a bright idea illumined him, and he turned and asked druggist: "If your wife hit you on the head with a chair leg, which of them medicines would you git to take the swellin' down?"

"Arnica."

"Then fill her in ten cents' worth," replied the boy; and he gazed longingly at a big sfick of licorice as the arnica was being bottled.

Count Von Arnim's Case.—Five years is the term of imprisonment to which Count Von Arnim has been sentenced for treason and an offense against the Emperor and Bismarck. The impriionment is to be in a common correctional prison; but before the vindictive Chancellor can inflict this humiliation on the Count it will be necessary to catch him. At present he is safe in Switzerland.

CALIFORNIA'S BEST PRODUCTION.

Yerba Buena Bitters.

The Great Cathartic and Regulator.

Purely a Vegetable Compound!

Harmless but Powerful!

MESSRS. WILLIAMS & CO.—GENTLEMEN: It is with pleasure I indorse your Yerba Buena Bitters. I have never found such instant and permanent relief as from the use of your most invaluable compound. I have been subjected to costiveness and a torpid liver for five years, and am now entirely cured, after using only two bottles of your Yerba Buena. I am certain that it was Yerba Buena that cured me of the palpitation of the heart. I am happy to state through the use of your Bitters I am a well man. All wishing to be convinced of the above, I will give you my residence: 209 Liedesdorff street, San Francisco. JOHN R. STEERE.

Messrs. H. Williams & Co.: Dear Sirs—As long as I can remember, I have been troubled with Pin Worms, and at times felt as if I was being devoured alive. Early in March, 1875, I was induced to use your Yerba Buena Bitters, and within One Month I was entirely cured. I have not been troubled with them since, and am satisfied that I am permanently cured. I think it is the best preparation for Constipation and Bilious Troubles known.

A. B. HOWARD,
No. 12 Quincy street, San Francisco.

I take pleasure in recommending the Yerba Buena Bitters. I have used three bottles and found more relief from them than anything I have ever used. I had been troubled with Constipation of the Bowels, Torpid Liver and general debility for a long time, and found no relief until the Yerba Buena Bitters cured me.

S. BROOKS, Petaluma.

Seeking health on the Pacific Coast, my attention was called to Dr. Warren's Yerba Buena Bitters, and took some for headache, which cured me so perfectly that I bought a bottle and have not taken any other medicine since. It is a perfect cure for any derangement of the stomach or constipation, and I recommend it before any other medicine, as it leaves the system in a healthy state and no dieting is necessary. Please send your Bitters all over the world, for it will be a blessing to humanity beyond the power of words to express. I write you freely and from actual experience CYRUS CUMMINGS,

A Chinese Calamity.

[San Francisco Morning Call, October 31st.]

At five minutes to 12 last night a panic occurred in the Royal Chinese Theater, on the north side of Jackson street, between Kearney and Dupont; a stampede followed which resulted in the immediate death of twenty-one Chinamen; and the wounding of fifteen or twenty more. The entrance to the theater is through a long, narrow corridor, at the end of which are five or six steps, leading to the door through which the audience has to pass. A few feet back and parallel with this door, was a partition built of one-inch boards and reaching half way to the ceiling. While the performance was going on some one in the audience raised the cry of fire. The alarm was groundless, but it created a panic, and a great portion of those in the auditorium and in the gallery, which has a stairway running down to the front door, started for the only means of exit. Some of the foremost fell or were pushed down the several steps leading to the corridor, and those who came after them fell pell-mell on them. The surging crowd pushed on these, carrying the partition with them, and in a few minutes hundreds of Chinamen were piled on top of each other, some screaming, others moaning, and others crying in Chinese and English. A few minutes after the accident a few officers rushed to the scene and attempted to render assistance, but their efforts were in vain for a little while, as those Chinamen who were uninjured refused to render any assistance or stand back. A reinforcement of police under Captain Douglass, came up in a short time and cleared the spot around which lay the fallen men. The officers worked with a will, removed the debris, and in a little while commenced taking out the unfortunates who had been crushed by those who fell on them. As soon as taken out they were carried to the street and laid on the sidewalk. The fresh air revived a few, but the majority weae dead. After they had been taken out it was discovered that twenty-one were dead and about fifteen wounded. Some of the wounded were taken away by friends and others were taken to the Receiving Hospital. The dead were taken to the Morgue. While the dead and wounded were being removed, the police endeavored to press Chinamen into the service of removing the injured and those whose life had fled, but they refused to help. The actors, fully aware of what had occurred, continued playing on the stage, as if nothing had happened, and it was not until Captain Douglass ordered them to cease playing that they put a stop to the performance.

IT is claimed by the English that last year they completed the longest bridge in the world, in their East India possessions. It consists of 64 spans of 142 feet each, thus 9,300 feet, or more than one and three-quarter miles long. It is all built of brick and iron; the masonry amounts to 5,000,000 cubic feet, while the iron girders weigh 6,000 tons.

THE population of Indiana in 1870 was 1,680,639, and is now probably not more than 2,000,000. Assuming a population of two millions, the returns show a vote for every four and six-tenths of population. This exceeds any ordinary ratio of voters to population recorded in this or any other country.—S. F. Bulletin.

"PAPA," said a clergyman's five-year old boy the other day, "was John Calvin a Democrat or a Republican?" "Why, my son?" "Because, I heard you tell Mr.——what Calvin said about the election." That boy will be found in Congress some day.—Milwaukee News.

A coasting vessel of 100 tons at Hartford, Conn., is owned and commanded by a woman, her two daughters being the crew. When her husband the captian, died five years ago there was a debt of $7,000 on the vessel, but the plucky women have paid it of.

The Quintuple Canvass of 1824.

A correspondent of the San Erancisco Bulletin furnishes that paper the following political sketch:

EDITOR BULLETIN: In the issue of your paper on the 21st inst. I noticed an article copied from the Springfield Republican on the celebrated John Randolph of Roanoke, which contained a slight inaccuracy in reference to his duel with Clay. I will, with your permission, give a correct account of the affair, and, inasmuch as I have had unusual facilities for becoming acquainted with the life of Mr. Randolph, being a Virginian, and having spent a good portion of my time in the county of Charlotte, the account may be taken as authentic.

THE "QUINTUPLE CANVASS."

The duel grew out of a remark made by Mr. Randolph in 1824, reflecting upon Mr. Clay's character. The campaign known as the "Quintuple Canvass," is quite a noted one in history for various reasons. The Federalists were broken up into two parties. Both agreed in being constitutional latitudinarians, but had differed on the war policy. One nominated John Quincy Adams; the other Henry Clay. The Democrats were also divided. Andrew Jackson was nominated by one extreme, John C. Calhoun by the other, and William H. Crawford by the middle faction. These were the five candidates. The canvass was exceedingly acrimonious, and party feeling ran wild. It was the period at which the West was called upon to be the arbiter between the Virginia and New England schools of politics. As might have been expected, no election was made by the electoral college, General Jackson received a plurality, but not a majority of votes. The election was accordingly taken to the House of Representatives which proceeded to choose a President from the highest three, viz: Jackson, Adams and Crawford. The election was taken by States, each State casting one vote. It so happened that Mr. Clay, with his followers, held the balance of power. This placed him in an awkward quandary. He refused to vote for Jackson, as being a mere military man and unfitted for the high office. On the other hand, Mr. Adams, although a member of the same party and thoroughly committed to the "American System," was considered inimical to the interests of the valley of the Mississippi. And furthermore, there was an adjourned question of veracity between them, for Mr. Clay had asserted during the canvass, that at the treaty of Ghent Mr. Adams had offered to barter the interests of the valley of the Missisippi for the cod-fisheries of New Foundland. Mr. Adams denied the charge, and called for the proof. Mr. Clay declined the challenge on the ground of its impropriety on the eve of the election, but really, I suspect, because he was loath to enter on a discussion with a man who never forgot anything, and who was a perfect vade-mecum of facts. So here the matter rested.

CLAY'S BARGAIN WITH ADAMS.

In spite of this state of affairs, Mr. Clay decided to vote for Mr. Adams. His followers loudly protested, and were unable to see how he could, with justice both to his constituents and himself, support a man hostile to their section. Mr. Clay, however, would not yield, and so his followers refused to follow, unless he should become the premier of the Administration. He vehemently objected to this, urging that it would impair his future prospects. His followers, however, were inexorable, and so it was agreed that Mr. Adams would be President, and Mr. Clay Secretary of State. Mr. Adams readily agreed to the bargain, and so he was made President. Mr. Clay is not without blame in this matter; for, though he did not make the bargain himself, he knew that it had been made, and agreed to it. The result was what he had predicted. A torrent of abuse was heaped upon both the President and the Secretary. The Jacksonians were furious, and "bargain and corruption" sounded on all sides.

THE CLAY-RANDOLPH DUEL.

John Randolph, the sworn enemy of Clay, headed the onslaught, and in a memorable speech denounced the affair as "a coalition of the Puritan of New England with the blackleg of Kentucky." Mr. Clay immediately challenged him, and preparations were made for the meeting. Contrary to all custom, Mr. Randolph came to the dueling ground enveloped in a huge dressing-gown, that fluttered in the breeze like the sails of a full-rigged vessel. All present objected to the novel costume, and the seconds came near having a duel themselves, but Mr. Randolph refused to fight under any other condition. Being naturally thin, his body was completely obscured by this flowing mass of calico. Mr. Clay aimed at the centre, but there was no telling whether his adversary's body was there or somewhere else. The ball pierced the gown and inner coat, but did no other harm. Randolph reserved his fire purposely, and then discharged it high in air. Throwing down his pistol, he flung open the gown, and, inserting his thumb into the hole in his coat, walked up to Mr. Clay and exclaimed, "Mr. Clay, you owe me a coat; you owe me a coat." Clay replied, "I thank God, Mr. Randolph, I am no deeper in your debt. After what has occurred, I would not have harmed you for a thousand worlds." Thus ended the great duel to the perfect satisfaction of all concerned. Mr. Randolph, however, always remained a sworn foe to Clay, although he greatly admired him.

A BRIGHT little girl was heard to remark to her brother, who is only seventeen months younger than herself, "Hermann, you may live to see the next Centennial, but I shan't!"

[From the Los Angeles Express, October 30.]

It is perhaps within the range of possibility that the people of this city have it in their power to do something effective in not only securing the continuance of a competitive railroad from here to the ocean, but also in the interest of the extension of the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad eastward. But to do so will require concert of action, instead of indifference; energetic effort, instead of apathy. We presume that Senator Jones would enter warmly into any plan that would be likely to promise a successful result. It has seemed to us that the importance of securing an overland connection, with its sole objective in Los Angeles, ought to be sufficiently important to our people to justify them in making even present sacrifices for the great future benefit such a connection would confer upon us. At one time our people were so fully alive to this view that they unhesitatingly subscribed their names to about $300,000 worth of stock to this same road. Is it now too late to vitalize that subscription, and make it the ground-work for a movement which might revive the flagging interest in this important enterprise? Might there not goodly fruit come out of a hearty, spontaneous movement to push the road forward? Is it not possible that with reviving times and the returning confidence of the great capitalists of the country, the attention which we should thus draw to this route would place us in position to receive the aid required to prosecute the work? If our own people should exhibit their confidence in this road by liberally subscribing to its stock, that would be an earnest to stranger capitalists which would go far to induce them to look favorably on the project. No one ever expected that the people of Los Angeles could financially carry this road alone, and we would have but few miles of railroad now in America if they had to be built only out of the surplus means of the cities directly interested in their construction.

Great enterprises of this kind commend themselves to the aggregated capital of the country by the inducements they hold out, and these inducements must always be first made apparent by the people directly interested in them. What have we ever done to bring this railroad before the capitalists of the country? Absolutely nothing. We have rested upon our oars as if we were in a boat that would propel itself, or be moved along by some mysterious agency without our aid. We have acted as if all we had to do was to rest quiet and leave Mr. Jones to take all the risks and do all the work. We have, with a listlessness that is perfectly incomprehensible, held our hands in our pockets and trusted to fate and Mr. Jones for a road, without busying ourselves in the least about the practical facts. Communities do not secure great public improvements in this manner. Capitalists only help those who help themselves, and then only on a basis of profit which must be plainly outlined to them beforehand. Suppose some of our leading business men should come together, and, on the basis of the subscriptions made two years ago, enter into communication with Senator Jones: Let them suggest the best plan which presents itself to them for vitalizing the great work, and hold themselves in readiness to hear and act on his views. Their suggestions may lead to better ones. At least, if they did not, they would result in opening to our understanding all the difficulties we have to overcome, and they might enable us to devise some means we cannot now think of to place the great work on its feet. If, however, we are determined to do nothing, we cannot blame Mr. Jones if he consults his own interest and does what may seem to him best. But if we show a lively interest in the great work he has so liberally inaugurated, and evince a desire to do our part to help it along, there may yet be a future to the enterprise worthy of its beginning. The clearest-headed men in our midst look upon this road with its extension to the Utah Southern as one of the most important incidents to the future commercial and agricultural prosperity of our city and section now on the cards. It would secure to us a volume of trade such as no other road on the maps could give us, and what is of vastly more importance to our people is the fact that the road would necessarily be run entirely in the interest of Los Angeles.

PHYSICIAN'S PRESCRIPTIONS. — The ownership of physicians' prescriptions is being warmly discussed at Portland, the druggist and the patient being the other contending claimants. Druggists in New England generally file away the prescription sent them to be filled, in order to protect themselves from the errors of the physician in its composition, by being able to show his order. It is plain, however, that such a right is subject to the right of the patient who has bought the medical service and is entitled to the original memorandum of advice. The proprietary right to the manufacture and sale of the remedy prescribed is more difficult of settlement. It would not seem to belong to the druggist; it clearly belongs to the patient, so far as he can use it in his own case or that of his family. Beyond that it would seem to belong to the physician, but it would not be professionally proper for him to keep the prescription a secret in order to enhance its value and derive a greater revenue from its use. In some other countries the druggist has to content himself with a careful and full memorandum of the prescriptions, which are returned to the patient, and in case of death the health officer examines them carefully before giving a burial permit.—Springfield Republican.

MOUNT ARARAT.—The present fashion of mountain-climbing counts another triumph. Mount Arrarat has been successfully ascended by Mr. Bryce of Lincoln's Inn. This is believed to be either the third or fourth ascent, the first having been made by Parrott in 1834, and the second by Abich in 1850. The mountain is 17,212 feet in hight, and the last 4,000 feet had to be climbed alone, the Cossack escort refusing to go further. The Armenians of the neighborhood believe the mountain to be inaccessible, and insist that Noah's ark still remains upon the summit. As mountains go, however, Arrarat is not a particularly hard climb. The peak is a sugar-loaf peak of volcanic origin covered with snow, and as no glaciers descend the mountain there are none of their added dangers to meet.

THE ELECTION.

There is no doubt but that Tilden and Hendricks are to be the President and Vice President for the next four years. The following from the San Francisco Chronicle of the 8th, from which we obtain the news, expresses our own views to a dot:

The "doubtful" States of New York, Indiana and Connecticut have cast their votes for Tilden and Hendricks, and the "solid South" has gained its first step toward that fatal and frightful reaction in the policy of the nation, which implies increase of the debt, inflation of an irredeemable currency, depreciation of the United States securities, and in the end danger of repudiation either partial or total.

With that remark we submit the following table of the electoral vote, as indicated by the returns received in San Francisco up to 3 A. M. of the 8th:

FOR HAYS.		FOR TILDEN.
Illinois	21	Alabama	10
Iowa	11	Arkansas	6
Kansas	5	Connecticut	6
Maine	7	Delaware	3
Massachusetts	13	Georgia	11
Michigan	11	Kentucky	12
Minnesota	5	Maryland	8
Nebraska	3	Mississippi	8
Nevada	3	Missouri	15
New Hampshire	5	New York	35
Pennsylvania	29	Tennessee	12
Rhode Island	4	Texas	8
Vermont	5	Virginia	9
Colorado	3	North Carolina	10
California	6	West Virginia	5
Ohio	22	South Carolina	7
		Louisiana	8
		New Jersey	9
Totals	153		182

DOUBTFUL.
Indiana	15	Wisconsin	10
Oregon	3	Florida	4
Total			32

Whole number of votes in Electoral College, 367; necessary for a choice, 184. Sure for Tilden 182, with probably Indiana 15, making more than the number necessary for his election.

The returns received up to the same hour indicate quite conclusively that this State and Nevada have both gone Republican. In this Congressional District, Pacheco was ahead but not certainly elected by any means. Not counting Inyo, there remained seven counties, viz: Los Angeles, Mariposa, Mono, Montery, San Benito, Santa Clara and Santa Cruz to hear from. The eleven counties reported (excluding Inyo, 33 for Wigginton), foot up 3,533 for Pacheco, to 3,287 for Wigginton, leaving the former 248 ahead, or 215 deducting the Inyo vote. Los Angeles is certain to give Wigginton several hundred majority. Santa Cruz may do as much the other way. Further returns will be required to decide this mattter.

In the Third District Luttrell is 41 ahead with 11 counties to hear from. Page is elected in the Second District. It is uncertain how it is between Piper and Davis. It is thought though that the latter will win.

Outside of San Francisco Hayes is 3,000 ahead. The outside counties will swell this majority, but San Francisco may offset it, although the partial returns yet show Hayes nearly 1,000 ahead in that city.

No serious disturbances are reported from any quarter, North or South.

The Democrats have gained almost everywhere.

Later.

The following, addressed to County Clerk Daugherty for publication in THE INDEPENDENT, came by this morning's stage. It gives more than a day's later news;

MOJAVE, CAL., Nov. 9, 9 A. M.

FRIEND DAUGHERTY: I send you the very latest news telegraphed here up to a few minutes before stage leaves. California has gone Republican by 2,500 majority, electing all the Republican Congressmen—Pacheco by 1,200. Oregon, Republican by 500 to 1,000, and the latest last night was that Hayes was elected by a small majority in the electoral vote, but now, 8 A. M., undecided.

9:30 A. M.—Morrissey telegraphs that Tilden has 196 electoral votes.

FILED HIS PETITION.—Last Tuesday, at San Francisco, John H. Lick, by his attorneys McAllister and Bergin, filed in the Probate Court his petition to be appointed administrator of the estate of his father, the late James Lick, setting forth that he is the only son and sole heir of deceased.

THE application of Mrs. B. A. Lockwood to practice in the Supreme Court of the United States, recently, was denied by the Chief Justice.

DEAD.—Cardinal Antonelli, who, had he lived, would probably have been the successor of Pope Pius IX, is dead.

THE PRESENT AND FORMER VOTES.

The total vote in the county this year is somewhat less than might reasonably have been anticipated, considering the occasion and the large number of registrations. Including certificates issued after the printed register closed, the registration for the county foots up to 1,300, nearly. It is safe to conclude that fully 1,000 of these are yet resident and present in the county. Yet the total vote cast last Tuesday was 718. This shows a greater degree of apathy than might have been expected in a Presidential election in this Centennial year.

Owing to the changing condition of quite a large portion of our population, particularly in the mining precincts, nothing of much value can be deduced by comparing the general votes of this with those of former years. Here last year, for instance, Panamint polled a vote of 213; this year it was only 19. Similar changes, but not so great, are noticeable in Cerro Gordo, our oldest existing mining town. But still it will be of a little interest to note the different votes since, and for 1872, in some of the larger precincts. In 1872 Independence polled 97 votes, of which 57 went for Grant; for the same year in the following places the vote stood: Lone Pine, 38 Republican, 42 Democratic, being a total of 80; Cerro Gordo 32 Republican to 42 Democratic, being a total of 74; Bishop Creek, 40 Republican to 24 Democratic, 64 for the total in that place. This year (1876) taking the same places and we have for Independence 115 votes with a majority of 1 for the Republicans; Lone Pine 75 votes with 29 Republican majority; Cerro Gordo, 44 votes, with 4 Democratic majority; Bishop Creek, 106 votes giving 6 majority for the Republican ticket. In 1874 the total, taking the vote for State Senator, was: 114 for Independence, (14 Democratic); Cerro Gordo, 62, (6 Democratic). The returns for Bishop and Lone Pine, and also Round Valley for that election were thrown out on account of some informalities, it also happened that year in these precincts as well as several others, that no one would take the trouble to comply with the INDEPENDENT'S request for statements of the vote cast, so that we had to forego our usual table of returns, and in consequence of this and the fact that the returns were finally thrown out by the Board of Canvassers, there is no record whatever that we can find showing what their votes were. At the judicial election the same year when the vote was smaller than at the preceding general election, the total for Bishop was 64, of which Reed, Republican for District Judge, got 35, giving a majority of 6; Lone Pine, 58, Reed receiving 38 to 20 for Laspeyre. Last year at the general election, Independence polled 107 votes, standing for Governor, Irwin 54, Phelps 40, Bidwell 16, Lovett 1; Bishop, 102, with 36 for Irwin, 12 for Phelps, 50 for Bidwell and 4 for Lovett. Irwin's majority over Bidwell the next highest was 112. Lone Pine polled 60 votes, 23 each for Irwin and Phelps, 14 for Bidwell, none for Lovett. The total vote of the county was 791, the largest it has yet polled, being 73 in excess of the present year. Irwin had just that number (73) less than the combined opposition. On this account some thought the county would go Republican this year. From the foregoing the fact is manifest that in this county the Independent votes did not all come from the Republican ranks; otherwise, the present election would have resulted in favor of the latter by a score or two of votes instead of 32 the other way. As regards our own private ideas on the subject we had expected the Democrats to carry this county by about 50 votes, notwithstanding the weight of opposition shown last year.

With respect to the changes in population shown by these several votes, it will pay to recapitulate the totals, giving the vote of each place in the order of their occurrence, beginning in 1872: Independence—97, 114, 107 and 115; Lone Pine—80, 58 (at the Judicial election, 1874), and 75; Bishop Creek—64, 64, 102 and 106; Cerro Gordo—74, 62, 33 and 44. The variations in the last named were due to the effects of mining litigation only, and therefore need not be considered. The slight variations in the others indicate that they are barely holding their own, and that the expected tidal wave of progress has not yet reached either one to an extent worth mentioning. Darwin, our present largest precint, was not known in 1874; in the following year it polled 142, and this 206, with quite a fair prospect for more than double that next year. Two precincts, Swansea and Pine Mountain, quite flourishing in former elections, have been rubbed out entirely, while in their places we have two others—one of which, Lookout, polls 48 votes in a locality where not a man was to be seen last election. So, from all this, we fear future political prognosticators will never be able to deduce reliable probabilities for this county, based on tables of previous elections.

THE LICK WILL LITIGATION.—It has been ascertained that the main grounds on which John H. Lick intends to contest his father's trust deed are insanity and undue influence on the part of the Trustees and others, who, it is alleged, have used means to prejudice the deceased against his son by falsely accusing the latter of obtaining the passage through the Legislature of a bill providing that no decedent should devise over a certain proportion of his fortune to charitable or other objects, aside from the natural heirs, by which, and other alleged undue misrepresentations, deceased was induced to leave his estate in trust, to the prejudice of the petitioner. The legitimacy of John H. Lick will be made the prominent feature in the contest by the Trustees, and the impression prevails that it will be difficult to prove any action on the part of his father by which his legitimacy can be established,

BUSINESS VS. SPECULATION.—We are indebted to Bacon & Co., of the noted San Francisco publishing house, for a neatly printed pamphlet containing Prof. C. T. Hopkins' lecture entitled "Business vs. Speculation," which was delivered before the students of the State University, September 1st. This lecture contains more sensible advice to young men, and matter by which all classes might profit, than we have before noticed embraced in one essay. It is well worth reproduction as a whole, did space permit; as it is, we shall hereafter submit some of its salient points. Meantime the publishers have our thanks for the pamphlet.

THE Sioux are getting very sharp. They now dress themselves like white men, in white shirts and white hats, and long-tailed dusters, and ride leisurely along the road to some mining camp. No person at fifty yards would ever suppose he saw an Indian as he looked at the ordinary-looking individual riding along the well-beaten path in broad daylight, no suspicion of anything wrong would occur to the honest miner until he finds one of his companions shot and scalped within one hundred yards of his own tent.

NEW PAPER.—We are in receipt of the first two numbers of a new six-column paper, the same size as the INDEPENDENT, called the Colton Advocate, Franklin & Godfrey, proprietors. Colton, its place of publication, is in San Bernardino county, on the railroad, and is likely to be a place of considerable importance, judging from the way the Advocate speaks of it. The new paper is well edited and appears to take the right view of what a local paper should be filled up with.

GOT THEIR DUES.—Weedon, Goodwin and Collier, participants in the recent fatal prize-fight in New Jersey, have been sentenced to the State Prison for six years each; Clarke and Nearey for two years.

THE Spanish Prime Minister has, in a speech, declared the intention of his Government to retain Cuba at any cost.

A CONFERENCE of the Great Powers is shortly to be held. The representative of the Porte will be admitted.

YESTERDAY, the 10th, President Grant was to have formally closed the great Exhibition at Philadelphia.

THE registration in New York State was completed on the 4th, and is the highest ever known.

THE total registration in San Francisco reached 53,851 up to last Saturday night.

THE famine in India is not likely to prove so disastrous as was first reported.

THE EUREKA NARROW GAUGE.—On Monday next, if nothing happens to prevent, ground will be broken preparatory to extending the track of the Eureka and Palisade Railroad over the Pinto summit, and also to build a track connecting the Richmond mine with the track of the railroad, for the purpose of transporting the ores of that company from mine to furnace by rail. The railroad company have telegraphed to Chicago for steel rails, and have sent to Philadelphia for the construction of powerful steam engines for use on the heavy grades, and work on the road will be pushed as rapidly as circumstances will permit. The company contemplates also the erection of a round-house and extensive machine shop at Eureka at an early day. It is expected that the road connecting the Richmond mine with the furnaces of that company will be completed by the 1st day of January next, and that transportation of ores over it will be commenced by that date. It is the intention to have the road over the summit completed by next Spring, when the work of extending it southward to take in and secure the carrying trade of the mining camps lying to the eastward and southward of Eureka will be inaugurated.—Sentinel, Oct. 31.

THE number of paying visitors who have attended the Centennial International Exhibition from the opening day, May 10th, down to and including Saturday, October 14th, is 5,722,448. Speaking of the subject, the Philadelphia Ledger says: "In again calling attention to these immense numbers, we deem it in point to repeat the belief that no such numbers of paying visitors ever attended an International Exhibition in the same space of time. The returns are for 136 exhibition days."

CHAPTER X.—THE EAST.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Philadelphia, the Exhibition city, is situated on the west side of the Delaware river, immediately north of its junction with the Schuylkill river and distant 96 miles from the ocean. It was settled in 1682 and is appropriately called the "Cradle of Liberty." Statistics tell us that in 1876 the population is 817,448, living in 151,153 houses, supplied with illuminating gas through 605 miles of pipe, at a cost of $2 15 per thousand feet, and with its Schuylkill water through 658 miles of pipe. Philadelphia covers an area of 82,700 acres (129.2 square miles) and has property valued at $585,408,705. In proportion to its population it has a larger number of houses, and covers a greater number of acres of ground than any other important city in the world. There are many points of interest in this magnificent city. The leading one, probably, is Fairmount Park, which embraces an area of more than 3,000 acres of land and water. This Park is unsurpassed for beauty and within its limits the International Exhibition is held. The crowning feature of the Park is, that the Schuylkill river, a noble stream, flows almost through its center. The river, placid as a lake, traverses the Park a distance of more than four miles, and "over its glassy bosom graceful steamers glide like things of life and beauty." Fairmount Water Works, which supply the city with water, are located in this Park. The ponderous engines to be seen on the river side are wonderful. They pump into the adjoining reservoir 25,000,000 gallons of water daily. There is an independent supply for the Centennial grounds. A Worthington engine is in operation, and capable of pumping 5,000,000 gallons of water in 24 hours. Also an auxiliary engine with pumping capacity of 1,000,000 gallons per day, is ready in case of accidents. The water is forced to a stand pipe, located near the Art Gallery. This stand-pipe is of wrought iron, 120 feet high and 4 feet in diameter. The entire altitude of the pipe is 208 feet above the Schuylkill river. The scenery in the vicinity of the Park, and especially up the Schuylkill river is indescribably grand. This Piute being desirous of seeing something outside as well as inside the "big show," strolled leisurely, one day, up the Schuylkill. A short distance up stream and near Peters' Island, stands the cottage of "Tom Moore," the Bard of Erin. The old cottage is nearly obscured by a weeping willow. The sweet poet had reference to this locality when he sang:

"Alone by the Schuylkill a wanderer roved
And bright were its flowery banks to his eye,
But far, very far, were the friends that he loved,

A few miles from the Exhibition, on the banks of the Schuylkill, are a number of large woolen, and other manufactories in operation. Busily engaged here are a vast number—hundreds, probably, thousands of "things of beauty"—girls. To see such crowds of beautiful maids emerge from these factories at meal time, was indeed a grand spectacle for a bachelor! Yes, sir, it struck this fellow forcibly that Brigham Young's idea concerning women is correct. Lives there an "old" bachelor in Owens Valley or Benton (particularly), should he have a chance, who would not marry a dozen fairies? Fine chances, boys, for fancy calico, or serviceable woolen goods in this vicinity. Some good farms may be seen up the Schuylkill, but the country being hilly, the dairy business probably pays better. In this region we found Mr. Halberstadt. (Father-in-law of Mr. Wm. Arcularius, Independence.) This gentleman owns two fine farms, and is engaged in mixed husbandry. Joe Fernbach, of Independence Brewery, and another rowdy rooster of Inyo were hospitably entertained at Mr. Halberstadt's family mansion. Mrs. Arcularius and two children were there on a visit. Mr. H. very kindly took us around the premises, which were varied and picturesque. We saw some excellent grain which was raised there, and particularly rye, larger than any we ever saw before. Also apples, pears, nuts, grapes etc., in great profusion. Mr. H. informed us that grain production alone in this locality was not remunerative—that they could not compete with the Western country in that respect, hence they engaged in diversified husbandry. It is a romantic region dotted with comfortahomes. Knowing that Joe Fernbach was at the Centennial, this chicken thought he would find him at Brewer's Hall drinking "foosht rate lager" with Beecher, or others.; but very unexpectedly we found Joseph negotiating for a farm in the Manayunk region and prospecting among the aforesaid factory girls! Don't like to expose the old sinner! Would like to kow whether he has returned or not. Saw him fishing. Did he catch, or was he caught?

TINNAMUCKAHEE.

LAST RUSSIAN DEMAND. — Turkey having acceded to the Russian request for a six-weeks armistice, the Czar's diplomatic agent now demands, in addition, the withdrawal of the Turkish armies from Servia and Bosnia. The meaning of this is that Russia will insist on such final peace terms as will concede the autonomy of Servia, Montenegro, Bosnia and the Herzegovina. The Porte cannot allow this, and will fight to the last gasp before consenting. The armistice, therefore, is a decided disadvantage to the Porte. It gives Russia time to prepare for taking a hand, which she will probably do at the end of the six weeks, meanwhile strengthening the Servians with Russian reinforcements of men and guns. —Ex.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 26.

MESSRS. EDITORS—There has been within the past few days quite a spirited discussion in some of the papers as to whether the 4th of March, 1793, being the day of Washington's second inauguration, did or did not fall upon Sunday, in consequence whereof his inauguration was deferred to the following day. The 5th according to the Gregorian calendar was adopted by this country and England in 1751, and by that style of reckoning the 4th of March 1793 fell upon Monday, and upon that day Washington was inaugurated, but the 4th of March, 1877, will fall upon Sunday and the President elect, whoever he may be, Mr. Hayes, Mr. Tilden or Mr. Cooper, will in all probability wait until the following day to take the oath of office. As the 3d of March expires on Sunday night at twelve o'clock, and the President elect will be hardly inaugurated until noon next day, it will leave a space of twelve hours during which time the President of the Senate will be President pro tem of the United States. There is much speculation as to who this gentleman will be; there is many who believe that Senator Anthony of Rhode Island, the oldest member of the Senate (not in years but in membership), he having now already completed seventeen years of service, will be elected at the coming session in place of Mr. Ferry. He was Mr. Ferry's most formidable competitor for the position Mr. F. now holds and was only defeated in the caucus by one vote. Now there can be nothing said against Mr. Ferry; he has filled the position fairly and faithfully with entire satisfaction to the Senate and with much credit to himself, but would it not be kind and generous to poor little Rhody to give her a President for a little while at least; twelve hours is not long and would hurt no one, while it would be gratifying to the little State to say she did once furnish a President, if it was only for a short time.

The death of Doctor Wm. P. Johnson, one of the most prominent physicians of the city, which occurred yesterday, has cast quite a gloom over the community. His specialty was obstetrics and diseases peculiar to women and children. He was sixty-two years of age and had practiced medicine in this city consecutively for forty years, having graduated at Paris in his twenty second year.

Yesterday in the criminal court the case of Johana Turpin (colored) indicted for the murder of her husband on the 5th of July last, was taken up. She is a fearful looking specimen of humanity and will no doubt be hung. The body of her deceased husband was found in an ash heap in the yard, with the head, legs and arms chopped off and covered with lime. She was arrested three days after the killing and spoke of it as a just punishment for his refusal to take her to a colored picnic, which was held the day preceding. In the same court the case of Isaac Curry convicted of an assault upon a Mr. Davidson was called up, and a witness in behalf of Mr. Curry having testified that Davidson attempted to kiss Curry's daughter, Judge McArthur ordered the verdict to be set aside, and granted a new trial. If all the chaps who kiss or attempt to kiss other people's daughters in this city were to catch a licking for it, Lord! what a number of blackened eyes and bloody noses would be seen about our streets.

The regular meeting of the New York Methodist ministry was held in that city on Monday last. The discussion was on the question of praying bands. There was quite a diversity of opinion with regard to the utility and propriety of such organizations. The Rev. Dr. Dickinson spoke against the formation of such bands, but asked the meeting to pass a vote of censure on President Grant, for visiting the Centennial on Sunday. Dr. Dickinson may be a very good man, but I for one would not like to trust him very far. I would like to know where he finds an example in the conduct of the meek and lowly Jesus (whose follower he professes to be) for arraigning and condemning an individual whose ideas of propriety did not exactly tally with his own. Dr. Tiffany of Chicago, defended the President and said he knew him to be a strict observer of the Sabbath. If he had gone to the Exhibition on Sunday, it could only have been on the most urgent solicitation of a friend.

Col. McKenzie, with a strong force pursued and surrounded the Camp of Red Cloud, who recently removed from the Agency, captured and disarmed the entire band, there being abundant evidence that they were in communication with the hostiles. Gen. Crook then deposed Red Cloud and made Spotted Tail head chief. The new campaign against the hostiles is to commence immediately. SAXON.

A MORMON tramp in Australia, writing to the Deseret News, says: "I am pleased to say the missionaries laboring in New Zealand are well, and though we do not meet with much immediate success, we believe we are doing a work that will cause many to embrace the truth at some future time. Many are free to admit that if there be any religious truth on the earth the Latter-day Saints have got it." Yes, and they've got it bad.

A BEGGAR, accompanied by his dog, stands at a Paris street-corner. He displays a placard: "Have pity on the blind." He is caught attentively regarding a coin dropped into his cup. "Ah! you can see, then." "Yes." "Why, then, the placard?" "It is not for myself I beg. It is my dog who is blind."

AN anonymous contributor sends us some verses entitled An Ode to a Silver Dollar, but we are averse to publishing them. Such things are "owed" by too many poets already, and our advice is "Ode don't."—Norristown Herald.

THE chief difficulty in the way of stopping wife-beating is that the wives will not testify against their husbands—they will not acknowledge that they have been beaten.

PANAMA, October 19.—A severe cyclone passed over the Central American States on the 3d and 4th instants. The town of Maugra, Nicaragua, was inundated on the 4th. About 400 houses were blown down. The inhabitants had to climb on top of the houses to prevent being washed away by the flood. Many were drowned by the houses falling. The total damage done is estimated at $2,000,000. The town of Blanfields on the Mosquito coast, Nicaragua, also experienced a hurricane. Over 300 houses were blown down. The same storm passed over the lake of Nicaragua, causing an immense amount of damage. The loss on the coffee crops is estimated at $3,000,000. About twenty lives were lost. The whole district is completely flooded.

NACHES, the Piute Chief, has conceived the idea of purchasing two or three hundred acres of land on the Big Meadows, for the purpose of making a farm on which the young men of his tribe, who live in that vicinity, can employ their leisure hours in raising corn and potatoes. He has selected the land which is on a railroad section, and is now going to California to interview the railroad officials as to the terms. The land is situated below the Big Meadows Irrigating Canals, and Naches says one of his brothers, who lived in Santa Clara Valley, California, for several years, is an experienced farmer, and he has promised to teach the young men of his tribe how to cultivate the soil. —Reese River Reveille.

A REPORT from Camp Stambaugh, Wy., says: A village of 50 lodges of Shoshones was attacked October 30th by a large Sioux war party, estimated at 1,200 lodges, at Pointed Rock, near the scene of Captain Bates' fight, in July, 1874, and about 90 miles from Camp Stambaugh. As far as learned only one Shoshone, by the name of Humpy, escaped, being the same Indian who saved the life of Captain Henry, in Crook's second fight this Summer.

IN the course of a few months it is not improbable that people who desire to pay a visit to Palestine will be able to reach the various points of religious and historical interest there with "baggage checked through" and without the tedious intervention of pack horses and mules. Signor Pierotti has just obtained from the Pope his official sanction for carrying out the enterprise already sanctioned by the Sultan, of making a port of Jaffa and constructing a railway thence to Jerusalem.

THREE hundred rattlesnakes were recently killed in one day by two men, on Rattlesnake mine, Tuolumne county, and one man killed ninety snakes in a single day in the same place.

RELEASED.—J. R. Norton's case came up in due order and was disposed of by an order of Court setting aside the indictment under which he was held, and ordering his relase on his own recognizance to answer to the next Grand Jury. This was upon the affidavit of County Physician, Dr. Colleau, as to his irresponsible mental and greatly prostrated physical condition at the time, and since he was called before the Grand Jury by which he was indicted, and a combination of other circumstances in the prisoner's favor, together, in the Court's opinion, being sufficient to justify the order. Among these was a motion by his counsel, argued at length by Mr. Reddy for defendant and Mr. Briggs for the prosecution, to this effect: "That no further action be taken for the reason that no Grand Jury for the July term was ordered, and hence no indictment could be found." We don't pretend to understand the matter, neither do we question the propriety of the action. It is the firm belief of those best acquainted with the defendant and the circumstances of the killing of Coyle, for which he was held to answer, that at that time he was absolutely crazy, and has been crazed ever since. Certain it is, that few thought he would live long enough to stand his trial, owing to his manifest bodily prostration.

DISAPPOINTED.—It was confidently expected that yesterday's stage from the North would bring some inkling as to how the election generally had gone. But there was not a word later than the 7th, and of course nothing as to the result. By this stage we should have had advices up to the evening of the 8th or morning of the 9th, and would, we suppose, had there been a through express or anyone up in that country with forethought enough to have forwarded papers of the latest dates. We feel pretty confident though, that we will learn how the day went in a week or two, and perhaps by this morning's stages.

CONTINUATION—LOBLEITEM.—In the item of last week, whereby Mr. Watson returns thanks for the generous aid proffered after the disastrous fire at his place, our attention is called to the inadvertent omission of Cerro Gordo's respond—that place having donated as liberally as other places of its size. In Darwin, Messrs. Waterman & Wells contributed a like amount as set opposite J. W. Sharp's signature. These special mentions are commendable simply because they were the largest cash contributions by total strangers to the unfortunate victim. It shows that liberal California spirit to help thy neighbor in adversity.

MONO RETURNS.—As yet we have the returns of only two precincts in Mono county, namely, Benton and Bodie. In regard to the smallness of the vote at Bodie, Betchtel pestal cards it thus: "The majority of our people have not yet acquired the right to vote, but look out for next year." The vote at that place stands 8 Republican to 3 Democratic, the respective tickets through. In Benton it is, Republican, 75; Democratic, 68, giving a Republican majority of 12 for the two precincts.

BACK AGAIN.—Jo Fernbach got back from his eastern tour last Sunday, looking fine and gay, notwithstanding he maintains his rigid condition of single blessedness as pertinaciously as ever. By the same stage came also H. Levy, who has been to the Bay for several weeks past. But unlike the first named in regard to the single blessedness clause, Levy committed a matrimony during his absence, and brings his better half back with him.

GOOD FLOUR.—Mr. Bell has recently made some improvements in his flouring machinery so that now his mill turns out an article of flour good enough for any market. That is our honest verdict after testing several sacks of the later production, and to those fastidious cooks who have been using San Francisco brands in preference and at a higher cost we say give this a trial, and if the result is not satisfactory we shall miss our guess.

INFORMATION WANTED.—George De Hart, who was in this county about a year ago and had some mining interests in Rose Cañon, but who was talking of going to Arizona, is wanted. Will the Darwin News, the Wallapai Enterprise, Prescott Miner, Tucson Citizen and others of the press tell George that his father, John De Hart, Hills Ferry, Merced Co., Cal., is anxious about him?

LAID UP.—Since Saturday evening last, District Attorney Bennett has been confined to his bed with an affection of the spleen which for a time threatened to be quite serious. He is now, however, improving slowly and hopes to be about again in a few days.

BULLION SHIPMENTS.—On the 5th, J. H. Holt shipped three bars of Rex Montis bullion valued at $1,800; on the same day Rothchilds & Co. shipped 7 packages Kearsarge bullion valued at $2,300.

District Court Calendar—November Term, 1876.

HON. THERON REED, JUDGE.

Court met on Monday, but without undertaking any business of importance, adjourned for the election. Since Wednesday morning action was had in several cases as noted at the end of each.

People vs. J. R. Norton; felony; District Attorney Bennett for the people, Reddy & Conklin for defendant. Indictment set aside, and defendant ordered released on his own recognizance to answer to next Grand Jury.

John H. Holt vs. Virginia Consolidated Mining Company; Bennett & Gregg for plaintiff, Reddy & Conklin for defense; demurrer overruled as far as it relates to salary. By stipulation, judgment for plaintiff for $50 and costs.

D. Campbell, sr., vs. S. G. Halsey; assumpsit; Reddy & Conklin for plaintiff. Judgment for plaintiff.

A. T. Villegas vs. Rafael Cuervo; assumpsit; F. M. Pfister for plaintiff, L. Quint for defense. Judgment for plaintiff.

J. T. Graves, et al, vs. S. E. Martin, et al; slander; Reddy & Conklin for plaintiff, R. B. Snelling for defense; demurrer withdrawn. Counsel for defense requested that District Attorney Bennett be associated with him in the defense. No further action up to Friday morning.

Rafael Diaz vs. A. G. Boley; assumpsit; Reddy & Conklin for plaintiff, George for defense. Motion for non-suit pending.

A. G. Boley vs. John H. Givens; damages; Briggs and George for plaintiff, Reddy & Conklin for defense. Passed for the term.

Harris & Rhine vs. H. C. Wright; assumpsit; Reddy & Conklin for plaintiffs, Bennett for defense. Judgment for plaintiffs.

J. P. M. Perham vs. J. G. Hitchcock et al; assumpsit; Bennett for plaintiff. Judgment for plaintiff.

V. G. Thompson vs. W. T. Wiswall; foreclosure of mortgage; Reddy & Gonklin for plaintiff. Judgment for plaintiff.

J. C. Morrison vs E. P. Skeely and J. R. Norton; assumpsit; Quint & Wilson for plaintiff. Judgment for plaintiff.

Levy & Coblentz vs. Bonds, Crough and John Bell. Judgment for plaintiffs.

A SURE ENOUGH FIRE.—The election here passed off without the least excitement proper to itself, but what with a fire alarm, a runaway and then a real conflagration at night, the usual quietness of things was thrown entirely out of balance. This last conflagration occurred between 10 and 11 o'clock at night, and was nothing more nor less than the water closet belonging to the school house, but which, by the way, was large enough to make a very lurid display. Being some distance from the populated portion of the town, comparitively few were aware at the time that the fire was raging, but still there was a score or two of men there in good time to see it disappear. There was no insurance on the building nor contents, so the loss foots up about $80. It is a profound mystery as to the origin of the fire. The polls had been held in the school house, and at the close of the Court some small boys had fixed up a little bonfire; some seem to think this building owed its destruction to that bonfire, but that is absurd, for the reason that the school house stood on a direct line between, and a hundred feet or so from either. Others think the Republicans took this method of expressing their delight over their one majority in this place, and the Democrats gravely ask "if one majority here can produce such a glaring result as that, won't the Repubs. burn the whole country up if they happen to elect their President?" And the Republicans say its the other fellows as usual adopting their party tactics elsewhere by striking at the very seat of intelligence, by which is meant the school house, not its out building. But in all seriousness the destruction of that little building is a topic of some interest to property owners. By some it is believed to have been the work of an incendiary, and with an ulterior motive. But there is nobody in this town able enough to throw any more light on the subject than the building itself did, therefore we give it up.

CLEARED AND RE-ARRESTED.—Fred. Gillette had another examination, this time at Indian Wells, Kern county, about that stage robbery. There being nothing to show that he was concerned in it at all, he was discharged. H. W. Woods, Esq., of Darwin, was his counsel in both trials. Notwithstanding that Gillette has had two trials and was discharged both times because there was nothing to show that he was the man, Detective Hume didn't believe in his innocence at all, for, as we learn by the Coso News of the 4th, he has had him arrested again to be taken to Bakersfield for another trial. It appears that Hume has obtained some new evidence against the prisoner, and thinks he will convict him yet.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Reddy paid us a visit after his long absence and was right heartily welcomed by everybody. He made no longer stay, though, than was essentially necesssary to attend to some of the more important cases in the District Court, in which he is engaged as counsel, returning to Darwin on Thursday to look after the Defiance affairs, of which more elsewhere..... H. W. Woods, Esq., of Darwin, is also here attending Court; he came in on Wednesday night, and to him we are indebted for the first returns of the election at Darwin and Lookout.

FIRE ALARM.—Shortly after noon election day, there was an alarm of fire which caused everybody to rush to a pile of burning brush located immediately in the rear of Rowley's store. J. A. Brown was soon on hand with his extinguisher from Harris & Rhine's store, and did such effective execution with it in a minute or two there was nothing left of that incipient conflagration. But whether the fire caught accidently or otherwise is a profound mystery.

TOOK A SPIN.—Last Tuesday Dr. Blair's buggy team took the start of him while he was out of the buggy giving them water at a stream below town, and with the buggy bouncing at their heels came sailing through town and around the block and into a brush fence at a most exciting rate. Nobody hurt, no damage to property.

TABOOSE RACES.—Quite a concourse of people gathered at the Taboose station on Saturday last, the day advertised for the races, ball, etc. The mile race did not come off for the reason of the failure of the horse or horses instrumental in getting it up, to come to time. The quarter-mile, single dash, race was closely contested by J. M. Horton's Putty Head; the soldier horse, Sleepy Dick, entered by Arnold; Dashaway, entered by Ball and Pat entered by Wright. The purse was $50 and the pool money panned out $323 25. It was won by Putty Head; the soldier horse being next followed by Pat and Dashaway. Sleepy Dick would have acquitted himself much better but for his heavy rider whose weight was at least 40 pounds more than the horse ought to have borne. A ball, and an excellent supper was on the programme in the evening—the former kicked off with a vim and the latter discussed with a relish. The next day a scrub quarter-mile race was gotten up and run by Dashaway, of the first race; Bishop Creek Ned and Tobin by Stanley, for $30. It was won by Ned.

MINER'S OUTFIT.—The funniest outfit ever witnessed passed through town yesterday, It was an original sort of a one-horse go-hicle rigged out by a miner bound for the Alabama District. The thing was propelled by an honest old grey horse hitched in birch pole shafts. The cart itself was a sort of a cross between an ancient Roman chariot and the screeching bull carts used on the pampas of South America. The wheels were cut out of solid planks and encircled in cast off tires of some old defunct buggy. The body was a dry-goods box of considerable capacity and the load consisted of all the paraphernalia pertaining to a miner's wardrobe and mining implements and lashed on behind was a raw-hide barrel with the red hair sticking straight out around the outside; this was calculated to hold water while crossing deserts. Altogether it was a model and the whim of the eccentric, antique, bachelor miner who is always seeking the New El Dorado.

RE-ELECTED.—J. L. Garretson, the present incumbent, was re-elected Supervisor for the First, (Bishop Creek) District. His administration of the office has been quite satisfactory; so much so, that it was not deemed worth while to put up another candidate against him. Some of the voters of Fish Springs were in doubt, it seems, whether they were to vote for Supervisor this time or not, being uncertain as to the boundary lines of the Supervisors District. In point of fact it is enough to confuse anybody to keep the run of the Supervisors' districts, voting precincts and judicial and United States townships all mixed up as they are. We once submitted a diagram and explanation of that matter in connection with an issue at law regarding the local option election in this same Supervisor district—an error as to its lines causing that election to be declared null and void. Before another issue or election comes up we shall endeavor to set forth those facts again.

MEASLES.—The Piutes about this place are now having considerable experience with the measles. We have heard of no deaths among them as yet, but think it very likely some of them have been carried off as there was much very audible mourning, for the last night or two. We are told that they are beginning to act with a little more sense in managing this disease. They have suspended the cold water plunge, heretofore deemed of the first importance in their practice during the eruptive stage. And here we will also add, that the destruction of their doctors and their doctors' families down to the third generation, has been frightful. A friend told us some time ago, that in the upper end of the valley, full eighty of their doctors and doctors' sons, the very best men and boys of the tribe, had been murdered for their ill-success in treating this epidemic. It seems that in that section they have not left a single doctor alive.

HOLIDAY AMUSEMENTS.—At a formal meeting of quite a number of gentlemen, held at the Land Office on Thursday evening last, the preliminary steps were taken for the organization of an Archery Club—the main object of which is to afford a season of fun and dancing at this place during the coming holidays. A committee consisting of Messrs. Connelly, Daugherty, Dale, Passmore and Childs was selected to devise and report a thorough plan of organization, programme of amusements, procure a list of prizes to be contested for at archery, etc., etc., their conclusions to be submitted at another meeting to be held on Monday night. The official announcement will doubtless be ready for our next issue.

ANOTHER PHYSICIAN.—Elsewhere will be noticed the professional card of Dr. C. C. Wainright, well known throughout the upper portion of the county as a very successful school teacher in former times. Since then he has been back East to finish up previous studies in medicine, and now returns among his old patrons at Bishop as an M. D.

MET AND ADJOURNED.—The Board of Supervisors met in regular term on Monday, but in consideration of the election on the following day soon resolved to adjourn until next Monday. They did not undertake any business.

MADE A CITIZEN.—Ferdinand Kock, an honorably discharged United States soldier, and a native of Prussia, was admitted to citizenship, this week, by the District Court.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Rhine got back last night; Mr. Harris of the same firm is also on his way back, having stopped in Darwin on business, his family coming on.

HISTRIONIC.—Members of the Independence Amateur Dramatic Club will note elsewhere an official call for a meeting this evening, at the Blaney.

MORE SEED BARLEY.—Mairs & Connelly's teams are in again, with a lot of seed barley, which, we suppose, is for sale.

Meeting of Defiance Creditors.

[From the Coso Mining News, Nov. 4.]

A meeting of the Defiance Mining Company's creditors who reside in Darwin was held last Monday evening. Mr. Ed. Wells was called to the chair and H. W. Woods elected Secretary. The Chairman stated that the object of the meeting was to confer with Mr. P. Reddy, Superintendent, as to the best mode of settling the Defiance debt. Mr. Reddy was present and stated that he had a proposition to make to the creditors, but before doing so he invited all of them to go with him next day and examine the property, that they might act understandingly, and then meet him on the following evening, when he would state his proposition. The next day a large number of the creditors made an examination of the property, and on Tuesday evening another meeting was held. Mr. Reddy then stated his proposition, which is to the effect that the creditors shall receive a mortgage deed to the property; that they give the Defiance Company six months' time to liquidate the debt; that the Company will at once commence work and the creditors shall receive the proceeds of the bullion turned out until the debts are paid. Mr. Reddy said that he should labor faithfully and economically in the management of the affairs of the Company and in working the mine, to the end that the creditors shall receive their money as soon as possible. From a careful inspection of the mine we believe this result can be attained within three months. There was a large attendance at the meeting, and all stepped up at once and signed the agreement, Mr. Ed. Wells heading the list. We do not know of one creditor here who has refused to sign it. This speaks well for the Defiance, for if those living here and having opportunities of seeing the mine every day are satisfied with its value, we do not doubt that the San Francisco and other creditors will be satisfied and be just as magnanimous in giving the desired extension as have been the Darwin creditors. It will take but a few days to hear from them all, and if they agree to the proposition work will be commenced and prosecuted vigorously, and we shall see old Defiance turning out bullion again. Mr. Reddy will run one of the furnaces upon their own ores and the other will be used in working custom ores. This latter arrangement will prove of great advantage to the owners of mines who have not the means to erect furnaces, as they can now go to work and develop their properties from sales of their own ore as fast as taken out. We shall now look for a revival of good times in Darwin.

AN enterprise which promises in a short time to expand over Southern California, which will contribute greatly towards the improvement and advancement of Colton, is the manufacture of lime on a large scale from the inexhaustible supply of Slover Mountain. The vast mountain is one solid mass of lime stone and marble. Lime stone which, when well burnt, is not rivalled in purity and whiteness by any similar article in California, and marble that will eclipse Italy's famed productions when capital and enterprise exert themselves to accomplish the object. Arrangements have been made by Mr. Hathaway to have a large lime kiln constructed which will burn sufficient lime to supply entire Southern California with an article cheaper and superior to any in the market. Limited facilities in the past rendered it impossible to supply even the demands of home and Los Angeles consumption, but when the new kiln is completed and all obstacles will be overcome, the market will receive a supply equal to the pressing demand. And now, that such an energetic move has been made to develop the lime resources contained in this wonderful mountain, let some enterprising individual, who has brains and capital, to back this enterprise, establish a marble quarry and supply our State with that necessary and beautiful granite.—Colton Advertiser, Nov. 4.

A NEW Hampshire man told a story about a flock of crows three miles long and so thick you could not see the sun through it. "Don't believe it," was the reply. "Wa'al," said the narrator, "you're a stranger, and I don't want to quarrel with you; so, to please you, I'll take off a quarter of a mile in the thinnest part."

THE POLE AGAIN RECEDES.—The discussion which sprang up so suddenly as to who owned the North Pole may be safely adjourned for a time, in view of the disasters to the last English expedition. The report is that these Arctic explorers gained a point about 400 miles from the Pole, but were unable to advance any further. They did not get up much higher than Dr. Kane. The latitude is given at 83 20, and the greatest cold experienced 104 degrees below the freezing point. This is represented to be the lowest temperature ever recorded. The sun was invisible for 142 days. But not even this discouragement will prevent further efforts. Civilization seems to be bent on discovering what the Pole is like. There is at this moment an emulation between the English, Americans, Austrians and Germans as to who shall get there first. The failure of the English is not likely to have any other effect but to stimulate the others to greater exertions, the more cepecially as it has long been the opinion of Arctic theorists that the American route is the one which promises the best chances of success. It has at least been demonstrated that by it, it is possible to make a greater advance toward the coveted point by water, before the heavy cold sets in, than by way of Iceland. But the English expedition, if it did not gain the open sea which is supposed to cover the Pole, made a discovery which establishes that Ice and snow did not always reign supreme in these solitudes. Coal of a good quality was found on the north side of Lady Franklin Bay, where one of the ships of the expedition wintered. The existence of coal implies that these regions were not always inclosed in the embrace of an Arctic winter.—S. F. Bulletin.

"PA, did you tell lies when you were little?"

The father endeavored to evade the question. The child persisted.

"Did you tell lies when you was little?"

Well no," said the father; "but why do you ask?"

"Did ma tell lies when she was little?"

"I don't know my son, you must ask her."

"Well," retorted the young hopeful, "one of you must have told lies, or you could not have had a boy that would do it."

BEN HILL, of Georgia, said in a speech at Atlanta the other day: "Whoever teaches his neighbors to hate the men of another section of his country is the enemy of all. If any Southern man is blind enough to teach his children to hate the people of the North, he is the enemy of the very South he professes to love; if any Northern man is blind enough to teach his children to hate the people of the South, he is an enemy of his own section, as well as that section he persecutes and seeks to destroy."

A FEW months ago one of the masters of a country grammar school died. The school building was closed on the day of the funeral. Johnny Smith passed the time in playing by a pond near his house. A few days since his mother sent him to school as usual, but Johnny preferred playing by the pond where he met his father, who inquired why he was not at school. Johnny said there was no school, and, when pressed for a reason, replied triumphantly, "That man is dead again!"

BEWARE of false teeth with gutta-percha fixings. Master Alec (who is fond of dogs): "There is no mistake about your being thoroughbred, Major Bumblebie!" Major Bumblebie (not displeased): "And how did you find out, my boy?" Master Alec: "Why, 'cause you've got a black roof to your mouth."—Punch.

THEY had a head of cabbage for dinner. Contemplating the steaming vegetable on the table, little three-year-old observed: "Ma, is that a head of cabbage?" "Yes, my dear." "Where's its mouf then?"

GEORGE asked Alphonso: "Why didn't you buy a waffle?" and the answer sparkled in Alphonso's eyes as he promptly replied, "Because I wasn't waffle hungry."

THE new servant-girl, on the first morning after her arrival, ingenuously asks, "And does girls that lives out have to make their own bids, mum?"

THREE-year-old's exclamation on seeing a new baby, "Oh! mamma's little dolly!"

Land Cases, Land Warrants, and Scrip.

Contested Land Cases prosecuted before the U. S. General Land Office and Department of the Interior. Private Land Claims, Mining and Pre-emption Claims, and Homestead Cases attended to. Land Scrip in 40, 80, and 160 acre pieces for sale. This Scrip is assignable, and can be located in the name of purchaser upon any Government land subject to private entry, at $1 25 per acre. It is of equal value with Bounty Land Warrants. Send stamp to Gilmore & Co., for pamphlet of Instruction.

Arrears of Pay and Bounty.

Officers, Soldiers and Sailors of the late war, or their heirs, are in many cases, entitled to money from the Government of which they have no knowledge. Write full history of service, and state amount of pay and bounty received. Enclose stamp to Gilmore & Co., and a full reply, after examination, will be given you free.

Pensions.

All Officers, Soldiers, and Sailors wounded, ruptured, or injured in the late war, however slightly, can obtain a pension by addressing Gilmore & Co.

Cases prosecuted by Gilmore & Co., before the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Claims, and the Southern Claims Commission.

Each department of our business is conducted in a separate bureau, under charge of the same experienced parties employed by the old firm. Prompt attention to all business entrusted to Gilmore & Co. is thus secured. We desire to win success by deserving it.

CALIFORNIA'S BEST PRODUCTION.

The Great Cathartic and Regulator.

Purely a Vegetable Compound!

Harmless but Powerful!

MESSRS. WILLIAMS & CO.—GENTLEMEN: It is with pleasure I indorse your YERBA BUENA BITTERS. I have never found such instant and permanent relief as from the use of your most invaluable compound. I have been subjected to costiveness and a torpid liver for five years, and am now entirely cured, after using only two bottles of your YERBA BUENA. I am certain that it was YERBA BUENA that cured me of the palpitation of the heart. I am happy to state through the use of your BITTERS I am a well man. All wishing to be convinced of the above, I will give you my residence: 209 Liedesdorff street, San Francisco.

JOHN R. STEERE.

MESSRS. H. WILLIAMS & CO.: Dear Sirs—As long as I can remember, I have been troubled with Pin Worms, and at times felt as if I was being devoured alive. Early in March, 1875, I was induced to use your YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and within One Month I was entirely cured. I have not been troubled with them since, and am satisfied that I am PERMANENTLY cured. I think it is the best preparation for Constipation and Billious Troubles known.

A. B. HOWARD,

No. 12 Quincy street, San Francisco.

I take pleasure in recommending the YERBA BUENA BITTERS. I have used three bottles and found more relief from them than anything I have ever used. I had been troubled with Constipation of the Bowels, Torpid Liver and general debility for a long time, and found no relief until the YERBA BUENA BITTERS cured me.

S. BROOKS, Petaluma.

Seeking health on the Pacific Coast, my attention was called to Dr. Warren's YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and took some for headache, which cured me so perfectly that I bought a bottle and have not taken any other medicine since. It is a perfect cure for any derangement of the stomach or constipation, and I recommend it before any other medicine, as it leaves the system in a healthy state and no dieting is necessary. Please send your Bitters all over the world, for it will be a blessing to humanity beyond the power of words to express. I write you freely and from actual experience

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 9.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Everything is at sixes and sevens this morning, and the most intense anxiety prevails as to the result of the Presidential election. It appears singular that in this day of magic, celebrity of traveling by rail, and the complete annihilation of space by the telegraph as a medium of communication, that we should be so long in doubt as to the successful candidate. From present appearances even the time which shall elapse before my letter of this date reaches THE INDEPENDENT will not suffice to decide the desperately close contest, but here this morning the Democrts claim that Tilden is the man and the Republicans are equally confident that Hayes is elected. The majority will be so small that it may create some trouble when the vote comes to be counted by the President of the Senate. In that connection I send you a few facts about Presidential elections, which may be interesting: Washington and John Adams were elected by electors chosen by State Legislatures. Thomas Jefferson was elected in 1800 by the House of Representatives over Aaron Burr and John Adams. John Quincy Adams was elected in the same way in 1824. These are the only two instances in the history of the government where Presidents have been elected by the House of Bepresentatives. There have been five minority Presidents, so far as the popular vote was concerned, viz.: John Quincy Adams in 1824, James K. Polk in 1844, Zachary Taylor in 1848, James Buchanan in 1856 and Abraham Lincoln in 1860. In 1824 there were four candidates in the field, J. Q. Adams, Andrew Jackson, W. H. Crawford and Henry Clay. Adams received 105,321 votes, Jackson 155,872, and the other two candidates combined about 100,000. In 1844 Polk received 1,337,243 against 1,361,362 votes for Clay. In 1848 Taylor received 1,360,099 against 1,500,009 for Cass and Van Buren. In 1856 Buchanan received 1,838,169 against 2,215,798 votes cast for Fremont and others. In 1863 Lincoln received 1,866,000 against 2,810,501 votes cast for Douglas and Breckenridge. All this demonstrates that the vox Dei sometimes overrules the vox Populi. How it may be in this instance is not yet clearly determined, or at least not made known.

Female lawyers, if such hybrids may be said to exist, are very properly excluded from the Supreme Court of the United States, as the following decision rendered yesterday shows: Mrs. B. A. Lockwood applied for admission to practice, and upon the presentation of her application the Chief Justice said that as notice of this application had been previously brought to his attention he had been instructed by the Court to announce the following decision upon it: By the uniform practice of the Court from its organization to the present time, and by the fair construction of its rules, none but men are permitted to practice before it as attorneys and counselors. This is in accordance with the immemorial usage in England and the law and practice in all the States until within a recent period, and the Court does not feel called upon to make a change until such change is required by statute or a more extended practice in the highest Courts of the States. After this announcement Mrs. Lockwood and her friends withdrew. An attorney subsequently made a motion and stated that Mrs. Lockwood had been admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia for more than three years, and was therefore brought within the rule of the Court in this respect. The motion was overruled.

The recent example made of the prize fighters in New Jersey is having an excellent effect. On Saturday last Tom Allen, the pugilist, was arrested in Chicago as a fugitive from justice, he being wanted in Kentucky to answer an indictment for prize fighting.

The Methodist Recorder enters its protest against church fairs and lotteries in this style: "It is about the season for church sociables. The little games of chance, incipient lotteries, pious deceit and shoving of trifles into visitors' possession in return for their surplus cash—all this doubtful business is likely to begin. As managed, too many of such enterprises result in putting brass into young ladies' faces while taking the silver out of the young gentlemen's pockets. Money so raised is more apt to be an abomination than a blessing. If churches cannot be built without resorting to means which are both silly and demoralizing, let there be no building. Christianity is worthy of honest patronage, and is only hindered by any other."

How to Make the First $1,000.

[Extract from Prof. Hopkins' Lecture.]

A favorite saying of A. T. Stewart, the late millionaire, was, that it cost him more trouble to make his first $1,000 than to accumulate the balance of his vast fortune. So will it be with you. But as there will be no hope for your future independence until this point has been passed, let me give you a few simple rules for its attainment.

1st. As I have already said, choose your calling deliberately and wisely; and, once decided upon, let nothing ever induce you to change it.

2d. Make yourself thoroughly master of the principles and practice of that calling as soon as you possibly can, so as to be speedily worthy of a higher compensation.

3d. Live as far within your income as you can, consistently with your health and respectability; and to aid your wavering resolution when about to buy something you do not need, ask yourself habitually, on what amount of principal the sum your are going to part with will pay the interest at going rates. You will find this rule of wonderful value in forming habits of economy. If you adopt it in practice, it will save you thousands during your lifetime.

4th. Put away every dollar you can possibly save, either into your business or into a good, well-managed saving bank. Few people stop to think of the rapidity with which money accumulates at compound interest, even at so low rates as seven or eight per cent. per annum.

Interest at eight per cent., compounded, on $100 amounts in ten years to $217 26.

But we will suppose you can save from your salary or wages, however small, $100 per annum, and deposit these savings annually at eight per cent, compound interest, at the end of the eighth year it amounts to $1,149.

Let me warn you now, while you are as yet wholly inexperienced in the perils of the stock market, that the shores and bottom of the sea of speculation are strewn with wrecks; for in that ocean are countless shoals and coral reefs; storms unceasing rage, the teredo eats; collisions rend and break; the enemy's guns are never silent; the clouds obscure the sun; your charts are erroneous; your compass variable; your pilots all liars and knaves; pirates board you while afloat; wreckers plunder you while stranded. The speculator nearly always dies poor—often, indeed too often, puts an end to his own life. You know this is so from almost daily experience. For reliance upon mere chance (honest chance) has the same effect upon the mind that stimulants exert upon the nerves. Unreasonable elation in success unseats the judgment as completely as the depression caused by failure. The excitement of success leads to dissipation, extravagance and recklessness. The result of failure is too often insanity, crime, and suicide. Hence the ruin of all the qualities of mind necessary in business life, and the inability of quondam speculators to succeed afterward in business. For as the reformed drunkard is never free from the danger of relapse, so the reformed speculator can never be trusted to refrain from speculation. The vice grows qy what it feeds on. Sooner or later, the little statuettes now being sold about our streets, representing the stock-gambler and toper on their last legs, will too truly represent his condition of body and mind.

DRUNKENNESS.—I have heard the wail of children for bread, I have seen the babe pulling at breasts as dry as if the starved mother was dead. I have known a father to turn a step-daughter into the street at night, bidding the sobbing girl, not yet bloomed into womanhood, to earn her bread as others were doing. I have bent over the foul pallet of a dying lad, to hear him whisper that his father and mother, who were sitting half drunk by the fireside, had pulled the blankets off his body to sell for drink. I have seen the children blanched like plants growing in a cellar—for weeks they never breathed a mouthful of fresh air—for the want of rags to cover their nakedness; and they lived in continual terror of a drunken father or mother coming home to beat them. I do not recollect ever seeing a mother in these wretched dwellings dandling her infant, or of hearing the little creature crow or laugh. These are some of drink's doings, but nobody can know the misery I suffered amid those scenes of wretchedness, woe, want and sin.—Dr. Guthrie.

"DRINKING among fashionable women" is the head of an article going the rounds. But who wants to go among fashionable women to drink?—Fat Contributor.

A Nice Question of Law.

A singular and very interesting case in the administration of criminal law has just arisen in Ontario, Canada. Two men named Young were convicted of murder, and sentenced to be hanged in June. Just before the day set for their execution they overpowered their jailer and escaped. While search was making for them the court extended the day for carrying out the sentence to July 17, but when it came round the prisoners had not been re-arrested, and the officials neglected to fix another day. Since then the Youngs have been captured, and the time set for their execution having passed it is a nice question what to do with them.

Some papers in Canada even contend that the murderers cannot legally be hanged, taking evidently the same view of the matter which was taken not long since by a man in Texas, who, finding himself ordained in the warrant to be hanged "between the hours of 10 and 12 in the forenoon," set himself to make a three hours' dying speech and confession.

There is not, so far as we are aware, any Canadian precedent, but there are certainly a couple of cases recorded in the English books which cover the point. In 1746 the brother of the Earl of Derwentwater, Charles Radcliffe, was convicted of high treason, but escaped to France before the day set for his execution. He was subsequently taken on board a French vessel and brought before the court of King's bench on a writ of habeas corpus, the record of his conviction and attainder being removed into the court by certiorari. The Attorney-General prayed execution, but the prisoner claimed that he was not the person who had been convicted and sentenced. To try the issue a jury was impaneled, and gave a verdict adverse to Radcliffe, who was subsequently beheaded on the day fixed by the court.

Twenty years later, in 1765, three murderers under sentence of death escaped from Maidstone jail and were not recaptured until after the day set for their execution. They denied their identity, but it was thoroughly established, and sentence was ordered to be carried out, though the court did not fix any day. It is altogether likely that the same practice will obtain in Canada, and that after the brothers Young have been given a hearing, and their identity has been proven, they will be consigned to the gallows they came so near escaping.

What it Takes to Make a Newspaper.

The Poughkeepsie Eagle, in an article on "How mistakes happen in newspapers," figures up the number of types used in a newspaper of the size of the Eagle at 600,000—i. e. the actual number of bits of metel arranged and rearranged each day in preparing a newspaper of that size for the press. We suppose few people think of the printing trade as one of the most exact and particular of all the handicrafts, but it is. In making type, variations that might be allowed in the finest machinery would render the type useless. It is very rarely that type furnished by two separate foundries can be used together without a great deal of trouble, though they they try to make it after the same standard. We read once in awhile of a wonderful piece of cabinet work or of mosaic work, containing ten, twenty or fifty thousand pieces, the maker of which has spent months or even years of labor in producing it, and people go to see it as a great curiosity, but the most elaborate and carefully fitted piece of work of this kind ever got up does not compare with that which the printer does every day, for minuteness of detail and accuracy of fitting. The man who does the first is looked upon as an artist—a marvel of skill—and if a hundred of his pieces are put in the wrong way, it is not observed in the general effect; but if the printer, in fitting ten times as many pieces together in a single day puts one where another should be, or turns one the wrong way, everybody sees it, and is amazed at the "stupid carelessness of the printers."

BULLION RECOVERED.—The two bars of bullion stolen from Tuller & Cluggage's stage at Belleville about six months ago were both recovered (so we are informed) last Monday. An Indian was swinging in an old swing on one of the back streets of Belleville, when the heels of his shoes plowing in the earth uncovered the handle of one of the sacks containing a bar of the bullion. He soon ascertained what it was and communicated the intelligence to a white brother, who at once conceived the brilliant idea of securing the reward. He accordingly negotiated with the Indian for his right of discovery for the sum of $100, and proceeded to lay his claim. Hank Woodruff, Wells, Fargo & Co.'s messenger, hearing of the rich strike, concluded that it might be more of a bonanza than was at first suspected and proceeded to make further explorations, which resulted in the recovery of the other missing bar. It is supposed that the thief, soon after taking the heavy bars from the stage, began to realize that he had an elephant on his hands, and according proceeded to bury his booty the first opportunity, and await a more favorable time to dispose of it. Of the three robberies committed out in that vicinity within the past year, in two instances the robbers have been captured, and all but one bar of bullion recovered. Verily, Providence don't seem to favor the transgressor out that way this season.—Genoa News, Nov. 17.

A CLOSE SCRATCH.—The vote for our Congressional Representavive for this district is remarkable for its closeness; unless some error is shown in the count somewhere, Pacheco wins by just three votes—which is bringing things down to a nicety, considering the diversities shown in the voting of the nineteen counties composing the district; a big majority for one candidate in one county, while the next would do just the same thing in favor of his opponent, see-sawing to and fro in this way, first one considerably ahead then the other, only to settle at last with a beggarly difference of three, in a total vote of 37,913. Every county in the district, except Mono, is reported as official. The Chronicle's table on that basis shows Pacheco's majority to be 43; but his majority in Mono, the only one not officially reported, was estimated at 60, whereas it was but 20, therefore reducing Pacheco's net majority in the district to just three, as stated. Mr. Wigginton, while in Congress, did well for us on this side of the mountains, and save as a mere party question with partisans, very few here are disposed to rejoice at his defeat.

WHAT'S UP?—It is said great activity prevails in all the navy yards, as if the United States was preparing for war. The cause for this has not transpired, nor can it be satisfactorily guessed. If large numbers of men had been put on as usual just previous to the election, there are some people who would undertake to explain in two minutes. But the election is supposed to be past, so we will have to look for some other explanation. Perhaps Tweed has stolen the Franklin, and is going to establish a confederacy of his own in Cuba or somewhere; or it may be that Uncle Sam is going to help Russia clean out the Sick Man. Most likely it is precautionary in view of possible troubles on the Presidential question. One thing is certain—Buchanan is not President just at this time, and if a ship of war is needed for any purpose in the Atlantic she won't be found in the Pacific.

IT is believed in Washington that the people of the country will abide the issue of the Presidential campaign and that no trouble will arise whichever candidate may be legally elected. It occurs to us, from this distance, that the people of the capital would be idiots to believe otherwise.

AFFAIRS in Europe are so much unsettled that England, Russia and Turkey are all preparing for war on a gigantic scale. It seems that the two latter are bound to fight anyhow, and in that case England will feel obliged to take a hand in the muss.

ABOUT these days a great many of the speculative youth of the country will begin to seriously meditate upon the possibility of their being the lost Charley Ross, their ruminations varying in earnestness with the severity of their last licking.

IT is now proposed to introduce into Ireland the narrow-gauge railway system, it being well adapted to many localities there where wide-gauge heavy lines would be impracticable or too costly to prove remunerative.

THE American Consul at San Juan reports that in the recent hurricane which visited Porto Rico 45 vessels were lost or damaged, and that the crews of some were drowned.

THE trial of the claim of Admiral Porter for prize-money, growing out of the capture of Richmond, was begun in Washington on the 17th. About $1,500,000 is involved.

OUR latest dates are to the effect that the unusual activity in the Brooklyn Navy Yard has no reference whatever to the present political excitement.

ON the 19th a desperado, named Charles Lightner was killed at Cheyenne by a man named Hosford.

IN Florida both parties claim the State, and a bitter fight is predicted before the Returning Board.

"THE SITUATION."

The above is the stereotyped caption for remarks upon the present state of political worriment, but often as it is used to explain the political situation down in Louisiana, etc., nothing has yet been adduced satisfactory or conclusive as to decisive results, nor can there be for some days to come. While it is by no means clear in the proofs, yet it seems to be a generally conceded point that the electoral votes of South Carolina and Florida go to Hayes. This seems to be the case in the former on a square estimate of the undisputed vote. Throwing that aside, and as Tilden runs some 1,400 behind Hampton, the result shown is, the electoral vote for Hayes and Hampton for Governor.

The Democratic managers have sued out a writ of mandamus to restrain the Returning Board from canvassing the vote in any other than a purely ministerial capacity. The effect of this order is to leave the judiciary power in the hands of the County Boards, and consequently the fraudulent vote must be returned and counted as legitimate in cases where they were as sweeping as alleged, for the plain reason that if of such a sweeping character the local Board would not dare to adjudge counter to the power which produced the result, even if otherwise disposed. On the other hand if the State Board are as rascally as has been alleged they, but for this restraint, could accept or reject as suited them. These mutual distrusts are by no means pleasant facts to contemplate at any time, much less when they involve such far reaching and momentous results. It is not so much that this man or that is to be the Governor of some insignificant State, or that this man or that is to be for a time President of all the States. It is that hinging upon the questionable doings of a very few men, the great question at issue is to be decided at last, and under circumstances as must surely leave painful if not dangerous doubts.

There are but very few people indeed in the North but have a very hearty sympathy with the people of the South in their desire to relieve themselves of the black incubus whose dense ignorance and intolerant spirit has borne them down. There are still fewer who would not do all in their power to lighten their burden in this respect, provided a method could be devised that did not in their honest judgment promise a future burden and evil far heavier, more lasting and wide spread than that now complained of. Clearly the remedy need not be hoped for through fraud or violence; such means may afford local and temporary relief, but sooner or later a reaction and a greater evil must inevitably follow, since like must produce like. If a whole people can be brought to give a quasi acknowledgment of the right of one State to shape its destinies regardless of the plain letter of the fundamental law governing all, then is given a license to any overpowering faction in any and every locality to adopt and accomplish ends by the same means. That is the certain tendency of such tactics, whatever we may think of the remoteness of the danger to free institutions that may follow, or however we may sympathise with the immediate object sought to be attained by such means. Such are bad when resorted to for mere local change and presumed benefit; they are a thousand times more so when, as in the present instance, the destinies of a nation are in a great measure contingent upon a popular judgment as to the honesty of perhaps one County or State Returning Board. Primarily the cause for these opposite distrusts is due to the belief that unlawful and short sighted means have been resorted to by a few persons in the South to promote a commendable object, to wit, a better local government than the intolerable one under which some of those States now labor. No party or class in the North object to the end sought, confining it to certain limits; the only issue between parties or sections on this particular prominent point is as to the means, not the end. Hence it is that the present alleged violations of law, upon which the Presidential question itself is contingent, becomes a matter of deep concern, far beyond its local bearing. If is shown that these allegations are so far false as to leave no taint or irritating question on the main issue it will be well; otherwise, something of evil must ensue, although the general expression now is such as to relieve nearly every fear of disaster let declared results be what they may.

THE New York Herald has an editorial demanding the impeachment of Grant if he has done anything wrong. This is in answer to the Express and other Democratic journals, which have accused the President of exceeding his duty in the matter of sending troops to the South, etc.

WHEN a man begins to admit the probability of a disrupted Union through the present political complications he is at once a disorganizer and traitor, insulting the intelligence of the American people.

FINALE.

"Ashes to ashes and dust to dust
Was not spoken of the soul;"

Nor has it anything to do with the retirement of an editor; for this reason I do not propose to narrate over an individual signature of great things accomplished, mighty schemes contemplated, claims of public gratitude nor the transformation from the tripod of rectitude around which circles a halo of glory, to the natural guise of a human being. Of naturally a retiring disposition 'tis an easy matter—this retiring, but to waste valuable time in rehearsing defunct matter seems invidious and withal, a useless expenditure.

But feeling a deep interest in the welfare and prosperity of THE INDEPENDENT perhaps it is not uncalled for to recapitulate what I have so often privately expressed. It is this: The interior of California and Nevada—particularly the latter State—is certainly blessed with the most intelligent, the most generous and the best conducted journalism in the world; they are at once, pure and chaste in precept, kind and courteous with the public, and liberal to a fault in their views. They pay for a large amount of composition, grind out an astonishing quantity of original ideas, put it in the prettiest type and best of all, print elegantly and with patient care. Devoid of flaming poster cuts, they appear like gems—these compact little sheets. I admire them. I adore the style. I am a lover of beautiful art. I know that were I to accept a deadly challenge to meet a foe and he were to transmit the challenge neatly printed on superior paper, I would feast my eyes on the fine work and look for the imprint—perhaps keep on admiring it until the difficulty blowed over.

One word in regard to the new-old management of THE INDEPENDENT I have been behind the scenes and know whereof I speak. So accuse me not of ulterior motives when I boldly assert that the proprietors are honest and conscientious, and liberal to a fault with all their patrons; and if the paper is not made a complete success it will not be from their lack of energy, but such a result would give the outside world a well defined suspicion that the boasted mineral wealth and great natural resources of Inyo have only existed in the defunct paper's editorial imagination.

To the many warm friends of the institution I say I am with you yet. To others let me advise, Cuss not your local editor for in turn others will cuss him for not cussing you harder, and in the end you will get the exaggerated cussing you so richly deserved in the first place.

H. L. CHILDS.

UTAH MINES.—The mines of Utah are coming into greater prominence as the bullion yield increases and becomes more certain. The output of gold, silver and lead is now estimated at over $5,000,000 yearly, although it is impossible to arrive at strictly accurate figures from the fact that the treasure and base bullion have no fixed channel of export. There are no less than ninety mining districts in Utah, and it is stated that ten thousand persons are engaged directly in mining. The mines and improvements are valued at $20,000,000, but of course estimates of this character are necessarily unreliable. But mining in Utah has settled down to a substantial basis, and is being prosecuted in a different manner from that which ruled in the days of Emma and Flagstaff. Most of the leading mines are still worked and controlled by English companies, and their management is proverbially thrifty and economical.

OUR REPRESENTATION.—It seems to be reduced to something near a certainty that Luttrell beats McKenna in the Third district, and that Pacheco wins over Wigginton in this, the Fourth, therefore California will be represented in the Lower House of Congress by one Democrat and three Republicans—a gain of two for the latter on a mere count of noses—full twice that number for themselves and the Democrats as well, seeing that Piper don't go.

THE DISTRICT MAJORITIES.—The majorities for Presidential Electors in the several Congressional districts in this State are now known to be very nearly as follows: First district—Hayes', 793; Second district—Hayes', 3,809; Third district—Tilden's, 139; Fourth district—Tilden's 1,037. Total majorities by districts — Hayes', 4,602; Tilden's, 1,176. Net majority in the State for Hayes, 3,426.

THE Alta states that the cost of the late election in the city of San Francisco will reach nearly $30,000, and to the Federal Government, for Marshals and Supervisors of Election, $15,000.

STAGE ROBBERY.—On the 14th instant two masked men stopped the Eureka and Hamilton stage, and took the express box, containing $500. The passengers were not molested.

AT a Workingmens' Congress in Paris a woman was chosen Secretary, and three women made able speeches on the subject of woman's labor and her rights, and were warmly applauded.

PIUTE ADRIFT.

CHAPTER XII.—BACHELORS.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Piute intended to continue his chapters in due course, as heretofore, briefly sketching things and events as they occur to his comprehension; but he has been interrupted. A shower of letters from dear "old" bachelor friends has washed him off the track, as they must be "answered immediately"—privately, of course! These eloquent epistles contain a string of queries of this sort: "Many young girls back there?" "Are they on the marry?" "S'pose I could get one?" "Are they 'purty?'" "Many old maids?" "Any young widows, without children?" etc., etc,

It is not becoming for noble roosters, who have "bached it" for years and enjoyed the benefits derived from single blessedness, to propound such questions. They evince a weakness which betrays the boys' fidelity to the Brotherhood, and militate against the rules and regulations. However, confirmed bachelors are rather queer animals. They are supposed to hardly ever mention women's names or their affairs, but the naked fact is that whenever and wherever a crowd of them meet the conversation will surely run on crinolines, waterfalls and pullpacks, which is a little inconsistent with the rules of the Order.

Yes, sir; this great Centennial Exhibition was complete—with one exception. It had no Bachelors' Hall; no representation of the Boys' Nest. The grounds contained every other kind of a hall, even Women's Hall (Women's Pavilion, erected at a cost of $30,000), but no Bachelors' Hall did we find! What an inconsidered portion of depraved humanity old bachelors are. They are slyly despised by the fair maids, who frequently pronounce the "rusty" ones to be "mean and contemptible."

The dear ones should not be too severe. Samuel J. Tilden is a bachelor. Washington wasn't much better, though pronounced the father of his country. Ex-President Buchanan was one; also Watts, Newton, Paul and Jesus Christ. And in this age and generation we have George Reynolds, Bob. Love, Curtis and other celebrities. The ladies are aware that a "heap" of courage is required to remain a bachelor, while any fool or pusillanimous cuss gets a wife. Bachelors certainly possess some noble traits. How fond they are of cats, dogs, pigs, calves and colts—but they see "no money" in babies. Piute also entertained such an idea, but he was completely upset and dumbfounded the other evening, when he heard a fond mother who was caressing her infant babe exclaim at the top of her voice, "worth a hundred thousand dollars." The 'old man' and herself had ten of 'em, big and little—ten hundred thousand dollars—millionaires! Must be; she wouldn't lie about it. Golly! Sell your horses, Goodridge; get a wife, old boy, and make a raise of $100,000 or more in one season. It is not astonishing that some of the boys are inquisitive about it; profitable business—"millions in it."

Yes, comrades, there are thousands of girls and a variety of buxom young widows in the market. A thousand head would, probably, supply the demand of Owens Valley, Partzwick, Benton and vicinities. The Benton fellows (nice poys, dose poys) could be very easily accommodated—any kind of ducks ought to suit their amiable dispositions. But a gruff old bachelor farmer is a hard nut, and he requires a very peculiar darling. In order to be fully adequate to the requirements of the farm, she must be a bouncing Betty—up in the morning, Winter and Summer, between 4 and 5 and dance alone around the cold stove. Cooking and housekeeping in fine style is in the programme; milking and butter-making; feeding hogs, calves, chickens and babies; gardening (for amusement); driving hogs and calves fifty times a day out of the grain field; watch her liege lord's shirts—make her own and the children's and most of his wearing apparel; on a rainy day she may mend the harness; must save eggs enough to buy groceries, and sell sufficient butter to buy a threshing machine (she may do without a sewing machine); be able to build two rods of sod fence per day in case Mr. Indian does not come; and must feed all the stock during the "old man's" trip with a load of truck to Panamint, and while he is engaged upon any protracted game of bean poker or a horse race. Furthermore, she should possess "nerve" enough to scare and scalp an Indian in case of dire necessity—and all this and much more without her mamma.

No, sir; can't promise to pick you out one. Rather delicate business. If madamoiselle can read the programme of tactics without fainting, there may be a fair prospect. Never despair. Have faith—and—well, I'm going to bed. Owaugh!

CHAPTER XIII—AT THE CENTENNIAL.

The great Centennial International Exhibition—the grandest the world has ever seen—came to a close on the 10th instant. On the evening before we witnessed a magnificent display of fireworks, a programme of which I inclose.

The 10th was a wet, disagreeable day; still the closing ceremonies were performed, with much music and some eloquent speeches by Welsh, Goshorn and Hawley, and a very brief one, as usual, by President Grant. The music was under the direction of Theodore Thomas, assisted by 100 musicians and a chorus of 400 voices, composed of all the Philadelphia singing societies. The final musical performance was "America"—

"My Country, 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of Liberty,"

Etc., played and sang by the orchestra and chorus, the entire audience joining in. During the singing the original flag of the American Union, first displayed by Commander Paul Jones on the Bon Homme Richard, was unfurled and received with deafening cheers. Then followed President Grant's marvelous speech, and here it is complete: "I now declare the Centennial International Exhibition closed." Any school boy is able to commit it to memory. As the words of the President were pronounced a concerted signal flashed by wire from the Judges' Hall to Machinery Hall, and stopped the great Corliss engine. Another wire near the President sent the formal announcement of the close of the Exhibition over the country.

During the 159 days the Exhibition has been opened, it is estimated that nearly ten millions of people have visited it, but only eight millions of paying visitors.

The total number of exhibitors in the Centennial Exhibition reached 30,864, and were distributed among fifty countries of the world. The United States headed the list with 8,175 exhibitors; Spain and her colonies came next with 3,822; Great Britain and her dependencies sent 3,584 exhibitors, and Portugal stands fourth with 2,462.

	VISITORS.
September 28, Pennsylvania day	257,168
November 9, Philadelphia day	176,745
October 19, Delaware and Maryland day	161,355
October 18	124,777
October 26, Ohio day	122,300
September 21, New York day	122,031
November 2	115,208
November 1	107,715
October 25	103,906
September 30	103,385
October 12, New Hampshire day	101,541
September 20	101,498

"This Exhibition has been a great educator. Millions of people have come hither to enjoy the teachings of a school that has laid the foundations for more liberal thought, and for a more extended knowledge of the social, industrial and political elements that contribute to the welfare of man.

The beneficial results that will ensue from these teachings cannot be overestimated. It has given the people of other nations new and correct ideas of the resources and institutions of America. It has given the people of America enlarged information of the arts, products and wealth of the participating nations. It has also strengthened social and commercial relations between nations, which are results of high importance, and may be considered a happy consummation of the objects of this international work. * * * Before our Exhibition the people, with the exception of the cultured few, had comparatively little taste for art. Now the country is swarming with art ideas from North to South, from East to West. A statue is deified, a piece of porcelain is idolized, and a glowing canvas is honored much more than ever before.

All this is due to the educating influences of the great Exhibition. It has saturated the middle classes; it is permeating every hovel and every tenement house. * * * The amount of knowledge acquired, and the vast number of new ideas set in fertile minds by the Exhibition are simply inestimable. They will ferment in the brains of our mechanics, our engineers and our manufacturers, and result in a multiplicity of new inventions which will in time immeasurably advance the country in material civilization.

Our Exhibition can boast of being the greatest fair of the civilized world by reason of having been of greater civilizing effect than any of its predecessors, and, indeed, than all others combined."

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA,
Executive Department.

In pursuance of a custom which obtains in most, if not all, of the States of the Union, I hereby appoint Thursday, the 30th day of November, instant, to be observed as a day of thanksgiving and praise.

The people of the State are invited to desist from their ordinary vocations on that day, and, assembled in their accustomed places of worship, to give thanks and praise to the Divine Providence for the many blessings bestowed on them, as a community and as individuals, during the past year.

We have not suffered from the visitation of either famine or pestilence; abundant harvests have rewarded the labors of the husbandman, while general health has blessed the people. General prosperity has visited every part of the State, and caused contentment and happiness among all classes.

We have not been subject to the evils of arbitrary power on the one hand, nor to those of unbridled license on the other. We have enjoyed the inestimable boon of liberty regulated by law. We felicitate ourselves that the cause of education, morality and religion has been advanced.

Our condition, material, social and political, as compared with the condition, in these respects, of most other, even enlightened and Christian peoples, should inspire us with emotions of gratitude, and dispose us to give thanks and praise to the Source of all Good.

Let us, then, on the day set apart for that purpose, recount our obligations to God, and thereby nourish in our hearts those feelings of dependence and sentiments of gratitude which should ever characterize a free, intelligent, and religious people.

In testimony whereof, I have set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed hereto, this, the fourteenth day of November, A. D. eighteen hundred and seventy-six. [SEAL]

WILLIAM IRWIN,
Governor.

Attest: THOMAS BECK,
Secretary of State.

SQUARE-OUT POKER.—The intelligent class of Indians now play the regular white man's poker game and use the white man's gambling terms, such as "full hand," "go you ten better," "bet a bean," "you're a liar," and all the endearing terms used at a gentlemanly white man's game. They don't want any missionaries.—Carson Tribune.

IT is estimated that the election on the 7th instant cost $10,000,000.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 25,.....1876.

Important.

☞ A full and complete settlement is earnestly desired with all patrons of THE INDEPENDENT, pro and con. Mr. H. L. Childs will continue to act and sign for the firm until such business is completed. CHALFANT & PARKER.

POSSIBLE SERIOUS TROUBLE AHEAD. Some four weeks since a drunken Indian prowled around a Mexican's shanty near Lone Pine, finally setting it on fire and burning it down. The Mexican discovered and shot him dead. It is a very common thing for these Indians to get drunk, to threaten mischief to the whites, to cut and slash each other indiscriminately, and occasionally to get shot by somebody; but for the fatal result this present instance would hardly be worth remark. As it is his brindle visaged brethren having found him dead, and not understanding the reason therefor, or appreciating the fact he was drunk and dangerous and all that, are, it is said, manifesting a disposition to kick up a muss about it. They no doubt feel as some of their white brethren do when drunk, viz., that being "heap drunk" is a legitimate excuse for impulsive wrong doing, no matter how serious, consequently a killing like this was without sufficient cause—in which last they are probably correct.

SPORTING.—A grand time is on the tapis and arrangements made for an exciting horse race to come off at the Taboose Race Course. The following well known bloods will run in the first, a sweepstake race—single dash of half-mile, for $100 on a side—making thus far $400 up: Croppy, Pinto, Billy Kingsley and Frank Reddy. In the second race considerable interest will be taken as there has been a difference of opinion among the sporting fraternity as to the speed of two (in racing parlance) three-hundred-yard horses. One is the "Black Horse," owned by T. K. Hutchison, of Bishop; the other, "Mary Hammon," a fiery little mare, owned by Jas. Jones, of Fish Springs. These horses are backed up by their respective owners to the tune of $500 a side and the winning horse takes the pot of a $1,000. The distance is fixed for 300 yards. The racing will commence on New Year's day and a sociable dance will be given in the evening.

PERSONAL.—V. A. Gregg, Esq., left us Sunday last, on his way to meet his family at the Bay, thence to go to Santa Barbara, as mentioned heretofore.... District Attorney Bennett contemplates a trip, immediately after the adjournment of Court, to some of the warm springs on the other side with the hope and view of health recuperation.... P. Reddy, Esq., returned from Darwin early this week, since which he has been in close attendance at Court. We also note the presence from the same place of our old fellow sinner, Martin Mee, and an ex-typo, Mr. Sharp of the firm of J. W. Sharp. Notwithstanding all this things go on here as smooth as can be.

THE IVANPAH INDIAN WAR.—We have heard nothing further in relation to the threatened Indian outbreak at Ivanpah, other than the reputed cause. This was that some white men killed two ponies belonging to the Indians. In revenge for this the latter attacked and burnt a cabin belonging to a white man, and killed his squaw wife and her half breed child, since which no further hostile demonstrations by them appear to have been made. The whites feeling alarmed, and having no arms, started Tom McFarlane for San Bernardino for arms and help. These he got and started on his return, resolved on the bloodiest kind of war.

APPOINTMENT.—Mr. H. L. Childs on Wednesday last received the appointment as Deputy Revenue Collector for Inyo and Mono counties, under John Sedgwick, United States Revenue Collector, First District, Mr. Childs takes the place of and at once assumes the important duties formerly devolving upon V. A. Gregg. Mr. Childs will be found at THE INDEPENDENT office, and all communications relative to this subdistrict's revenue business must be addressed to him.

SOLD OUT.—The fourteen-mule team and prairie schooner wagon, including trail, etc., belonging to Omai Mairs and T. F. A. Connelly, which has been employed for the past year between this place and the railroad, has been purchased by Nadeau, of the Cerro Gordo Freighting Company. Omai says he is a mulewhackist no more, and is open for engagement with some kind-hearted, docile sort of a man.

BY TELEGRAPH.—Here is a real if not an important telegraph dispatch, the first published in this paper as a news item directly from the wire: "Dr. Matthews' buggy team (at the Post) got frightened at something and ran away; the buggy was badly smashed, and the driver was scared, that being the sum of the damages." We forgot to mention that this occurred on Thursday.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH.—Charles Inman, a young man residing at Bishop Creek, Thursday last fell into a small stream of water near the house, and by the time help reached him, was dead. This melancholy circumstance was doubtless attributable to an epileptic fit, to which he was subject. Drowning was the immediate cause of death.

KEARSARGE MILL.—The Kearsarge mill is now engaged on a clean up run preparatory to closing down for the Winter. Al. Rose, a practical engineer of this place, was sent for this week to repair a blow out in the boiler. The defect will occasion a short delay.

STOCK LAW.—The people living on Bishop Creek enact rules which are respected as much as well regulated law, and thereby perfect harmony is made to exist between the stock men and farmers. By mutual agreement the stock is all removed to the river bottoms and mountain valleys when work is resumed on the ranches in the Spring, and the crops are allowed to grow and flourish regardless of the fact that a large tract of country is "lying loose" without the sign of a fence. In the Fall, about this time of the year, another agreement goes into effect and the droves of cattle are allowed to return from their Summer haunts in the mountains where danger lurks in the shape of snow upon snow, and from the river bottoms where the feed has been grazed close to the ground. If the Winter be not too severe the stock continue rolling fat until the time comes again for the local migration.

THANKSGIVING.—As will be seen by the document given at length elsewhere in this issue, Gov. Irwin has appointed Thursday, the 30th instant, as a day of Thanksgiving, being the same as fixed by President Grant. This proclation is worth reading for its sentiment and neatness of expression. Surely the people of California as a class have as much to be thankful for as any in the world. However, we shall not attempt an homily on that subject, but rather the day being set, and furthermore being close at hand, ways and means for its proper observance becomes the first consideration. Now, as for the ways—there is no trouble about that, so far as we are concerned. Any one of half a dozen or more that occurs to us would do very well. But the means? there is food for reflection. We give it up. Not a turkey roosts anywhere near here. If he is at all subject to dark presentments a certain scrubby rooster won't be able give many thanks.

GOOD PRICES.—Corn is selling at 2½ to 2¾ cents per pound and barley at 3¾ to 4 cents per pound.

WILL ADJOURN.—District Court will adjourn to-day for the term.

District Court Calendar—November Term, 1876.

HON. THERON REED, JUDGE.

Since Friday of last week the following cases have been adjudicated and business transacted as specified:

Friday, Nov. 17—Bernardo Arambula, an alien, admitted to citizenship. Thos. H. Morehouse vs. H. G. Plumley and L. A. James; water suit. R. M. Briggs for plaintiff; P. W. Bennett for defendant, who asked that A. R. Conklin be entered as associate counsel for defendant. A venire for twelve jurors was issued and the following drawn and accepted: T. W. Hill, W. T. Davis, B. L. Brown, J. B. White, S. P. Moffat and L. Wood. Two witnesses were examined on behalf of plaintiff and Court adjourned until Saturday, Nov. 18—Frederick Herzog, an alien, admitted to citizenship. Morehouse vs. Plumley et al—Case resumed; one witness recalled and two other examined for plaintiff. Three witnesses testified in behalf of defendant. At 4:30 Court adjourned until

Monday, Nov. 20—Case resumed; two witnesses examined on part of defendant, and Book of Deeds and Records of Inyo county offered in evidence. Reference being made, records of U. S. land patents were overhauled, and the evidence closed. After recess, argument was opened by Briggs for plaintiff, followed by Bennett and P. Reddy for defendants. On Tuesday, Nov. 21—Closing argument by Briggs for plaintiff. The Court read charge to the jury, after which they retired and found a verdict for defendants. Briggs, for plaintiff, moved for a stay of proceedings for twenty days, pending motion for a new trial. Peter McGann vs. Benigno Aguirre. Suit for damages. Reddy & Conklin for plaintiff and Bennett, with Briggs as associate, for defendant. Venire issued for twelve jurors. Five were accepted, as follows, Jas. Shepherd, J. R. Turner, W. C. Clark, A. W. H. Smith and J. H. Cook, the remainder being challenged peremptorally or for cause; Court ordered venire for five additional jurors, from which J. M. Horton was accepted. Examination of witnesses commenced.

Wednesday, Nov. 22—L. Munzinger vs. John Lubken et al—Referred to Court Commissioner.

J. W. Sharp vs. W. M. Lent et al. Passed for the term.

T. W. Hill vs. A. W. Robinson—Referred to Court Commissioners.

A. C. Hanson vs. Geo. D. Roberts et al—Passed for the term.

McGann vs. Aguirre—Examination of witnesses continued. At request of plaintiff's counsel, "the plaintiff and defendant were presented to the jury to exhibit their respective physiques, and by the jury examined back and front." On conclusion of evidence the case was argued at length. After a short deliberation the jury rendered a verdict in favor of defendant.

W. J. C. Gill vs. N. N. Sayler and A. A. Riddle—Cause came on for trial with Bennett and Briggs as counsel for plaintiff, and Reddy & Conklin and H. W. Woods for defendant. Complaint of foreclosure of mortgage read by Bennett. Counsel for defendants moved for dismissal of action on ground of want of jurisdiction. Motion being argued.

Choosing the Pope.

For nearly a thousand years the Roman Pontiff was chosen by the suffrages of the civic magistrate, the people and clergy of Rome, in whom alone the elective franchise had become vested. It is true their choice was not always a free one, the turbulent barons of the Eternal City or the neighboring towns often dictating to the voters or corrupting them; and from the beginning of the eleventh century, the Emperors of Germany seeking to control the election. It was doubtless with the view of destroying the influence of the Imperial party in future Papal elections that Hildebraud prevailed upon Nicholas II to issue, in 1059, his memorable bull conferring the franchise upon the Cardinals exclusively, by whom it has ever since been exercised. As more than three-fourths of the Sacred Colleges are Italians, their choice is apt to fall on one of their own countrymen; and, in point of fact, it is now more than three centuries since any other than an Italian has filled the papal throne. The limitation of the suffrage to the wearers of the red hat, however, has been regarded by some Catholics with disfavor, and not long since a society was formed in Italy with the avowed purpose of "vindicating the rights of Christians generally, and the Romans particularly, in electing the next Pope." Only a few weeks since it was announced that Pius IX regarded the members of the society as having incurred the greater excommunication, a peculiarly severe form of ecclesiastical censure reserved by the Pontiff for extreme emergencies. But the efforts of the innovators would seem, from a telegram received lately from Rome, not to have been without the influence of the Sacred College itself, for a convocation of cardinals is now holding in Rome with the view of ascertaining the feasibility of introducing certain modifications in the system of election, so that the electors may exercise full liberty when a successor to Pius IX is to be chosen. Of course the cardinals will always retain the franchise, and it will never be restricted again to the Roman community, but the agitation may bring about the choice of a Spaniard, an Austrian, or a Frenchman, at the new papal election.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 25,.....1876.

Various Things.

President Grant has signed a pardon for Wm. O. Avery, in the Missouri penitentiary for complicity in the whisky frauds. The friends of Wm. McKee, in for a similar offense, feel confident he will be equally fortunate within a few days.

George Chapman, the veteran pioneer actor of the Pacific coast, died at San Francisco, November 16, at the advanced age of seventy-three years.

Rev. R. F. Parshall has sued the Committee of the First Baptist church of Oakland for $100,000 damages for an alleged slander.

A general European war is now regarded as almost certain. The greatest activity prevails at all the arsenals and dock-yards in England.

How to Succeed.—Understand the reason, and all the reasons, why a habit is injurious. Study the subject until there is no lingering doubt in your mind. Avoid the places, and the thought that leads to the temptation. Frequent the places, associate with the persons that lead away from temptation. Keep busy; idleness is the strength of bad habits. Do not give up the struggle when you have broken your resolution once, twice—a thousand times. That only shows how much need there is for you to strive. When you have broken your resolution, just think the matter over, and endeavor to understand why it is you failed, so you can be on your guard against a recurrence of the same circumstance. Do not think it an easy thing that you have undertaken. It is folly to expect to break off a bad habit in a day, which may have been gathering for years.

Another Exposure.—Mrs. Huntoon, a sister of the Eddy brothers, was recently detected while personating spirits at Webster, Massachusetts. She had been invited to hold forth at the house of John Flint. A circle was formed, the lights were turned low, a low bending figure appeared; hands were outstretched, and finally it was announced that the spirit of Mrs. Flint's mother desired to communicate with her daughter. The lady drew near the curtain, and the fluttering hand of the spirit made desultory attempts to grasp the daughter's hand. "Is this my dear mother?" "Yes, I am your mother." Mrs. Flint seized the spirit hands and held them. A lawyer turned on the gas and Mrs. Huntoon was revealed struggling in the arms of the courageous lady. Spiritualism is fast becoming the stupidist humbug of the century.

Interesting experiments are being made at the Central Telegraph Bureau in Paris with a new apparatus for producing a fac simile of the writing and signature of the person sending a dispatch. The apparatus also produces, with great exactness, drawings of the most complicated description. The inventor is Mr. Jenoir. Some years ago similar trials were made with the invention of a Mr. Casselli, but the results were imperfect.

The old and close-fisted fellow in a class meeting rose up and said: "Brethern and sisters, for four and forty years I have been a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and I thank God my religion has never cost me a cent."

The Chicago "Young Men's Polite Debating Society" has declared, after eight nights' thoughtful discussion, that it is allowable to speak of the cotton crop in the presence of ladies.

The widest roof in the world is that of a railway station in St. Pancras, England. It is 240 feet wide. Other wide railway roofs in England measure 198 and 210 feet respectively.

CALIFORNIA'S BEST PRODUCTION.

The Great Cathartic and Regulator.

Purely a Vegetable Compound!

Harmless but Powerful!

MESSRS. WILLIAMS & CO.—GENTLEMEN: It is with pleasure I indorse your Yerba Buena Bitters. I have never found such instant and permanent relief as from the use of your most invaluable compound. I have been subjected to costiveness and a torpid liver for five years, and am now entirely cured, after using only two bottles of your Yerba Buena. I am certain that it was Yerba Buena that cured me of the palpitation of the heart. I am happy to state through the use of your Bitters I am a well man. All wishing to be convinced of the above, I will give you my residence: 209 Liedesdorff street, San Francisco. JOHN R. STEERE.

Messrs. H. Williams & Co.: Dear Sirs—As long as I can remember, I have been troubled with Pin Worms, and at times felt as if I was being devoured alive. Early in March, 1875, I was induced to use your Yerba Buena Bitters, and within One Month I was entirely cured. I have not been troubled with them since, and am satisfied that I am permanently cured. I think it is the best preparation for Constipation and Billious Troubles known.

A. B. HOWARD,
No. 12 Quincy street, San Francisco.

I take pleasure in recommending the Yerba Buena Bitters. I have used three bottles and found more relief from them than anything I have ever used. I had been troubled with Constipation of the Bowels, Torpid Liver and general debility for a long time, and found no relief until the Yerba Buena Bitters cured me.

S. BROOKS, Petaluma.

Seeking health on the Pacific Coast, my attention was called to Dr. Warren's Yerba Buena Bitters, and took some for headache, which cured me so perfectly that I bought a bottle and have not taken any other medicine since. It is a perfect cure for any derangement of the stomach or constipation, and I recommend it before any other medicine, as it leaves the system in a healthy state and no dieting is necessary. Please send your Bitters all over the world, for it will be a blessing to humanity beyond the power of words to express. I write you freely and from actual experience CYRUS CUMMINGS,
Late of Charlotte, Mich.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16.

MESSRS. EDITORS — The same old question is asked and the same old answer given, "Well, who is President?" "Indeed, I don't know," and that answer is likely to be a truthful one for some time to come.

Judging from the present appearances there is a strong possibility or rather what the lawyers call a "propenquia potentia" that before the thing is definitely settled there will be three new candidates in the field, making six in all. Hayes, Tilden and Cooper were the original candidates, but if the question as to which of them is elected remains in doubt after 12 o'clock P. M. or midnight of the 3d of March next, at which hour Gen. Grant's term expires, then the presiding officer of the Senate becomes President of the United States pro tem. Mr. Ferry is now the President of the Senate, being elected to that position upon the death of Vice President Wilson, but the Senate upon its assembling for the second session of the Forty-fourth Congress may go into another election. Some time since it was advocated that Mr. Anthony of Rhode Island should supercede Mr. Ferry, he (Mr. Anthony) being the oldest Senator, or rather having held the position of Senator longer than any other. And now the friends of Mr. Blaine are advocating his claims to the position. As I have before said it is more than probable that the presiding officer of the Senate may be called upon to act as President of the United States for some days, it may be weeks or perhaps months—so the question is between Hayes, Tilden, Cooper, Ferry, Anthony and Blaine. Who will be the inter- Rex (if such a term may be used in a Republic) is as much in doubt as is the question as to who will be the President elect for the next four years.

The committee appointed by the creditors of Gov. Shepherd, who assembled at his request to examine into his financial affairs, made their report yesterday evening. They state that his assets are over half a million above his liabilities. The proposition submitted to the creditors was that Mr. Shepherd should turn over to three Trustees his entire property except his interest in the firm of A. R. Shepherd & Co. Mr. Shepherd is to issue bonds in the sum of $100, or multiples thereof, to run five yeras at the rate of five per cent per annum after the first year, Mr. Shepherd to have full power to manage the estate.

The chief question of local interest is, what is to be the form of government advised by the special joint committee appointed for that purpose. Every man seems to think his own peculiar views on the subject the only correct ones, and the committee, having invited the citizens to express their opinions in the premises, have had advice ad nauseam from doctors, lawyers, merchants, bankers and manufacturers. And lastly a parcel of women, representing the National Woman Suffrage Association, have put in their appearance. Their object seems to be to advise a municipal form of government, with woman suffrage as one of its leading features.

In the United States Supreme Court yesterday counsel for Madison Doom, now in jail in Augusta county, Virginia, under a sentence of the United States District Court for a violation of the civil rights act of 1875, submitted a motion for leave to file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in his case, for the purpose of having it determined whether he is legally in custody. The offense charged is that he excluded one Annie Smith (colored) from the reception room of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad company in the city of Staunton, for reasons not applicable to persons of every race or color, and regardless of previous condition of servitude. The facts seem to be that the woman was drunk and disorderly, and becoming very offensive to the occupants of the room she was ejected, as any white man or woman would have been. For this she was advised to bring suit in United States District Court against Mr. Doom, and the Court, overlooking the real cause of her ejectment, adjudged it an infraction of the civil rights act.

The war cloud in Europe is assuming frightful proportions. The Czar proceeds as though he meant business, and cared but little what course the other powers will elect to pursue. England is thoroughly excited, and will of course fight in case Russia carries her pretensions too far. The Czar alone must decide the fearful issue of peace or war.

SAXON.

Love of Learning.

One great defect in our systems of school education is the lack of proper stimulus to the pupil. Abundant inducements are held out. The child daily hears of the value of education, is told how men get rich and happy by it, and how they are degraded and worthless without it. Ambition is appealed to and vanity is cultivated by reward, prizes and school honors, and sharp words and stinging lashes are added, to push the unwilling laggards forward up the hill of science. Considerable knowledge is imparted under this treatment. Pupils progress with perhaps a fair understanding of the branches necessary for the ordinary transactions of life; but how many leave school with a love of learning, a thirst to know more, a determination to go on improving? On the contrary, is it not to the average boy like closing a prison door behind him and emerging into liberty when he leaves the school room and enters the office or counting-house? In after years he may lament wasted opportunities, and as he discovers the commercial value of education, he may regret not having remained longer a pupil, that he may be better fitted for his work, but he has no special love for books, no aspirations for higher culture for its own sake.

This need not be. A child is naturally eager to learn. His ten thousand questions are the torment of an unappreciative and unskillful parent. If from the first he was taught how to find answers to his questions from observation and from books, and his curiosity was kept aroused and properly directed, instead of being persistently snubbed down, he would need no promise of "good marks" or medals or prizes to make him studious.

At school he is set at tasks in which he can have but little interest. What does he care whether the equator runs north and south or east and west; or what are the boundaries of Kamschatka; or who was the third King of the Egyptians? Let him begin work at a point where his interest is awakened, and he desires to know more of the subject; then lead him by short steps to enlarge his field of inquiry, and his faculties will be sharpened.

The actual sum of knowledge gained at school is as nothing compared with the value of a love of learning implanted, and a proper guidance given to the sources where information may be gained. Under such treatment it will soon matter little whether he remains in the school room or not. The springs have been set in motion which will not let him rest; a healthy appetite sharpened, which he will seek to gratify, and for which there are abundant supplies. Not the mere successful winner of prizes, who has ambitiously led his class, but the lover of learning becomes the leader of thought.

A Steamer's Experience in the Late Hurricane.

A letter to a New York paper from Key West, in detailing the experience of the United States war steamer Ossippee in the storm of the 19th and 20th of October, says the men getting about the decks to attend to their duties, were thrown violently from their feet, and, blinded by the salt spray, were obliged to go about groping their way as if in total darkness. They could only stick to their stations by the most desperate struggling against the hatches, gratings, doors, deck buckets, and many other articles that were being swept back and forth across the deck by the rushing of the water as the ship sailed and tossed. Breathing was difficult; the air taken into the lungs was so loaded with sea salt that it caused excessive irritation, producing violent coughing and vomiting. The suffering of the men was intense, especially among the firemen and coal-heavers, who were not only deprived of ventilation but were obliged to inhale the salt water steam produced by the seas rushing into the fire-room. It was then thought advisable to encourage the men by the use of stimulants. The surgeon found a sufficient quantity to give all hands, and sent it to the cabin for distribution. The dog, a splendid pointer, owned by the captain, exhibited the greatest dread at being left alone, and was only appeased when some one was petting him. The cats disappeared the morning before the storm and were not seen for five days afterward. The hens and turkeys, usually the most voracious and hungry and quarrelsome beasts on board, forgot their hunger and barely opened their eyes when food was thrown to them. Two birds (babos), a species of pelican, came on board while we were lying in the vortex. They must have been drawn down while attempting to fly over us. The parrot was the only thing on board that seemed to enjoy the surroundings.

The World's Age.

Mr. William Chambers, the veteran author and publisher of Chamber's Journal, contributes to that periodical a summary of some of the many views held by scientists as to the antiquity of the world. The Quarterly Review, and that most conservative of magazines, now admits that the ordinary interpretation of the date of the creation, about 6,000 years ago, is to be set aside as untenable and not only at variance with historic and archæological research, but with the substantial discoveries of geology. The reviewer quotes the opinion that it is impossible that the earth can have existed many millions of years, as the earth is cooling, if not rapidly, at such a rate as to make such an antiquity impossible; and again, there is reason to believe that the earth's rotation is not so rapid as formerly.

The question as to the date of creation must be considered to refer to our solar system alone. The nearest fixed star or sun outside of our system—possibly the center of a similar system—is too far off to enter into the question of the age of our sun and its planets and their satelites, being two hundred millions of miles away. Sir Charles Lyell gives the date of the Cambrian formation of rocks as at least two hundred and forty million years ago; while Mr. Darwin assigns to the world a much greater age even than this. Mr. Adams has essayed to calculate the retardation of the earth by friction of the tidal waves on the atmosphere; and in conjunction with Prof. Tait and Sir William Thompson, he allows twenty-two seconds per century as the time lost by slackened speed. Mr. Chambers concludes his article as follows: "We can only say that the theories propounded are eminently suggestive and nothing more. It is not remarkable that there should be differences of opinion among men of science concerning the dark and stupendous questions of the cosmogony of the world. All we deprecate, in the present state of human knowledge, is rash dogmatism, one way or another."

Nothing can be more surprising nor more delightful than the remarkable transparency of the water in the northern seas. As we glided over the surface, we could distinctly see the ground, which consists generally of white sand. The smallest objects became visible to the naked eye in places where the water was twenty to twenty-five fathoms deep. The ocean was calm; not a breeze ruffled its surface, and scarcely did the dip of my oars leave a ripple. I gazed with astonishment and delight at the submarine landscapes that lay beneath, as they passed slowly under my view. Wherever the bottom was sandy the smallest shell could be distinguished, however deep the water, which seemed to possess at once the power to magnifiy like the telescope, and of drawing near like the microscope.

Pursuing our even course, we came upon the rugged side of a mountain, whose base lay miles in the depths below, and, by a singular optical delusion, we seemed to be ascending the mountain. On reaching the summit, which appeared but a few feet beneath us, we could see the other side of the mountain, which was perpendicular, and from this point we seemed ready to be dashed into the yawning gulf below. Terror-struck, we stood still.

The stern glided over a flat tract of land, covered with forests and prairies, and animals unknown to man. I saw strangely shaped fishes flash by and glide into the woody groves, unconscious of what was above them. As we made headway, the fairy scene was concealed from our view by the dense waves of the ocean.

DON'T BE TOO SENSITIVE.—There are people—yes, many people—always looking out for slights. They cannot carry on the daily intercourse of the family without finding that some offense is designed. They are touchy as hair-triggers. If they meet an acquaintance who happens to be pre-occupied with business, they attribute his abstraction to something personal to themselves, and take umbrage accordingly. They lay on others the fruit of their irritatability. Indigestion makes them see impertinence in every one they come in contact with. Innocent persons, who never dreamed of giving offense, are astonished to find some unfortunate word, or momentary taciturnity, mistaken for an insult. To say the least, the habit is unfortunate. It is far wiser to take the more charitable view of our fellow-beings, and not suppose a slight was intended unless the neglect was open and direct. After all, too, life takes its hues in a great degree from the color of our minds. If we are frank and generous the world treats us kindly; if, on the contrary, we are suspicious, men learn to be cold and cautious toward us. Let a person get the reputation of being "touchy" and everybody is under restrain, and in this way the chances of an imaginary slight are vastly increased.

A BLACK HILLS correspondent says: The country so far developed would be good enough for about 2,000 men, but I presume there are now between 7,000 and 8,000 in the hills, and at least as many coming in and going out, principally Western men. Wages are generally $4 per day in dust, drifters get $6 and $7, but very few are employed; dust in trade goes for $20 per ounce, which assays at the mint from $17 50 to $19 92. Work is very scarce, and there are a great number of broken men here. Flour is selling from $8 to $12 per hundred, bacon 30 cents, coffee 40 cents, and potatoes at 12½ cents per pound. The latter are raised in the Black Hills.

SOUTH CAROLINA.—This little State is just now the center of general attention, not to say of great solicitude. The refusal of the Board of Canvassers to obey the mandates of the Supreme Court of the State making their functions purely ministerial, their arrest, imprisonment and fining in the sum of $1,500 each, the criminations and recriminations as to fraud, violence, excess of authority alleged against the Court, Board, Governor and the whole cabooodle, and above all that Hampton was declared defeated has stirred feeling throughout the State to a dangerous pitch, demagogues at home and abroad on both sides working might and main to make bad just as much worse as they possibly can. The culminating point was probably reached last Monday, at which time the Legislature was to meet for organization. It is thought an effort will be made either to forcibly prevent the certified Legislature from organizing, or to organize one in opposition. A heavy force of troops is in Columbia with orders to support Chamberlain, not as the Governor elect but as Governor by virtue of his previous election, the term of which does not expire for some months yet. If no outbreak occurs then to complicate matters it is not likely any serious trouble will ensue from any of these questions, since both parties evince a willingness to submit every practicable issue to the arbitrament of the Courts, and so long as that spirit prevails there is no great danger. As nearly everything that reaches us in reference to these affairs is colored with partisan bias it is neither pleasant nor advisable to pass judgment upon them now, or even to refer to some of the statements or phases. We will abide our time.

DISASTER AT SACRAMENTO.—A fearful disaster occurred at Sacramento on the night of the 18th, by which seven persons lost their lives and a large number were more or less seriously injured. An entertainment was being given in the Opera House, when the gallery and main floor suddenly gave way, with the result stated. Among the victims were two printers of the Record-Union—Billy Foster, of Carson, Nevada, and Frank Myers, of Iowa City, Iowa. Both were good boys. The lesson taught by the frightful disaster is that all municipalities should employ competent civil engineers to inspect and determine upon the safety of all public buildings of whatever kind or character, and that dangerous ones should be promptly condemned.

AFFAIRS IN EUROPE.—Affairs in Europe look very threatening. Russia and Turkey are both preparing for war on a gigantic scale. It is possible that Russia may limit her demands to such an extent, that while she will fully protect the Christians in Turkey, she will not add to her own territory, and thus threaten the rest of Europe. In case she acts, it said that she will have the support of most if not all of the other powers, and Turkey must succumb. If on the other hand the Russian people drive the Czar to a war of extension, it will arouse the entire Continent, and no one can predict the end.

SUICIDE OF J. C. HARKER.— The Borax Miner of November 18 gave the particulars of the suicide of J. C. Harker, a pioneer and well known miner of Eastern Nevada, and in the succeeding issue of the same paper we find the verdict of the Coroner's jury, to the effect that deceased came to his death by a pistol shot fired by his own hand on the 12th of November last.

FLORIDA.—The Board of Canvassers commenced to canvass the Florida vote last Tuesday. It is said the vote is certainly very close. Gov. Stearns emphatically denies that he ever proposed to arrogate to himself the right of canvassing the vote, about which so much has been said.

THE MODOC.—A correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle is going after the management of the Modoc mine with a sharp stick, and among other things makes the statement that it has cost that company $65,000 to produce $50,000—the which we don't believe.

PETER COOPER says: "I believe that both parties are led by men of patriotism, who would abide by the legal decision of their respective claims, and resort to no revolution or violence to rectify what they may consider injustice in that decision."

IT is asserted that the decision of the Supreme Court, and the mandatory phase in the Constitution that the votes shall be counted as cast, settles the question of either House to reject any vote.

THE ELECTORAL SYSTEM.

The present political agitations and complications, all due in a great measure to the Electoral College system of choosing a President, are inducing a great deal of inquiry as to its merits and demerits. The general conclusion seems to be that the latter far outweigh the former, and that in consequence the Constitution should be so amended as to do away with that system entirely, and substitute the direct popular vote. There is no doubt if such a change was subject to immediate action it would carry; as it is it is a work of time, and involves questions of such a nature which, when more fully understood, may deprive the proposition of a material portion of that support it would command at this crisis.

We do not know that this proposed amendment has been a party issue at any time, except that a large portion of those hitherto most strenously opposed to an abrogation of the Electoral College were to be found among Democrats. The grounds for their objection were, we believe, pretty well taken. We shall state the leading one presently, after noting how wonderfully circumstances sometimes alter cases. Among those now having the most to say in favor of the popular vote system are to be found the most ultra State's Rights people, the very foundation of the present system. The reason for their new attitude appears to be based on such extremely partisan grounds, and so inconsistent withal, as to excite contempt. There are a great many people in the Union to-day, besides those who voted for Mr. Tilden, who, in view of patent facts, truly regret that the choice of President at the late election had not then be subject to decision by the popular vote, though knowing that the man for whom they did vote, thereby became the undisputed President elect, since the popular vote is clearly in Tilden's favor. That sentiment prevails over all party considerations because of the ugly features of the present contest. It is by no means certain that the result would have been satisfactory; it is by no means a foregone conclusion that the present relative majorities would have been maintained, or so clearly marked as to be above dispute. We simply suggest to those journals who heretofore have stickled so for State's right, but now make such ado in favor of choosing the President by direct vote, that partisan zeal is leading them to overlook facts of possible importance. Some, if not all, of the papers of the class referred to claim that as Mr. Tilden has a large majority of the popular vote it clearly gives him a superior right to a decision in his favor, when it becomes such a question of doubt under the electoral system as at present. Perhaps it does; but if so the question of State rights becomes a thing of no moment. The framers of the Constitution adopted the electoral system with the avowed purpose of giving the smaller States a perfectly equal if not a larger proportional share in dictating governmental affairs than they could possibly have otherwise. But for this system, obnoxious, cumbersome and faulty as it may be, it might for instance be possible for New York, in choosing a President by popular vote, to override the wishes of every other State in the Union. This, of course, is assuming an extreme. In such a case thirty-eight out of the thirty-nine States might cast a majority vote in favor of one candidate, while the thirty-ninth State, if a large one, might set the expressed wish of all aside and name her own "favorite son" as the lucky man. Such an anti-democratic thing is not possible under the electoral system, but a President may be chosen by a minority vote of the States and still have a majority of the popular vote, which would be the case now if the electoral vote of either one of the disputed States is given to Mr. Tilden. It is worthy of mention, also, that a popular majority under the present electoral system gives no safe criterion as to what it might be under a different one. It is not reasonable to expect a full vote of the minority in any State where the voter knows before hand that his ballot counts for nothing toward shaping the grand result; there is no inducement for him to take any risks merely to give a useless expression oi his views. There are, say, ten States in the Union where for this reason nothing approaching a full minority vote can be expected. This would be vastly different were this system done away with and the direct, popular vote plan substituted. In that event a vote in the minority in one of these States would count just as much in favor of the aggregate result voted for as as if it was one of a majority vote in some other State. The one-sidedness of his own State would not in the least affect the value of his vote as regards the general result in all the States, and hence it is certain that a much fuller minority vote would be polled. The present old fogy system may need some modification or alteration, but to do so would not materially affect one way or the other that which Huxley styles "the despotism of universal suffrage."

TROUBLES OF THE POLITICIANS.

It is proving to be full as difficult a job to legally elect a President as it generally is to legally convict a rich manslayer; it is little else than a game of technicalities—sharp practice. One of the leading technicalities is to prove ineligibility of duly elected Electors. Here is a list of some of the alleged inelligibles:

One in Oregon on the Republican ticket; for being a Postmaster. Legal proceedings have been instituted to test the matter.

One in Vermont on the same ticket, and for the same offense. The Legislature has since passed an act to purge him of his disability.

One in Iowa on the same ticket again, but the offense being that he is or was a Commissioner of the United States.

Two in Connecticut on the Democratic side, both for the same offense as the Iowa man. It is said, however, that one of them—Ingersoll—had resigned long ago.

Six in the Southern States on the Democratic ticket whose political disabilities have not been removed; but in these cases names or places are not given.

We have here a total of eleven Electors, all fairly elected, three Republicans and eight Democrats, whose right to act is questioned. Who is to decide?

Is it to be the Courts of the States where the alleged ineligibility exists? or the executive officers who have the issuance of the certificates? or the Joint Convention of the two Houses of Congress? or the President of the Senate?

THE NEXT HOUSE.—The contest for the control of the next House of Representatives seems to have been as close as the Presidency. Officers of the House who have been figuring on the Congressional returns, report that according to returns received, 142 Republicans and 144 Democrats have been elected. Three districts in New Hampshire are yet to eleet, and two Republicans and one Democrat are expected. Four districts are in doubt—one in Louisiana, one in Missouri, and two in South Carolina. If these are divided equally between the two parties, the House will stand, Democrats 147, Republicans 146. Should Alexander H. Stephens be physically unable to occupy his seat, as is considered probable. it would leave just a tie.

ACCOUNTS from India are of the gloomiest description. The famine, together with the most terrible destruction caused by the recent cyclone, renders the condition of the survivors most pitiable. The authorities estimate the number of human beings destroyed by the tidal wave which swept over the islands from nine to twenty-five feet deep, at no less than 251,000. Their decaying bodies together with those of the legions of animals destroyed at the same time, is producing a stench quite as destructive to life as the famine.

A WASHINGTON dispatch of the 23d says it is understood that the President will discuss the questions growing out of the disputed elections in his annual message, and strongly in favor of accepting returns as certified to as final. The Republicans are taking this position, and many of the ablest Democrats admit it as unassailable.

TWEED is once more in his old quarters in Ludlow street jail, New York, broken in health and without hope. All special privileges are wholly denied him, and henceforth he is but a common felon.

THE republican spirit still lives in Spain. The arrest of nearly a score of Generals for complicity in the late conspiricy indicates that even the army—the bulwarks of royal power—is disaffected.

DICK COLLINS, convicted in the District Court of Stanislaus county of having in cold blood murdered a decrepid old man named Sheldon, at Hill's Ferry, was hung at Modesto on the 24th of last month.

IT is now understood that construction work in all the navy yards will be stopped in a few days. There is no money to pay the workmen, the appropriations having been cut down so much last session.

IT is reported that a compromise has been effected in the Edwards-Keating breach of promise case in San Francisco, the defendant paying plaintiff $10,000.

GOV. IRWIN has just received from the Federal Government the weights and measures comprising the standard of the metric system.

THE Nevada Senate is a tie. In the House the Republicans have a majority of 18, and therefore the same number on joint ballot.

A PARTY of twenty-five Englishmen propose to purchase a tract of land near Anaheim, San Bernardino county, on which to grow tobacco.

Current News Items.

Dr. A. J. Glover, Supervisor of Elections at Swan Quares, Hyde county, North Carolina, was murdered November 6th, while carrying the Republican tickets for distribution in that county. The tickets were never found.

☞ A full and complete settlement is earnestly desired with all patrons of THE INDEPENDENT, pro and con. Mr. H. I. Childs will continue to act and sign for the firm until such business is completed. CHALFANT & PARKER.

NEW BOOKS.—Hundreds of old Nevadaites throughout this region will be glad to know the fact that an active canvasser—Mr. I. N. Townsley—has secured the agency for Dan De Quille's great book, the "Big Bonanza," about which there has deservedly been much newspaper talk. The author's wide reputation as a humorous and most original writer is scarcely second to that of his old time friend and particular patron in this case—Mark Twain; indeed, as Dan was the original funny man of the noted pair, and has kept up a never-failing lick all the while, it is a question as to which belongs the palm of genius. The book is simply superb; while it rapidly ranges from "the grave to the gay," etc., and varies the literary entertainment in a most fascinating style, there is no losing of the central idea—a most perfect portrayal of Nevada life in all its true inwardness. In its peculiar line there is no American publication to compare it with, and De Quille's hosts of friends are rejoiced thereat.

THANKSGIVING.—Quite a number of people hereabouts did something in a private way to mark Thankgiving Day; but there was nothing in the way of "assembling in usual places of worship," or other public observance as recommended by the proclamations; never is here, for good reasons. Nevertheless, our columns are "short" this week, in good part chargable to our thanksgiving zeal and other unavoidable circumstances incidental to the recent change of proprietorship.

DEATH.—On Sunday evening last, at Aurora, occurred the death of W. H. Hall, a gentleman well known and universally respected throughout that region. He was a man of advanced age, having served in the Mexican war and being a pioneer of California and Nevada. For a long term the deceased held the position of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s agent and Treasurer of Esmeralda county. He had many warm friends, and his death is greatly deplored.

ATTORNEY AT LAW.—S. P. Moffat, Esq., who was last week admitted to practice in the District Court, enters into the law business as Deputy District Attorney and with P. W. Bennett. It is hardly necessary for us to speak of Mr. Moffat's legal acquirements and familiarity with law practice, for such fact is well known. See his card.

A QUEER COMPLAINT.—A correspondent at Benton alleges that at the boarding house of one ot the principal mines on Blind Spring Hill "the foreman has issued orders that the Chinamen should eat at the same table with white men, and if the white employés were not satisfied they (the whites) could get their time."

STILL AT WORK.—Messrs. Broder & Moffat still have a force of men at work on the Uncle Sam mine, Sylvania district, and will continue prospecting operations during the Winter. The developments so far, without being of a very important character, still point to the probability of an early starting up of the Log Spring furnace next season.

ANOTHER BREWERY.—The "Centennial" is the name of the new brewery recently established in Lone Pine by Messrs. Munzinger & Dodge; and, as will be noted by their advertisement in this issue, it is prepared to furnish any quanity of the best brewed beer to all its customers. Our Lokleitems can indorse it as to quality.

LIVERY STABLE.—Attention is called to the new "ad." of the Pioneer Livery Stable, Independence, conducted by Henry N. Giles, agent. The institution is the largest of the kind in the county, and is well prepared to carry on business to the perfect satisfaction of its patrons.

BALL AND SUPPER.—Co. D, at Camp Independence, are perfecting arrangements for a grand ball and supper, to be gfven at the Company quarters on Christmas night, for which invitations are being issued.

PROSPECTING.—Jim Morgan, the well-known Nevada mining expert, accompanied by a heavy San Francisco capitalist, has been taking a general look at some of the most prominent Inyo mines.

NEW YEAR RACES.—A half-mile race for a $50 saddle, free for all horses unknown to the turf heretofore, has been added to the programme of sport at the Taboose track on New Years.

THE "ALDINE" CHANGED.—Tom May has resumed business at the well known Aldine Saloon, Mr. Connelly retiring. Johnny Irwin continues in position as the solid mixer.

NEW QUARTERS.—Judge Snelling has fitted up a new office, one door south of his previous location, in the brick building where he may be found ready for business.

ELECTION.—At the next stated meeting of Inyo Lodge, No. 221, F. & A. M., will be held the annual election of officers.

District Court Calendar—November Term, 1876.

HON. THERON REED, JUDGE.

Since Friday of last week the following cases have been adjudicated and business transacted as specified:

Friday, Nov 24—W. J. C. Gill vs. N. N. Sayler and A. A. Riddle. Argument on motion for non-suit continued and closed by P. Reddy for defendants; motion overruled. Testimony taken; cause submitted and taken under advisement by the Court.

Rafael Cuervo et al vs. V. A. Gregg et al. This being an action brought to quiet title, and wherein the Hon. Theron Reed, Judge of the Sixteenth Judicial District, is a party defendant, and thereby rendering his jurisdiction of the said cause void, it was ordered that said cause be transferred for trial to the Seventeenth Judicial District, in the county of Los Angeles.

J. C. Morrison, Jr., vs. J. M. Horton. Plaintiff filed dismissal with Clerk, and Bennett, counsel for defendant, asked leave to withdraw defendant's answer from the Court files. Permission granted.

Harris & Rhine vs. the Silver Sprout Mining Company. This cause came on regularly for trial, Reddy & Conklin for plaintiffs and Bennett and Briggs for defendant. Witnesses examined and caused argued by counsel. Judgment rendered on Monday against defendant for the sum of $2,933 95, and interest amounting to $153 99 and costs. Thirty days time given for motion for new trial.

Monday, Nov. 27—R. Diaz vs. A. G. Boley. Judgment rendered against defendant for the sum of $737 59.

J. E. Graves and N. E. Graves vs. S. E. Martin and J. N. Martin. Moved by R. B. Snelling, counsel for defendant, to strike same from docket. Overruled by the Court.

Adjourned for term.

THE REX MONTIS.—Manager Holt of the Rex Montis started for the Bay last Monday, having suspended work on the mine for the Winter. He, however, hopes to perfect arrangements so as to get back here in about a month and go to work in reconstructing the old Silver Sprout mill, and making all possible preparations for active and extensive work on the mine next Summer. He intends by next Fall to have trails, buildings, tunnels, etc., at the mine in such a shape that weather thereafter will interpose no serious obstacles in getting out ore the year through. There are several items of detail concerning the Rex Montis mine, or series of mines rather, regarding their situation and the plans of working, together with what has already been accomplished, which we hope soon to present at length. For the present we can only say that it is a conceded fact that there is enough high grade ore uncovered in the Rex Montis alone to keep the mill running to its full capacity all of next Summer. Yet this is only one of several ledges in close proximity belonging to the same company which, so far as outward indications show, are even more valuable than is the Rex Montis itself. Their situation is such that a tunnel, foot for foot, will cut them all (and most likely in one compact ledge) over 2,000 feet deep. This tunnel, to be run in a soft, mineral-charged strata crosscutting the ledges, is part of the programme for next season. We have it on the say-so of men of judgment, and with no direct interest in the matter, that the Rex Montis bids extremely fair to be one of the largest and most valuable mines in this State. However, it lies at a tremendous altitude, and until tapped by the projected tunnel, will have to be worked at a great disadvantage. When Mr. Holt began work there late last Spring he had actually to cut down through 25 feet of snow to find the mouth of his tunnel, and the miners' cabin was in a similar situation. His energy and faith has accomplished wonders in the past few months, all the circumstances considered. He has opened a mine, made trails to an altitude of 10,000 feet, rebuilt a mill and taken out all told some $25,000 in bullion, all with a small force, limited means and in less than four months' time. That, in brief, is a plain statement of facts as they are, and is certainly grounds to expect very important results to this section in the near future.

OF POSSIBLE IMPORTANCE.—The Darwin News of last week chronicles the arrival at that point of Eagan, one of the chief mining experts in the employ of the Flood & O'Brien bonanza firm, on a visit of inspection to the Modoc mine, Lookout district. We but repeat the observations of all practical men who have ever examined the property in question by stating that the Modoc series are second to nothing on the coast except the bonanza, and the property is well worth the attention of the Mackey-Fair crowd. A purchase by them is possible, and in that event Inyo's days of prosperity, railroad and telegraph lines are within the near future.

ON THEIR RETURN.—The detachment from Co. D, 12th Infantry, from this Post, which was out with the Wheeler Expedition in Nevada, are now on their return, under command of Lieut. Birney. They bring the extensive mule train back to be wintered and prepared for a continuation of the explorations and surveys next season, appropriations permitting. These are the same animals kept here last Winter. The Expedition disbanded and the officers and scientists went to Washington some weeks ago.

LEAVE EXTENDED.—Capt. MacGowan, who had but two months' leave when he left here, has been granted an extension of two months; his hopes, however, of leave to cross the Atlantic on a visit to the old country were disappointed, as the Department declines to permit army officers to leave Uncle Sam's territory except on very rare occasions.

GONE BELOW.—District Attorney Bennett on Monday last for a business visit to San Francisco.

THAT INDIAN DIFFICULTY IN LONE PINE.—From facts gathered this week concerning the recent killing of an Indian by two Mexicans, Carlo and Medacean, an entirely different interpretation is given of the affair. It seems that the Indian killed was guilty of no mischief or offense other than lying dead drunk near the Mexican's house; that the Mexicans were seen to approach the prostrate and unconscious Indian, roll him over from facing the south to that of the north and shoot three bullets into his head—all entering near the ear and of course killing him instantly. After this affair a brother of the deceased Indian done what no Piute would dare attempt under any other circumsances, drunk or sober, he fired the Mexican's shanty and meeting one of the Mexicans afterward shot at him. The foregoing facts were elicted from Indian witnesses under oath and who were made to understand that they would be subjected to severe punishment unless they told the whole truth, etc. The two Mexicans had been in the habit of furnishing the Aborignenes with whisky and in no small quantities either. There are many phases of the affair presented us for consideration, much of which is contradictory. The thing required is a searching investigation by the Grand Jury.

CANVASSING.—Besides that of the "Big Bonanza" book, mentioned elsewhere, Mr. Townsley has the agency for many more publications, some of which are very attractive. Among the rest are Mark Twain's new-old "Sketches"—inimitably unique and funny; "All Round the World," a beautiful work portraying scenes and adventures in every land, being a complete geographical and historical encyclopædia, containing 1,000 illustrations. He has, also, a really valuable work of reference by Dan'l E. Shaffer, entitled "A hundred Thousand Facts," well worth the subscription price to any reading family. The great Exhibition is done up in a volume of 800 pages by the historian McCabe, entitled the "Illustrated History of the Centennial Exhibition," which may be considered official and a lasting work. "The Woman in Battle," by Mme. Velasquez, is a work giving the authoress' history as an officer, spy and soldier in the Confederate army. Mr. Townsley will in a few days begin soliciting orders at Darwin, and from thence work northward.

REDUCE THE PRICE.—When a printshop is compelled to purchase an average of three lamp chimneys a night for a week at a time to meet breakage alone, our merchants ought to consider the propriety of reducing the price to as near cost as possible, and we respectfully suggest that idea. For fragility and aptitude to break the infernal things constitute the very acme of human ingenuity. Until the malleable glass man comes around may the inventor of the present style have anathema.

BAD CONDITION OF THE ROADS.—Teamsters are complaining bitterly of the bad condition of the public road south of Winters' Station, east of the Big Lake. The teamsters will next week unite in publishing a statement of the facts, with a view of finding out who is responsible and of remedying the matter if possible.

GONE.—Indians of all kinds are just at present conspicuous for their absence from town. The lordly buck lets the wood-pile severely alone, and the mahala toils not over the wash-tub. It is rumored that the scourge of measles is making havoc amongst them, and that they have taken flight to the mountains.

RETURNED.—P. Reddy, Esq., after remaining in attendance thereon until final adjournment of the District Court, took his departure yesterday for Darwin. We hear that the Defiance mine and furnaces are being placed in complete order and readiness for the immediate resumption of work.

WEATHER.—For some weeks past the weather has been of the highest order, especially favorable for late Fall operations in the hights of Kearsarge. It is snappishly cold up there, however, and a sudden snow storm may compel the stamps to hang up at most any time.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 2,.....1876.

THE Philadelphia Bulletin says that a recent number of a ladies' magazine, in its "Housekeepers' Department" informs its readers that "Virginia housewives make the best of pickles." This is a horrible suggestion. We can never consent to any scheme which proposes to make the women of Virginia an article of food. It will be a sad day for this country when cannibalism becomes one of the common practices of the people. Such a dreadful species of diet may do for the benighted savages of Fiji, but we shall be shocked if it finds favor with Americans. This is apart from the quesiion of mere convenience, which is a serious one. No man would enjoy a lunch if he had to hold a piece of bread in one hand and a pickled Virginia housewife in the other. She would be too unwieldy.

THEY were giving "Pique" at a theatre, one Saturday afternoon. Two young ladies, living at a distance, having to take the train at an early hour, were obliged to leave before the representation was finished. Selecting, as they thought, a very quiet time in the play, were passing down the aisle when an actor suddenly appeared on the stage repeating a part of his role: "There they go, the only two women I ever loved. One I couldn't have, the other I can't get." Imagine the amusement of the audience and the astonishment of the young ladies.—Bingham Journal.

THERE is but one cure for corns, and that is: Take a lemon and roll it until it is soft; cut a thick slice and bind it on the corn on retiring at night. In the morning, if the corn is white and disintegrated, pull it out with your finger nails—never cut a corn. Sometimes several applications of the lemon slice will be necessary, but the corns are bound to succumb, and you can dance the next night if you like. After you remove the corns wear shoes that fit and are not too stiff in the soles.—Ex.

THE cracking of glue, which frequently occurs when glued objects become very dry or are subjected to the heat of the stove, it is said, may be prevented by the addition of chloride of calcium to the glue, which prevents its drying so completely as to become brittle. Glue thus treated will adhere to glass, metals, etc., and can be employed for affixing labels to bottles.

A WESTERN paper published a poem on the "Butis of Nacher." There were sixty-three stanzas. The paper contents itself with giving only the first, which is in these impressive words:

Go see what I have sawn,
Go feel what I have felt,
Walk in the fields at early dawn
And smell what I have smelt.

"IT'S all for the best," remarked Blinks, as he paid for the hat he had lost on a bet. "Nay," interposed the lucky man, "'tis all for the better."

THERE is a man in town just now who is so short that whenever he has a pain he is not certain whether it is the headache or only his corns.

Yerba Buena Bitters.

The Great Cathartic and Regulator.

Purely a Vegetable Compound!

Harmless but Powerful!

MESSRS. WILLIAMS & CO.—GENTLEMEN: It is with pleasure I indorse your YERBA BUENA BITTERS. I have never found such instant and permanent relief as from the use of your most invaluable compound. I have been subjected to costiveness and a torpid liver for five years, and am now entirely cured, after using only two bottles of your YERBA BUENA. I am certain that it was YERBA BUENA that cured me of the palpitation of the heart. I am happy to state through the use of your BITTERS I am a well man. All wishing to be convinced of the above, I will give you my residence: 209 Liedesdorff street, San Francisco. JOHN R. STEERS.

MESSRS. H. WILLIAMS & CO.: Dear Sirs—As long as I can remember, I have been troubled with Pin Worms, and at times felt as if I was being devoured alive. Early in March, 1875, I was induced to use your YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and within One Month I was entirely cured. I have not been troubled with them since, and am satisfied that I am PERMANENTLY cured. I think it is the best preparation for Constipation and Billious Troubles known.

A. B. HOWARD,
No. 12 Quincy street, San Francisco.

I take pleasure in recommending the YERBA BUENA BITTERS. I have used three bottles and found more relief from them than anything I have ever used. I had been troubled with Constipation of the Bowels, Torpid Liver and general debility for a long time, and found no relief until the YERBA BUENA BITTERS cured me.

S. BROOKS, Petaluma.

Seeking health on the Pacific Coast, my attention was called to Dr. Warren's YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and took some for headache, which cured me so perfectly that I bought a bottle and have not taken any other medicine since. It is a perfect cure for any derangement of the stomach or constipation, and I recommend it before any other medicine, as it leaves the system in a healthy state and no dieting is necessary. Please send your Bitters all over the world, for it will be a blessing to humanity beyond the power of words to express. I write you freely and from actual experience CYRUS CMMMINGS,
Late of Charlotte, Mich.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 23.

MESSRS. EDITORS—It is considered very bad taste ever to talk about the weather until you have exhausted every other agreeable topic, but it affords such an easy way for opening conversation or commencing a letter, that I cannot help flying in the face of a fixed conventionality, and introducing the topic if only for an instant. I shall only go so far on this occasion as to say that yesterday was like midsummer and today is like midwinter, making the doctors look gay and festive in bright anticipation of a splendid harvest.

The feverish excitement in regard to the election appears to have in a great measure subsided, and both parties are patiently awaiting the result. As the election will now turn upon points not for a moment contemplated by betting men when the bets were made on the Presidential election, the privilege of withdrawing them was yesterday accorded by a prominent stakeholder in New York, and many were withdrawn by the mutual consent of the parties making them.

The Philadelphia Ledger says: "The many foolish people who bet money on the election are getting more and more uneasy about the result. As there is no law to enforce their claims should there be any default on the part of the stakeholders, a great many contingencies may arise to almost indefinitely delay the return of the $1,500,000 which is supposed to be locked up in this way. There is seme talk of asking the intervention of the District Attorney, but betting in the State is an illegal practice, so he is powerless to act in the premises." Among all the bets, banters, wagers or whatever they may be called, perhaps the most ridiculous is the one made by a couple of frolicsome damsels of Lansingburg, New York. One is strongly in favor of Tilden, the other an admirer of Hayes. They are both ladies of the first respectability. One of them solemnly pledges herself to the other that if Tilden is elected to walk in puris naturalibus to Rensselaer Park gate, and the other pledges herself to do the same if Hayes is elected. The boys are anxiously waiting for the event to come off. More's history informs us that it once occurred in England, at a time when the barons were all powerful and held the lives of their vassals in their own hands, that the inhabitants of a certain hamlet or village (the name I have forgotten) [Coventry], having offended the baron he determined to punish them severely. But, his wife, Lady Godiva, interposed in their behalf; and he, with that rude levity then practiced, told her that if she would ride in a nude condition through the town he would pardon the inhabitants. She accepted the conditions, and having proclaimed the hour at which she intended to perform the task, she desired that all the inhabitants should keep within their houses, and have all doors and windows closed. This request was faithfully complied with by all the inhabitants except one man who could not resist the temptation to look upon the lovely woman in the performance of her humane pilgrimage. He hid behind a hedge for the purpose of seeing her, and lost his eyes for his temerity; her husband, having heard of his exploits, immediately had his eyes put out. But this is a free country, and I hope the New York girls will have a large and attentive audience.

An additional detachment of U. S. troops, comprising Battery I, Second Artillery, arrived here yesterday. They are quartered at the Arsenal. There are now some twelve or fifteen hundred men stationed here. What it means, if it means anything, is not generally known. The Baltimore Gazette remarks; "The troops in and around Washington will not exceed fifteen hundred men. They are commanded by Gen. Hancock, who is under the orders of Gen. Sherman. We think the Bird of Freedom is not in imminent peril when these two officers are in command."

Speaking of the Bird of Freedom—there is a large eagle perched beside the flagstaff on top of the American Hotel. Yesterday he broke his fetters and hopped down into the street, at the feet of S. S. Cox and a gentleman with whom he was conversing. "That bird looks healthy," said the gentleman. "No, no," said Sunset, "he looks weak; he wants some Democratic food."

The U. S. steamer Franklin, with Tweed on board, was spoken by the steamship Gulf Stream on the evening of the 22d instant. All well aboard the Franklin, and they wanted to know who was President. Of course the captain of the Gulf Stream did not feel at liberty to divulge so profound a secret, so he gently whispered through the breeze and across the seas that U. S. Grant still occupied the chair. The captain of the Gulf Stream says the Franklin might have been here long ago.

SAXON.

One Majority.

Romualdo Pacheco, from present appearances, is elected to Congress from his district by a majority of one. If this majority shall be confirmed by the official count, it will be the third time that Pacheco's political fortune has stumbled upon the identical figure. In 1869 he was elected to the State Senate, his seat being contested by P. W. Murphy. James W. Hawkins was sent down to San Luis Obispo county to investigate an alleged irregularity in a certain precinct. He came back to Sacramento with a report of the returns, which, if rejected, would elect Mr. Murphy. Mr. Pacheco, in the meantime, kept his seat. The Senate was largely Democratic. A vigorous struggle was carried on between the contestants. The votes in the controversy were said to number eight. The matter was laid over from time to time, until one morning Senator Banvard, of Placer, a Democrat, rose in his place and stated that he had carefully examined and re-examined the returns, and that the illegal votes, if any, were seven and not eight. Senator Hager, of San Francisco, also a Democrat, said there was the turning point in the premises. Senator Sanders (Democrat), from this city, sided with Senator Hager. A postponement of the case for one week was the result of a general argument on the question. Excitement concerning the interesting controversy ran quite high at the Capital. Mr. Pacheco had said, in his seat, that he was a firm Republican, and if his Democratic associates were convinced that he was not fairly elected, he could not blame them for giving the place to the contestant. When the special order came up, a committee reported that Mr. Pacheco was elected by one vote. Another postponement of the matter for a week was effected. Then the final vote on the subject was taken. There was a full Senate—forty members. Mr. Pacheco, in a few cheerful remarks, delivered as though anticipating defeat, declined to vote. The vote stood—Pacheco 20, Murphy 19. It would be somewhat of a coincidence if he should now be admitted to a seat in Congress by a Democratic House of Representatives, on the strength of a popular majority of one.—San Francisco Bulletin, Nov. 27.

A Cure for Diptheria.

We find the following floating around and print it because we know there is a deal of truth in it: A small quantity of either sulphate of iron, tannin, or chlorate of potash, put dry upon the tongue, and allowed to dissolve there, once in every hour, have all been found to be most efficient remedies in the early stages of diptheria. This terrible disease appears under three varieties or forms. First, there is fever, severe pains in the back, bones and limbs, and very great prostration. There may be no soreness of the throat, but, on examining it, small white spects will be noticed on the tonsils, but few or none on the rest of the throat. These cases will recover under any and every variety of treatment in from four to six days. The great but false reputation of many remedies and physicians is based upon the necessarily favorable results of these cases. Second, large patches of false membrane will be observed, both on the tonsils and the throat, but the glands of the neck do not become swollen. The majority of these cases will also recover under very simple treatment, unless the disease extends down the windpipe, which it rarely does. Third, malignant diptheria, with swelling of the glands of the neck under the jaw; profuse and often offensive exudations in the mouth and throat; more or less discharge from the nostrils. Chlorate of potash is a disinfectant as well as a curative remedy, and if given pure and dry upon the tongue every hour, night and day, will rarely disappoint the practitioner.—San Jose Herald.

THE CHILD MUST OBEY.—It is a fixed rule under all circumstances that the child must learn to obey. Obedience is the first step in education. The child must be submissive to a higher will and a matured knowledge. By degrees he will soon find out the reason why. Take heed, however, that you do not forbid or command anything, if you cannot or will not strictly and inflexibly enforce obedience; otherwise, you introduce a laxity of principle into your action, which nothing can retrieve. Never give a command or a prohibition except from your determined purpose or your matured judgment.

THE BATTLE-FIELD.—No man who has experienced the horrors of war can truthfully assert that he felt no fear during an engagement. A battle is a veritable hell upon earth; not to be in serious apprehension while it lasts is to be either drunk, crazy or insensible. The highest type of bravery is that of the man who realizes the full extent of his peril, yet sticks resolutely to his duty. It was my experience, and that of all those about me, repeated a dozen times over, that shell firing is not nearly so demoralizing as that of musketry. It is not so often that shells are thrown so far that their fragments scatter death and wounds, and that their loud humming overhead does not cause that nervous tingling that always follows the zip of the rifle bullet. The peculiar cutting of the air made by half a dozen of these at once is apt to give the soldier the idea that the whole air is filled with them, and that he is certain to be struck by one of them. The first sensation on being struck by a bullet, is a stunned, numbed feeling, which for a long time overcomes the pain of the wound. Soldiers have frequently been prostrated by spent balls. A curious effect of shell wounds is that they do not bleed; the hot fragments sear the torn blood vessels and stop the effusion. A minnie ball, extracted from the human body, presents a remarkable sight. I have seen them where the resistance of the flesh had turned back the pointed end on all sides with such regularity that the ball resembled a saucer or flower.

TO DISTINGUISH BETWEEN COTTON AND WOOL IN FABRICS.—Ravel out the suspected cotton fiber from the wool and apply flame. The cotton will burn with a flash, the wool will curl up, carbonize, and emit a burnt, disagreeable smell. Even to the naked eye the cotton is noticeably different from the filaments of wool, and under the magnifier this difference comes out strongly. The cotton is a flattened, more or less twisted band, having a very striking resemblance to hair, which, in reality, it is; since, in the condition of elongated cells, it lines the inner surface of the pod. The wool may be recognized at once by the zig zag transverse markings on its fibres. The surface of wool is covered with these furrowed and twisted fine cross lines, of which there are 2,000 to 4,000 in an inch. On this structure depends its felting property. Finally, a simple and very striking chemical test may be applied. The mixed goods are unraveled, a little of the cotton fiber put into a dish and the woolen into another, and a drop of strong nitric acid added. The cotton will be little or not at all affected; the wool, on the contrary, will be changed to a bright yellow. The color is due to the development of a picrate.

WEDDINGS IN BORNEO.—On the wedding day the bride and bridegroom are brought from opposite ends of the village to the spot where the ceremony is to be performed. They are made to sit on two bars of iron, that blessings as lasting, and health may attend the pair. A cigar and betel leaf, prepared with the areca nut, are next put into the hands of the bride and bridegroom. One of the priests then waves two fowls over the heads of the couple, and, in a long address to the Supreme Being, calls down blessings upon the pair, and implores that peace and happiness may attend the union. After the heads of the affianced have been knocked against each other four times, the bridegroom puts the prepared siri leaf and cigar into the mouth of the bride, while she does the same to him, whom she thus acknowledges as her husband.

POWERFUL IRONCLADS.—The Pall Mall Gazette, in comparing the most formidable of the Russian ironclads, the Peter the Great, with the British Dreadnaught, says that if the former can average twelve knots her designers may think themselves lucky. The Devastation steamed from Malta to Smyrna in 48 hours, at the rate of 14¼ knots an hour; in point of armor and thickness of armor plate the vessels are nearly alike, each carrying four 35-ton guns. The Thunderer is more powerfully armed with two 38 and two 35-ton guns, and would be still more formidable. The Dreadnaught is larger than the Peter the Great, carries four 38-ton guns, is faster than either of the others, and probably the most dangerous ironclad afloat at the present time.

HARD TIMES.—The cause of hard times I have not now time nor space to detail, but the remedy is short and plain; it is this: Read, inform yourself; there is nothing like it; knowledge is power; it brings money, influence, place, everything; corrects evil, hard times; crushes errors, humbugs, monopolies; reduces taxation and pays the national debt. Read your agricultural and local paper, study political economy, know how your government is managed, study finances, religion, commerce, and make yourselves and your sons well-informed reading men, and all will be right yet.—A. M. Marbury, in Rural Sun.

NICE FROSTING.—The whites of two eggs, five large teaspoonfuls of powdered sugar, and one teaspoonful of extract of lemon; beat well together and spread on the pie; set it in the oven till nicely browned.

THE Iowa State Register says a farmer came to town with a load of corn, accompanied by his good wife, who brought two dozen chickens. The chickens sold for more than the corn.

THE NEWS.

Our latest dates are to the 6th, received this morning, and too late for more than a brief reference to the leading points.

The House elected Randall for Speaker.

The President's message was read to both Houses. Much surprise and disappointment is felt that it no more than touches upon the election troubles.

By a strict party vote, the Speaker voting to give the requisite two-thirds, the House voted to appoint a Committee of nine to investigate the Southern election matter; the Speaker appointed six Democrats and three Republicans.

Two Legislatures are in session in South Carolina. The Senate, after refusing for some sime to co-operate with either body, on the night of the 5th met with the Republican branch, and canvassed the vote, throwing out Laurens and Edgefield counties; this left Chamberlain with 3,200 majority. The inauguration was to take place on the 6th. A bloody time is apprehended. There is no contest as to the electoral vote, which goes for Hayes without dispute.

Louisiana is officially declared for Hayes by nearly 4,000.

The Republican Electors of Alabama were to meet and cast the vote of the State for Hayes, on the ground that the election had been carried against them by wholesale fraud and intimidation, and to establish claims by which to have the vote of the State thrown out.

Great excitement prevails in Oregon in the expectation that Gov. Grover would refuse a certificate to Watts, the Republican Elector, and give it to Cronin, Democrat, who received the next highest vote.

Russia is marching 150,000 men to the Danube, and war is considered as certain to follow.

Gen. Diaz has occupied the city of Mexico, and Lerdo and his Ministers have fled westward.

ECONOMICAL.—The new State of Colorado starts out on a very economical basis; so much so, indeed, that if the pending bill to fix salaries of State officers becomes the law, their pay will be so small some of them no doubt will feel obliged to steal considerably in order to maintain the proper dignity of their high positions. The Governor is to have $3,000; Lieut. Governor $600; Secretary of State $2,000; Auditor, Treasurer and Superintendent of Public Instruction, $1,200; Attorney General, $1,000; Supreme Court Judges, $3,600; District Judges, $3,000.

THE NEW YORK Post, discussing the situation remarks: It is not a sectional dispute, and if we went to war we should be obliged to bombard each others' houses across the streets, and fire our pistols over our dining tables. That settles the question of war. It would be altogether too promiscuous, and could only end like the battle of the Kilkenny cats.

NEW JERSEY presents a curious example of how nearly political parties are divided at this time. In the next Legislature the Democrats will have a majority of one on joint ballot, the Assembly being a tie. In this emergency the Democrats are willing to take the Speakership and the Committees, and give the Clerkship and subordinate offices to the Republicans.

IT is pretty certain there will not be much difference in the strength of the Lower House of the next Congress. It has been stated on good authority that the Republicans would probably have one or more majority. The New York Herald, on the contrary, thinks the Democrats will have a majority ranging from five to fifteen.

"BULLDOSE."—The original meaning of the above term is a hundred stripes on the bare back. This liberal allowance was called a "bull's dose," as it certainly ought to be. This was gradually corrupted into "bulldoze," and is now about synonymous with Ku-Klux.

THE SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE.—The value of the Chronicle as a news medium was never more generally appreciated in this region than at this time. It is accorded the highest place in public esteem, and deservedly so.

IT is reported that President Grant in his forthcoming message will recommend a change in the electoral system.

A NEW morning paper has just been started in Washington with Montgomery Blair as editor.

OUR SECTION.

Most everybody throughout this section has grounds to complain of hard times, or, more correctly speaking, of the scarcity of money; except in that way there is no such thing as "hard times" anywhere in this region, such as is understood by that term elsewhere in the world where it means suffering for the lack of food, raiment and shelter; the complaints here spoken of have no such foundation as that. Cash is scarce; a good many who hoped to have a few dollars above current requirements to jingle in their pockets now see they will have to put up with brass buttons, keys and such, just as usual; others again find they will have to forego contemplated building or other improvements, schemes of pleasure, etc., out of the usual run, but practicable if money was not quite so tight; then we have some who see no way out of their own financial straits short of distress to themselves or their debtors. These latter are the only ones who have much real cause to complain of hard times. But it is noticeable that we have none of that despondent spirit indicating a belief that the country is or can be a failure; on the contrary, we will venture to say, the older residents of the county never felt near as confident of a permanently bright future for it as they do now, or better satisfied with it as a permanent abiding place.

Until quite recently but few if any of the citizens of Owens River Valley made locations in it with any other view than to tarry but a few years at the most, "make a little raise," and go elsewhere to build up a home. In their early struggles in that hope, and sole object with most of them, they had to struggle against dangers, absolute want, and innumerable deprivations, such as few pioneers elsewhere in this State ever had to contend against. The most of them came here only to retrieve broken fortunes, and in strong faith of being able to do it and get out of the "miserable country" in a very short time. In those days they had some "hard times" worth speaking about, but not always because coin was scarce, that is, not to be had in small quantites. Aside from the substantial realities to produce hard times, there was one of sentiment which, no doubt, did more than all the rest to unstring nerves and paralyze efforts, and thus magnify the real. That was the constantly recurring disappointment about the "raise" with which to quit the country pursuant to their original design; failing short of their hopes in that particular, ordinary success for a year's operations was not appreciated nor sufficient to reconcile them to the distasteful necessity of planning for a permanent stay, and especially as one mining failure after another had created serious doubts in regard to the final outcome of that interest (upon which every other depended), greatly aggravating the situation, and enhancing the unsettled feeling and desire to get away. As a natural consequence there was much less effort than there otherwise would have been toward building up permanent homes and institutions. The difference between financial hard times and disappointments then and now, is, that then it was felt to be something affecting a lifetime, while now as only an incident of the present, and just such as may inconvenience and temporarily hamper the most prosperous community in the world.

Referring more particularly to our agricultural population, we doubt if any farming community in this State has been as prosperous, all considered, or has as much to hope for in the future as this of "Owens River Valley." It is also an undoubted fact that this latter fact is just beginning to be generally and fairly appreciated, and to shape plans of all classes accordingly. We shall defer for the present any enumeration of the present and prospective points of advantage of which our county can boast over almost any other to encourage all to go to work with other than mere temporary views. Neither shall we stop to inquire into the various causes which, when everybody has prospered fairly, yet leave room to complain of hard times. It is enough to add on that point that the fixed conviction of a bright future disposes all to view the unpleasant part philosophically, and as purely incidental, instead of with the bitterness of feeling similar conditions produced upon the unsettled settler when such things portended an entire change of location and plans. Our county has passed its chrysalis condition; by far the larger portion of its older settlers if not all no longer find it necessary to devote their whole energies solely to the bread and butter problem, as in the days of "taboose and pumpkin straight," and now it is about time to at least contemplate the propriety of doing something to put us a step ahead of a mere border settlement with an uncertain future. This applies to enterprises both public and private, in relation to which we shall at times have some suggestions to offer. We may add that THE INDEPENDENT was started, has been and will be conducted with the sole idea of the permanency of the country and itself.

WIGGINTON AND PACHECO.

It seems that Mr. Wigginton has fully resolved to contest Mr. Pacheco's election, since the latter is shown to have secured his claim by only one vote. THE INDEPENDENT has not the slightest partizan bias in the matter now; in fact, it was rather predisposed in Mr. Wigginton's favor, since during his Congressional term he accomplished considerable to our local benefit. Nevertheless, in view of facts so far presented, we have no sympathy in his movements for a contest. In the first place it does not look well for him to strain any point to secure a certificate of election in the face of the fact that a very large number (1,100) of his own party refused to support him, not because they loved his opponent more but himself less. Second, his grounds of contest are so purely technical as to lead to the belief that if he would take this advantage for his own aggrandizement he would only limit his efforts for anything that might offer hereafter simply by the cold, abstract letter of the law—and when that is the only guide honesty and conscience too often have to take a back seat. Third, he as a probable future candidate for public favor cannot afford to accept, much less to contend for such a temporary and questionable advantage.

So far his only tenable grounds for carrying the contest into the House of Representatives are as follows: A precinct in Monterey county gave him (Mr. Wigginton) an actual majority of 27. The Board of Supervisors (which, by the way, was Republican) through some clerical error certified the vote to be 29, which, if correct, would have given him the election by one vote. In making up the returns to send to the Secretary of State the County Clerk observed the patent fact that this figure did not correspond with the poll lists of the precinct. He called the attention of a member of the Board of Supervieors who happened to be present to the obvious fact, and at the suggestion of the latter as an individual, counted the tally and substituted the figures of 27, representing the actual vote, in place of the 29 certified to by the Board. Now, while the Clerk assumed an authority beyond his rights, if this circumstance gives Mr. Wigginton his election he wins it by two votes which he never received and is not entitled to. This is making too nice a point to meet the approbation of any honest man not wholly blinded by the mischievous and false doctrine that "everything is fair in love, war and politics." Secretary of State Beck has not yet issued cartificates to any of the Congressmen elect, therefore his refusal to give one to Pacheco is not special. He, however, says that unless the Monterey Clerk is sustained in law for correcting the returns, and they are returned to him recounted so as to correspond with the Supervisors' certificate, he will be compelled to prepare a certificate for Wigginton, and let Pacheco contest the matter before the House of Representatives. This, no doubt, would be his plain duty, as he has no right to go beyond the certified returns submitted to him. Gov. Irwin does not seem to justify Mr. Wigginton's efforts to seeure his election in this particular way. We will simply repeat that we do not think Mr. Wigginton can afford to take his seat on such conditions.

CLOSE ELECTIONS.

This is not the first time there has been a close election and acrimonious fight in choosing a President in this country. John Adams had a majority of only three over Thomas Jefferson in 1797. At the next election Jefferson beat Adams, but only by eight votes. At the next election Jefferson and Burr had an equal number of votes, and the former was finally elected by the House on the thirty-sixth ballot. In 1825 John C. Calhoun was chosen Vice President, but there was no choice for President, the votes being divided between John Quincy Adams, Andrew Jackson and William H. Crawford. The first of these was elected by the House. In 1836 a change of 3,000 votes in Pennsylvania would have defeated Van Buren. The vote of New York elected Polk in 1844, and his plurality in that State was little more than 5,000. A change of nineteen electoral votes would have elected Cass instead of Taylor in 1848.

THE Democratic members of the South Carolina Legislature say they do not intend to attack the returns for Presidential Electors, but will not allow Hampton to be counted out.

DURING the week ending on the 26th ultimo, the product of the Northern Belle mine was 558 tons of ore, and 700 tons crushed at the mills, yielding $42,000.

THE EUREKA Sentinel has just entered upon its twelfth volume. It is a paper for which we have a high regard, and hope its shadow may never grow less.

SILVER.—Silver was quoted in London on the 1st at 55½ pence per ounce. This is equivalent to one dollar and twenty-one cents American coin.

PIUTE ADRIFT.

CHAPTER XIII—PIUTE INTERVIEWS A PENOBSCOT.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Whilst quietly sitting the other day at a hotel near the Centennial grounds, waiting for hogadie, a stalwart colored gentleman entered, and had for sale a variety of fancy wooden ware. He was a puzzler for the boys. Some thought that he was rather a queer looking nigger—couldn't see the curly, kinky, wool characteristic of the black man. Others took him to be a Spaniard or an Egyptian, while a few pronounced him to be a smooth-haired mulatto. However, Piute couldn't be thus fooled, but recognized in the stranger's vernacular and strongly marked features that he was, like himself, a noble red man of the forest. How Piute's heart beat with joy! Being in a strange land, 3,500 miles away from home and the dear ones he fondly loved—how happy he felt to meet at the Centennial, endeavoring to make money and cope in ingenuity and skill with the pale-face, a brother redskin. Noble ambition.

Piute, being anxious to have a chat with Mr. Lo concerning Sitting Bull, John Bull and other bulls and braves of "ye olden time," etc., finally managed to gently corral and snugly nail him to the counter with a glass of nice fresh lager, which appeared to do his capacious stomach heap good. The following facts were then elicited:

His name, he said, was Joseph M. Soccalexis, and he lived on the Penobscot River, Maine. Mr. Soccalexis is quite intelligent and communicative. He stated that there were about 2,200 Indians, comprising three tribes, the Penobscot, San Francis and Pahzamahquoedahs. They still continue to speak their own dialects, and adhere to many of their old habits and customs. However, they live in comfortable houses, and earn a good livelihood by farming, lumbering, fishing, etc. They have school houses, churches and other institutions, and Mr. S. thinks that they are prospering and advancing rapidly. They are represented in the Maine Legislature by one of their own number. Mr. Soccalexis had served two years in the Legislature, and showed his papers to that effect. He was anxious to know if the "Indians of California were very bad." He was much pleased when informed that they were peaceable, and many of them industrious and ambitious. "Ah," said he, "the Indians are so ignorant on their first acquaintance with the whites; they think they are to be plundered and killed and nothing else. After a little intimacy the Indian perceives the superiority and good intentions of the white man—his energy and inventive genius, and ability to subdue and cultivate our wild regions. What little improvements and progression we would have made had not the whites possessed the land. Thousands of us, Indians, now concede that it is folly to oppose the march of civilization—the white man is omnipotent." Mr. S. expressed a desire to visit the Pacific Coast—had heard, he said, of the delightful climate and the wonderful fertility of the soil. "But," he continued, "it would require more money than I have, and, another thing, my wife would not leave Old Town, Maine." He was informed that Indians are allowed to ride free on the Pacific railroads. "Ah, indeed!" he exclaimed, "I will inform my people of the Pacific railroad companies' generosity." The honorable gentleman was further informed that probably a synopsis of the "interview" would be published in a California newspaper which was frequently read by Piute Indians. "Ah, indeed! wouldn't somebody have the kindness to send me a copy?" "Very likely the publishers will," was the response. "Many thanks; this is my address:

"HON JOSEPH M. SOCCALEXIS, Old Town, Maine."

LO, THE POOR INDIAN! AGAIN.

Last Sunday evening, at the Presbyterian Church, Wilkesbarre; Pa., an Indian by the name of Rev. John D. Bemo discoursed to a large audience. He has been laboring for the last thirty years among his own people in the Indian Territory. Mr. Bemo is a son of a sister of the great chief Osceola, of the Seminoles, who some thirty-five years ago fought and baffled the United States army in the Florida swamps for a long time. Osceola was an orator as well as a brave. After his capture he said to Col. Therborne: "My people may be compelled by the power of the pale-faces to make for themselves new homes among the Chalaque and Chokta beyond the great river, but the spirit of Osceola will linger among the everglades of his own Florida, where lie buried the bones of his fathers for a hundred generations, and his voice will be heard upon the sighing pine trees that grow upon the hummocks forever."

The discourse of the Rev. Mr. Bemo did not partake of any lofty flights of eloquence or of the poetical figures of Indian oratory, but was a plain narrative, detailing facts of the manners and customs of the people, with some statistics showing their condition and prospects. He thinks the Indians may all be brought within the civilizing influence of the gospel if the proper means are employed. He does not regard bullets as the most harmonizing messenger to be sent among them. The object of his visit here is to raise funds to educate a son for the ministry. His people are poor and cannot well afford to pay the expense, hence he makes an appeal "to the friends of Christ and the poor Indians, to sustain him in his efforts for the spread of the gospel that has done so much for him and his tribe."

CHAPTER XIV—A RAMBLE UP THE WYOMING VALLEY, ETC.

Piute has spent a few weeks in the farming and coal mining regions of northern Pennsylvania, and was greatly astonished at the vast improvements made during the last fifteen years.

The historical Wyoming Valley, with the noble Susquehanna River flowing through its entire length, is grand and picturesque. The soil of this fine valley is considered prolific by those who have never trod on Western soil, but those who have seen the deep, rich, fertile soil of the great prairies would not bestow undue praise—think it "spotted" and rather shallow in places, requiring heavy manuring and scientific farming in order to make it "pay." Our "slouchy," extravagant style of farming, customary in Owens Valley and prevalent, more or less, in every new country, would be severely ridiculed in these localities. Order, system and economy characterizes these prosperous Eastern farmers. The soil of Wyoming Valley has been cultivated for over a century. Grandfathers and great grandfathers of some of the present owners tilled its soil and fought the Indians; hence the present occupants are, or should be, well versed in its agriculture.

Farmers complain that the seasons of '76 have not been favorable for crops. The Summer was an unusually dry one, and light crops of grain in many places were the result. Fair rates are realized. Retail prices are as follows: Flour from $7 to $8 50 per barrel; feed $1 35 per 100 pounds; potatoes $1 to $1 20 per bushel; butter 35 cents per pound; eggs 35 cents per dozen; meat from 12 to 18 cents per pound, and everything eatable correspondingly high. Land is also high, the price asked ranging from $500 to $1,000 per acre, which struck Piute as being enormous. He thinks that he has seen Indian ranches on Bishop Creek and other localities in Owens Valley, devoted entirely to the cultivation of taboose, that would equal in productiveness per acre some of their $1,000 land, with these advantages in favor of Owens Valley—a milder climate, abundance of water and, probably, a better market.

Extensive coal mines are operated in these regions, and a multiplicity of industries, with three or four competing lines of railroad running through Wyoming—hence a density of population and the consequent high valuation of real estate. Wages are low. Even good mechanics work for $1 50 or $2 per day. Farm hands get from $12 to $15 per month. A big, stout young man who was employed in a wholesale liquor establishment told me that his wages were only $12 per month and board, and that he didn't know where to "better himself." The coal miners and their laborers do not work much more than half time. They have had several reductions of wages during '76, and still a 20 per cent reduction is threatened them next January! While the laboring classes are thus struggling for a bare subsistence certain officers of these wealthy corporations receive big pay. One man, President of a rich coal company, receives, it is said, $40,000 annually. O "equality!"

The consumption of anthracite coal is not adequate to the production. Mines are opened to an extent that would yield from 22,000,000 to 24,000,000 tons per annum, and there are sufficient men in these regions to produce that result, while the actual consumption or demand does not exceed from 12,000,000 to 14,000,000 tons annually.

The doleful cry of "hard times" is heard most everywhere—not only in Pennsylvania but in all of these Eastern States. Hundreds of families in these localities dread the coming Winter. Poverty already stares them in the face. Last Winter, they say, was mild, but the weatherwise predict that the Winter of '76-77 will be a severe one, which will greatly augment the distress of the poverty-stricken.

Before the war living was cheap here. Eggs were only worth 5 cents per dozen. But now board is from $5 to $6 per week, eggs 35 cents per dozen, and in fact everything is "way up," while the laboring man is very low down.

From the above few facts Owens Valley farmers, many of whom are continually whining and deprecating their own favored locality, and who "believe upon my soul" that a very paradise is elsewhere for them, should pause and reflect—learn "somedings." Also, men who work for high wages on the farm, in the mines or at the mills should "make hay while the sun shines."

ST. NICHOLAS

THE THIRD VOLUME OF THIS INCOMPARABLE Magazine is now completed. With its 800 royal octavo pages, and its 600 illustrations, its splendid serials, its shorter stories, poems and sketches, etc., in its beautiful binding of red and gold, it is the most splendid gift book for boys and girls ever issued from the press. Price, $4; in full gilt, $5.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR 1877

Which opens with November, 1876, begins a short and very entertaining serial from the French, "The Kingdom of the Greedy," a story adapted to the Thanksgiving season. Another serial, of absorbing interest to boys, "His Own Master," by J. T. Trowbridge, author of the "Jack Hazard Stories," begins in the Christmas Holiday Number, together with "The Boys of My Boyhood," by William Cullen Bryant, Christmas stories, lively sketches, poems, pictures, etc.

During the year there will be interesting papers for boys, by William Cullen Bryant, John G. Whittier, Thomas Hughes, William Howitt, Dr. Holland, George Macdonald, Sanford B. Hunt, Frank R. Stockton and others.

There will be stories, sketches and poems of special interest to girls, by Harriet Prescott Spofford, Susan Coolidge, Sarah Winter Kellogg, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Louisa Alcott, Lucretia P. Hale, Celia Thaxter, Mary Mapes Dodge and many others. There will also be "Twelve Sky Pictures," by Prof. Proctor, the astronomer, with maps, showing "The Stars of Each Month," which will be likely to surpass in interest any series on popular science recently given to the public.

AMUSEMENT and INSTRUCTION, with FUN and FROLIC, and WIT and WISDOM, will be mingled as heretofore, and ST. NICHOLAS will continue to delight the young and give pleasure to the old.

"ST. NICHOLAS is full of the choicest things. The publication is, in all respects, the best of its kind. We have never yet seen a number that was not surprisingly good"—The Churchman, Hartford, Conn.

"There is no magazine for the young that can be said to equal this choice publication of Scribner's press. All the articles, whether in prose or rhyme, are throbbing with vitality. * * The literature and artistic illustrations are both superb."—The London Literary World

"We wish we could point out its equal in our own periodical literature."—London Daily News.

Good News for Boys and Girls.

To meet the demand for a cheaper ST. NICHOLAS Gift Book, the price of vols. I and II has been reduced to $3 each. The three volumes, in an elegant library case, are sold for $10 (in full gilt, $15) so that all may give their children a complete set. These volumes contain more attractive material than fifty dollars' worth of the ordinary children's books.

Subscription price, $3 a year. The three bound volumes and a subscription for this year, only $12. Subscribe with the nearest news dealer, or send money in check, or postoffice money order, or in registered letter, to

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 9,.....1876.

Important.

☞ A full and complete settlement is earnestly desired with all patrons of THE INDEPENDENT, pro and con. Mr. H. L. Childs will continue to act and sign for the firm until such business is completed. CHALFANT & PARKER.

THE STRING BRIGADE.—The column advertisement of the Inyo Archery Club setting forth the programme of Chrismas amusements has been one of the seven day wonders, since the quiet movements and preparations of the Executive Committee of the organization have been conducted so smoothly as to attract but little attention. However, the usual commotion attending such social affairs has begun, since the proper committee has found time to issue the formal invitations. The aforesaid committee have requested us to mention the fact that if they have inadvertently omitted any one in addressing the invitations, it was done through haste and lack of time. The object of the club is fully set forth in their advertisement and circulars. Of the success of their first exercises on Christmas, to terminate with a grand ball in the evening, there can now be no question. We venture this assertion, since a large number from a distance have signified their intention of joining in the festivities and general merrymaking. Many others are anxious to compete for the prizes, either in the grand waltz or archery contest. The awards are really "valuable and appropriate," ranging in worth from $10 to $60—of which a number of the best have been donated by our leading merchants, whose names will be announced in due time. According to the plans laid out everything will be conducted so entirely different from any previous occasion that all of the prominent features will prove most attractive. The determination on the part of the committee seems to be that all of the guests shall be comfortably provided for and the affair made thoroughly enjoyable for all alike.

WORTH ATTENTION.—Last Spring Mr. Thomas Bell, of Big Pine, tried the experiment of raising potatoes direct from the seed, not the cuttings. We are not advised as to the name of the variety from which he obtained the seed, but we think the product may very appropriately be called Bell's Seedlings. His experiment was a most gratifying success; the yield was much larger for the area planted than he has ever before realized from any other planting, amounting in all to some 300 bushels. These are the best potatoes, all in all, that we ever seen anywhere; they are full as large and smooth, and sounder, on the average than the famous Bodega, while for color, and every other desirable quality we are prepared to testify they are infinitely superior. Some of these seedlings were placed on exhibition at Rowley's, a fact we should have mentioned last week for the information of such of our farmers as would like to see them with a view of purchasing for seed, for which purpose only are they offered for sale.

FIRE ALARM.—Another incipient conflagration menaced our devoted little town on Monday last. Some time during the forenoon a small portion of the roof of Mr. Eibeshutz dwelling was found to be on fire, having caught from sparks or a defective pipe. The building is situated in the most compact part of town, and there was naturally considerable excitement until the glim was doused, which was accomplished in a few minutes. The premises—adjoining the store of Messrs. Rothschild & Co.—have the only force-pump and fire-hose in town. Had this fire obtained a fair headway the property holders thereabouts would now be in a gloom of regret—for not heeding our suggestion in regard to supplying that pump with at least 100 feet more hose.

COUNTY COURT.—In the County Court, Hon. John A. Hannah, Judge, but two cases were disposed of during the week closing to-day, as follows: S. A. Densmore vs. K. S. Crumley—on appeal from Justice Court; passed for the term. R. B. Snelling vs. John W. Martin—on appeal; tried by jury; verdict and judgment for plaintiff for the sum of $75. The Court is now sitting in probate matters.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Barbour, Superintendent of the Modoc, paid this place a brief visit the other evening, and gave us a passing call. This being his first visit up here we didn't think it advisable to discourage him by a rigid "investigation" in relation to matters and things out in Lookout—hope to do something in that way in his own stronghold, one of these days.

TELEGRAPHIC.—The latest news dispatch, special to THE INDEPENDENT, says that among other improvements, Camp Independence is to have a bath house, to be supplied with hot and cold water—the appropriation for which allows the use of some 5,000 feet of lumber.

"MIGHT HAVE BEEN."—Had there been a full vote cast at the late election in this Independence precinct, Pacheco and Wigginton would now be out of their misery, from the fact that the latter would be six ahead. But there was nary a bulldozer to prevent a full vote.

OFF.—The proposed half mile race between the Black Horse and Mary Hammond, to transpire at the Taboose track on New Year's day, has been declared "off." A quarter-race for a purse, free for all, is announced instead.

BULLION SHIPMENT.—J. S. Rothchilds & Co. shipped yesterday, four bars of Kearsarge bullion, weighing 278 pounds and valued at about $2750.

SALOON CHANGE.—Johnny Irwin has leased from the Mairs Brothers the Headquarters Saloon, taking possession on the 15th instant.

THE MODOC.—The Modoc company, Lookout district, are doing a far more extensive business than most people at this distance are aware of. Not less than 500 mules, and quite an army of packers, teamsters, coal burners, wood choppers, etc., are constantly employed in furnishing coal and other local supplies. This and the freighting interest combined, has built up a little town in Darwin Wash which is said to be by odds the liveliest in the county. The furnaces are receiving no less than 3,000 bushels of coal per day. The average output of one furnace since October 9, when it was first started up, is close on to 160 bars every twenty-four hours; a second furnace of the same capacity will soon be in constant operation, and then the daily yield will be over 300 bars, or about thirteen tons of bullion, which heretofore has been worth $490 per ton—in round numbers, $6,500 worth every day. The molten metal at the Modoc furnaces is subjected to a skimming process before pouring, by which the copper slag and other valueless bulk is removed, giving the unusual high grade to the bullion. Nearly everything in the shape of ore found in the mine is put through the furnace, reducing the apparent value of the high grade ore, which averages $190 per ton. It is said that this ore taken in the mass is unequalled for the facilty with which it smelts; save in one recent instance, caused by an accident, the furnace has never even been threatened with a "bank" since it was started. These facts we have from a friend who lately visited the mine. Glowing as all this may appear the truth in relation to "the world of ore" to be seen in the mine would appear even more so; but as we have nothing definite to submit in that regard, the above phrase will answer very well to give an idea what may be expected of this mine.

CANVASSING.—Besides that of the "Big Bonanza" book, mentioned elsewhere, Mr. Townsley has the agency for many more publications, some of which are very attractive. Among the rest are Mark Twain's new-old "Sketches"—inimitably unique and funny; "All Round the World," a beautiful work portraying scenes and adventures in every land, being a complete geographical and historical encyclopædia, containing 1,000 illustrations. He has, also, a really valuable work of reference by Dan'l E. Shaffer, entitled "A hundred Thousand Facts," well worth the subscription price to any reading family. The great Exhibition is done up in a volume of 800 pages by the historian McCabe, entitled the "Illustrated History of the Centennial Exhibition," which may be considered official and a lasting work. "The Woman in Battle," by Mme. Velasquez, is a work giving the authoress' history as an officer, spy and soldier in the Confederate army. Also the Life of Gen. George A. Custer, beautifully printed, profusely illustrated, well written and most interesting book.

MEASLES.—Quite a number of children about town have been having some experience with this epidemic; so far all are getting through remarkably well. Dr. Blair has paid considerable attention to the numerous Indians down with this disease, and no doubt has been instrumental in saving many of their lives, none having died since he dissuaded them from their own deadly system of doctoring in such diseases. A few days since about twenty of these, large and small, might have been seen in one little camp near town, all down at the same time, wrapped up head and heels in their blankets, and so fully resolved to obey the doctor's instructions in regard to exposure they hardly dared uncover their noses. No more sweat houses in conjunction with the cold water plunge for them. Dr. Blair is satisfied from his observations in these cases that this disease is of a materially different type from ordinary measles among the whites, but not any more to be feared. Leastways the leading symptoms are altogether different.

ROADS.—Road Overseer Connelly is transferring his working force to the bad places near the foot of the Big Lake, much to the satisfaction of the teamsters. During last week much work was done upon the main valley road near Fish Springs. Pretty much all required road work to the north has been completed, and now the public roadways in the southern part of the county are to receive due attention. The county has for the present year expended large sums upon her highways, the work being of a character at once permanent and creditable to the officer in charge.

HOLIDAY GOODS.—Messrs. J. S. Rothschild & Co. announce the arrival of a huge stock of Holiday goods—something suitable "for old and young." Besides the usual large stock of general merchandise, a commodious addition to their store, just completed, is being filled with hardware, patent galvanized iron fence-wire, etc., etc.

DODGE'S LIVERY STABLE.—The advertisement of this well-known establishment of our neighbor town of Lone Pine will be found under the head of "New Advertisements." Teamsters and others having occasion to patronize such an institution will ample accommodations and good outfits at the Dodge stable.

RELIGIOUS.—Rev. Father Mallon, of Visalia, will hold divine services at the school house in this place to-morrow. The reverend gentleman has the reputation of being a very interesting and entertaining speaker.

GOOD TRUCK.—John Schulte, the favorite Lone Pine butcher, has favored us with a goodly sample of head-cheese, in the manufacture of which he is par excellence.

CARD.—The official card of the new Deputy Internal Revenue Collector for this section, Mr. H. L. Childs, will be found in our advertising columns this week.

P. OF H.—The annual election of officers of Independence Grange, Patrons of Husbanbry, transpires to-day at 2 o'clock P. M.

That "Queer Complaint."

BENTON, Cal., Dec. 6.

MESSRS. EDITORS—My attention has been called to an article in the local columns of THE INDEPENDENT of December 2, headed "A Queer Complaint," in which it is stated, on the authority of a Benton correspondent, that a Foreman of one of the principal mines here had issued orders that the Chinese employés of the company "should eat at the same table with the white men, and if they (the white men) did not like it they could get their time."

Now, as I am undoubtedly the foreman spoken of, I hereby pronounce the whole statement a malicious falsehood. No orders of this kind, nor any orders that could possibly be construed in any such meaning were ever issued here since I have had charge of the mine. The author of the miserable story did not even have the manliness to quit the mine in the day-time, but sneaked off in the night, and after circulating this yarn and doing me all the injury he could (which was not much), left the country—for the country's good, no doubt. Very respectfully,

OWEN FARRELL,
Foreman Comanche Mine.

DISCONTINUED.—It is stated that the new livery stable recently started in Lone Pine at Hunt's old stand, by Victor Von Brisen, has discontinued business.

NOTE BENE.—A church building and a fire-engine are the necessities for our town to begin figuring on about next Spring—"when the mines go ahead."

ONE of the objects of Dr. Linderman's presence at this time was to buy silver for the Pacific coast mints. He entered the London markets a few weeks ago, and quietly picked up all he could find at his price, and his purchases there probably amount to $2,000,000. Over $1,000,000 of this amount arrived at New York by steamer November 15, and the remainder is there by this time. Since his arrival here he has purchased 1,000,000 ounces fine silver, and 300,000 ounces Dore silver, the latter to be delivered at the Carson mint. The amount of the sale is about $2,000,000. The price is not given but is said to be at the market rates. The sellers were Flood & O'Brien of the Nevada Bank. Stocks are now pretty well cleared up, and the market is in a healthful condition. The subsidiary silver from the Pacific coast mints is distributed in the Mississippi Valley, while the Philadelphia mint supplies the Atlantic seaboard cities and towns.—S. F. Bulletin.

FRANCE has a currency of over $49 per head; the United States has $13 per head. France paid an enormous war debt in a few months; America has her war debt still hanging over her, drawing gold interest. France made her paper money receivable for all dues, the same as coin; this country excepted "duties on imports and interest on the public debt." The paper currency of France always kept even with the coin; the greenback at times was worth but forty cents on the dollar. France is prosperous and her people happy; our country is prostrated by idleness, want, wretchedness, bankruptcy, general stagnation, and all becoming worse every day.—Eastern Paper.

"I HAVE a friend," writes Aristarchus, "who is unable to leave London himself this Autumn, but whose wife and children are now enjoying the breezes of their native Scotland for a few weeks. Wishing to say something civil to him, and knowing that he and his better half got on pretty well together, I remarked that he 'must feel rather lonely without Mrs. X. and the little ones.' 'Yes,' he replied, 'I do, but the wind is tempered to the shorn lamb; you see, when my wife is away I can smoke in bed.'"

LABOR.—Because a man sells his strength to you for a given time and for a fixed sum, it does not follow that he surrenders to you his manhood for that time or that he places himself upon a lower grade, socially or morally. He does no such thing. "Circumstances over which we have no control" may compel the best of us to place ourselves in positions erroneously termed menial, in order to obtain a livelihood, but none of us would consent to subject ourselves to insult and abuse because we were unfortunate.

THE Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company have finished their building of the second wire from San Francisco as far south as Tulare, a point distant 239 miles from San Francisco and 230 miles from Los Angeles. Work will be commenced on the building of the Yuma line in a short time.

A MAN must be pretty drunk to go along the streets holding fast to his coat collar with both hands to prevent falling.

GOLD VS. CREDIT.—There is only three billions of gold in the world, on which is built its vast exchanges of property, and probably not more than half of it is in use, the rest being hoarded. Thousands of billions of billions of property and products are annually bought and sold on bank checks promising to pay gold. Remember gold and bank currency is only four per cent of the world's money. They are only Saturday night's wages—pin-money—market money. The great transactions of distributing the world's commodities are accomplished by 96 per cent in checks on banks and bankers. These checks are mostly founded on bank discounts of individual notes, promising to pay gold or based on gold, but really tossed about and balanced at bank counters, without the movement of a single coin. Four per cent of coin and currency together, to 96 per cent of checks, based on the banker's promise to pay gold, which could never be redeemed. What a pyramid of inflated credit!—Exchange.

WHY LINCOLN'S TOMB WAS OUTRAGED. The Chicago Times claims that the recent outrage on Lincoln's tomb was prompted by Ben. Boyd, the notorious counterfeiter, who was captured by Elmer Washburne some time ago, and a gang of counterfeiters, such as seldom obtain a foothold in the State, broken up. Boyd, through the agency of his friends and his own wealth, has for some time past been trying to liberate himself from prison. The shrewd scheme was to carry off the remains of Mr. Lincoln, secrete them and keep them until President Grant should be compelled to give Boyd his freedom, conditioned on the restoration of the remains to their former resting place.

A FORTUNE IN TOOTHPICKS.—It seems that it was not the invention of the wooden toothpick, per se, that netted the inventor $50,000, but the idea of making the toothpicks out of soft, brittle wood. It is said when they were first brought out they were mdae of hard, fibrous wood; but the inventor soon found that this would not pay, as the picks lasted too long, and he went to pine. It now takes four sound picks to get the broken end of one out from between the teeth; and it is the latter discovery that is said to have realized the inventor his fortune.

COLD IN THE HEAD.—The medical journals, last Spring, published repeatedly the formula for Dr. Ferrier's new remedy for cold in the head. As the season for that distressing malady is at hand, we print the recipe, which is: Trisnitrate of bismuth 6 drachms, pulverized gum arabic 2 drachms, and hydrochlorate of morphia 2 grains. This is used as a snuff, creates no pain, and causes, says the London Lancet, the entire disappearance of the symptoms in a few hours.—Scientific American.

DR. A. P. PEABODY, of Massachusetts, says that the school system of a hundred years ago had great faults and even great monstrosities, and yet it did more toward the proper education of citizens than do our present schools. He asks if there is not much time wasted in learning unimportant dates and names in history and geography, and if it might not be as well to banish all formal instruction in grammar.

A GOOD mode of fastening a horse in a stall is the English one of attaching a light weight to the end of the halter, and allowing it to run up and down under the manger, which should always be boarded in front from the floor up. By this arrangement the horse enjoys sufficient liberty, and yet has no chance of getting cast by stepping over the halter.

"WHAT'S your name?" said an officer to a young colored lad who joined his ship at the Cape. "Algoa Bay, sir." "Where were you born?" "Wasn't born at all." "Wasn't born at all?" "No, sir; was washed ashore in a storm."

MISTRESS: "I wish you would manage to get up to prayers more punctually of an evening, cook." Cook [who "knows her place"]: "Well, 'm, it ain't my fault, 'm. It's, of course, for the parlor maid to move first."

MOTHS IN CARPETS.—The Scientific American says that a dilute alcoholic solution of carbolic acid—about 1 part acid to 12 or 15 alcohol—applied to floors before laying carpets will protect the latter effectually from moths.

The Great Cathartic and Regulator.

Purely a Vegetable Compound!

Harmless but Powerful!

MESSRS. WILLIAMS & CO.—GENTLEMEN: It is with pleasure I indorse your YERBA BUENA BITTERS. I have never found such instant and permanent relief as from the use of your most invaluable compound. I have been subjected to costiveness and a torpid liver for five years, and am now entirely cured, after using only two bottles of your YERBA BUENA. I am certain that it was YERBA BUENA that cured me of the palpitation of the heart. I am happy to state through the use of your BITTERS I am a well man. All wishing to be convinced of the above, I will give you my residence: 209 Liedesdorff street, San Francisco. JOHN R. STEERE.

MESSRS. H. WILLIAMS & CO.: Dear Sirs—As long as I can remember, I have been troubled with Pin Worms, and at times felt as if I was being devoured alive. Early in March, 1875, I was induced to use your YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and within One Month I was entirely cured. I have not been troubled with them since, and am satisfied that I am PERMANENTLY cured. I think it is the best preparation for Constipation and Billious Troubles known.

A. B. HOWARD,
No. 12 Quincy street, San Francisco.

I take pleasure in recommending the YERBA BUENA BITTERS. I have used three bottles and found more relief from them than anything I have ever used. I had been troubled with Constipation of the Bowels, Torpid Liver and general debility for a long time, and found no relief until the YERBA BUENA BITTERS cured me.

S. BROOKS, Petaluma.

Seeking health on the Pacific Coast, my attention was called to Dr. Warren's YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and took some for headache, which cured me so perfectly that I bought a bottle and have not taken any other medicine since. It is a perfect cure for any derangement of the stomach or constipation, and I recommend it before any other medicine, as it leaves the system in a healthy state and no dieting is necessary. Please send your Bitters all over the world, for it will be a blessing to humanity beyond the power of words to express. I write you freely and from actual experience CYRUS CUMMINGS,

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 30.

MESSRS. EDITORS—The monotony of the past few weeks, after the subsidence of the election excitement, is broken, and everything bears evidence of the exciting Winter before us. About the Capitol all is bustle and confusion, preparing for its occupancy next Monday by Representatives, Senators and a large delegation of the "dear people" themselves. Carpets are being renovated and relaid on the floors of the House, Senate, galleries and committee rooms. New ones have been substituted in some of the last named in place of the old ones removed last Summer, while the floors of the Senate reception room and the marble room are to remain uncarpeted, the cheerless effect of the cold tiling being relieved by a profusion of rugs of German manufacture—imitations of the Turkish mats so celebrated for their soft, rich colors. A much needed appropriation of $11,000 for a healthy and ventilating apparatus to be used in connection with the Senate chamber has been wisely expended, resulting in a more uniform temperature and in a much more perfect ventilation in all parts of the chamber. A new row of desks has been begun in that section of the Capitol, occasioned by the birth of Colorado into the family of States.

We record with regret the disgraceful fact that Centennial vandals have broken off the bayonets and guns in the hands of soldiers forming a portion of the bronze doors, and otherwise defaced these beautiful art productions, carrying away the detached fragments as souvenirs of their own demoralization. The officials and other employés about the building do not consider it a particularly grateful return for all the courtesy and kindness shown that class of visitors during the past Summer and Fall, and for whose gratification no exertion was deemed too great, that they might go away from the National Capital with an intelligent idea of its treasures of art, sciences and historic interest.

Members of Congress are very tardy in making their appearance, not many up to last evening having arrived; but each train as it arrives brings reinforcements, and by Saturday night very likely most of them will have put in an appearance.

The pleasant weather of yesterday was utilized by thousands for promenading and in shopping or in marketing for the Thanksgiving dinner of to-day. The number of turkeys consumed on this peculiarly New England day here in Washington each year is simply enormous. No community of like numbers in that section of the Union, or any other, can make, I am positive, a better showing in this respect than Washington. The Departments were generally closed at 12 o'clock yesterday, to allow the clerks to provide themselves with the appropriate materials to a proper observance of the day; and, judging from the fearful assaults made upon Turkey, our citizens must pretty generally sympathize with Russia in the present controversy.

Some feeling has been excited over the action of Gen. Ruger in Columbia, South Carolina, and over the reported revelations of terrible outrages and cruelties before the Louisiana Returning Board. Of course disputants generally discuss everything political from a partisan standpoint, though I am glad to see that there is a sentiment here of a sufficient weight to make itself felt, holding both parties to a rigid accountability for any excess of which it may be proved guilty.

Snow began falling early this morning, and the day has a New England air about it that will serve to make those of us who have comfortable homes all the more thankful, and it is hoped open our hearts and purses to the hundreds of shelterless ones by whom we are surrounded.

SAXON.

Land Office Decisions.

The Washington Land Owner for November reports decisions by the Secretary of the Interior in effect as follows:

The filing of a declaration of pre-emption statement does not invalidate a right.

In the absence of an adverse claim all exparte evidence after the close of a hearing in a contested land case before local land offices must be rejected, except as a basis for an application for a new hearing.

All documents and exhibits filed in a new case, after the same has passed beyond the jurisdiction of the General Land Office, must be passed upon by the Department proper, and no patent thus filed should be rejected by the General Land Office.

School grants—Where a party has settled on land between the fifteenth and thirty-sixth degrees of longitude prior to the survey thereof, but has exhausted his pre-emption privilege, the settler cannot by homestead entry prevent the tract from passing under a school grant.

Swamp lands—To settle upon lands of a swampy character would raise such a doubt of the settler's good faith as upon proper application to justify an order of investigation. At such hearing the character of the land at the date of settlement should be determined. When notice of the selection of a tract by the State is received at the local land office, the State should be notified before proof and payment are made by the settler thereon, but where patents have been issued under former rulings of the Interior Department, cases will be considered rejudicated (under culture).

Entries—Land covered by invalid State selections may be entered under the provisions of the Timber Culture Act if otherwise subject thereto.

Townsites and Mining Claims—The fact that a given tract of land has been entered or patented as a townsite in no way prevents the owner of the lode claimed from securing a patent to his mine upon compliance with the terms of the Mining Act, and the same is excluded from the operation of such townsite patent. As in the case of a placer claim, the surface of the ground is absolutely necessary to a successful working of the mine, it cannot be included in a townsite entry or patent.

Comstoke Lode Mines and Sutro Tunnel—In the case of applications for patents for mines on the Comstock Lode in Nevada, hearings may be had to determine whether the mines in question have been benefitted or detained by the Sutro Tunnel, but the Commissioner of the General Land Office will not attempt to interfere with the rights of the mineowners to exercise control and ownership over ther mines, so long as they comply with the requirements of the law.

"Hold the Fort."

Seeing by a paper that Moody and Sankey, the great revivalists, are going to your city, I think a history, as I heard it from Gen. Sherman of their famous hymn, "Hold the Fort," will be en regele. During the terrible march to Atlanta, in the course of which the command was under fire for one hundred days, a portion of the advance guard under Col. Tourtelotte took possession of the Pass of Altoona and held it while the rebels, like grey-crested waves, surged in vain against the little force arrayed behind the breastworks hastily thrown up to meet the emergency. Shot and smoke, sword-flash and death, charge and deadly grapple, filled up the long hours, until it seemed our men must give up from sheer exhaustion and reduction, for the earthworks had been thickened by their dead. The wild grey waves still rolled up the pass with their crest of steel and fire, and "no help came from the west." Col. Tourtelotte saw the bitter need, and here, there, and everywhere, encouraged the men to hold out. Suddenly a courier dashed in among them with the message from Gen. Sherman, "Hold the fort, for I am coming." The scorched and exhausted men stood and shouted. The army came up, and the dying in the bright morn of victory forgot their dread of the dark valley toward which they were hastening; the wounded hushed their moans, and the strong men hurrahed until the skies were filled with the sound thereof. Alatoona Pass, the gate of the sea, was saved; they had fought the good fight, kept the faith their General reposed in them, and had finished their course. Moody and Sankey have with great skill wrested the fine incident to a spiritual meaning, and the hymn is a ringing, stirring religious poem as well as the celebration of a historical fact.—Corr. Cincinnati Commercial.

JANE GREY SWISSHELM writes from Leipzig: "The double floors, which are universal here, ought to be so with us, for the space between is filled with ashes; so, with thick partition walls, it is next to impossible to burn a house down. I am told they have no fire engines in Germany, and do not fight fire with water, but with ashes, clay, sand, old mats and axes. There has not been a fire alarm in Leipzig since we came to it, which was the 27th of last April."

Palestine Explorations.

People seem scarcely to have realized the fact that Captain Warren and his men have actually found King Soloman's wall, still standing as his builders left it, mostly buried, it is true, under thousands of tons of ruin and rubbish, but there still, towering above its foundation on the living rock—140 feet in some places, above 170 feet in others. Who is there that has really taken in the astonishing fact? Not many, I think. The grand barrier by which the wise and mighty King separated the site of the temple which he was about to build for the dwelling place of God still exists! It has been examined and measured by Captain Warren, whose indomitable energy and courage enabled him to overcome all the obstacles and all the dangers involved in mining operations which have no parallel in the history of the world.

And there the wall stands, preserved for us by the ruins heaped around it—ruins of the Holy House itself, and of the city of Jerusalem. This wall is not merely founded on the rock; it is sunk into the rock, into which sockets have been cut to receive the lower course of stones, and make them immovable foundations for so mighty a structure. Along the second course—that above the foundations—the stones are found to be marked with Phœnician mason's marks (such as exist to this day in the ruins of Tyre and Sidon), and thus enable us to identify this as the work of King Hiram's builders. The splendor of the stones astonished Captain Warren. He speaks of their vast size, and of their most beautiful masonry:

"The stones are fitted together in the most marvelous manner, the joints being hardly discernible: so closely fitted that a penknife cannot be inserted between them. Let the reader try to imagine this wall, of which all but the upper course still remain, standing up 290 feet from the bottom, one unbroken face of masonry, such as, whether we take the aggregate mass of it or the size (one thirty-eight feet nine inches long, another weighing one hundred tons) and fine dressing of the individual stones, cannot be paralleled elsewhere in the world, not even in Egypt."—Jerusalem Correspondent.

AN INCIDENT.—A young lady from McGeary walked into Dr. Schneider's drug store yesterday afternoon, and called for a bottle of Salts of Experience. "I have no such article, nor never heard of it," replied the doctor. "The Dickens you haven't," quoth the damsel; "then give me a box of Sedgwich powders and a bundle of that buff colored note paper on the shelf there." "Oh!" suddenly exclaimed the man of pills, as a brilliant combination of ideas flashed across his brain, "perhaps it's Seltzer Aperient you wanted." "Aperiently it was," sharply retorted the rustic female, as she gathered her purchases and hastily left the store, while the doctor sat down on a basket of sponges and wept like a child.—Eureka Sentinel.

WHEN a man jumped into a Cass avenue car yesterday, and nearly mashed a passenger's foot, the victim cried out: "You are a blundering ignoramus, and I know it!" "I am, am I?" "Yes, you are!" "Will you be kind enough," continued the big man, as he took his seat, "to tell me whether your opinion is based on the returns of 1872 or 1874?"—Detroit Free Press.

THE POLITICAL OUTLOOK.

The latest political news is of neither a reassuring nor satisfactory character. The respective State Electoral Boards all met on the 6th and cast their votes; and yet we are no better assured of a solution of the Presidential contest than before. On the face of the returns it is declared that Hayes has the requisite 185 votes; on the face of the same it is just as stoutly maintained on the other side that Tilden has received the requisite 185 votes, and is legally and rightfully the President elect. The Democratic Louisiana Visiting Committtee publish a second very lengthy statement concerning the operations of the Returning Board, showing their manner of canvassing the vote as perfectly rascally and unfair, and their finding a lie on its face, since the lowest Tilden Elector had a clear majority of 6,300 over the highest Hayes Elector. They ask if forty millions of free people will quietly allow a party to perpetuate its power by such means? The sum of the statements made by this committee, which is composed of men of acknowledged high character, will no doubt do much to weaken the position of the Republicans, but for the time being at least will not tend to allay excitement.

The Oregon Governor's operation has tended to still further inflame feeling and to complicate matters, although no one speaks of Grover other than as a scoundrel. The Senate by nearly an unanimous vote (50 to 4) reaffirmed its position in regard to the non-existence of the Twenty-second Joint Rule; the House, it is thought, will take the opposite ground, at least, maintain its right to challenge. In that probable contingency a dead lock will ensue. The Senate will proceed to canvass the vote, and of course, will declare Hayes elected. The House in its own chamber will claim that the circumstances justify the exercise of its Constitutional right of naming the President, and will do so by giving its vote for Tilden. It is not worth while now to speculate as to what would follow. There is not apparently the slightest disposition by either side to abate a jot of their respective claims, which are diametrically opposite and irreconcilable. This fact adds gravity to the situation, and patriots begin earnestly to cast about to devise a feasible plan to avert a serious catastrophe. This will be a difficult thing to do at the best, much more so while narrow partisanship stands so offensively in the front. We have something of good promise in a joint resotion, which originated in the House, by which a committeee from each House are delegated to confer, and if possible, agree upon a method of settlement of the vexed question. Should this joint committee agree on any practicable plan, no matter how extraordinary, it is not likely either House or party will dare reject it. One to refer the whole matter to the decision of the Supreme Court through an amendment of the Constitution, seems to be most likely to be adopted. This would require instant action to be available. Unless something of the kind is done we may look for such a display of sharp practice there in Washington as will seriously endanger the peace of the country. But we think common sense will after a bit get a hearing, and will reduce the temperature clear below the fighting point.

ANOTHER HORROR. — The greatest horror in kind that has shocked this country for many years, was occasioned by the burning of the Park theatre in Brooklyn, New York, last week, during a play. At the first alarm the audience became utterly panic stricken, causing a perfect blockade of the door-ways, so that scarcely any could get out, and those who were not trampled to death, were roasted alive. In this way over three hundred men, women and children perished in indescribable agony. Some that did escape say they could distinctly hear the bones breaking among the writhing, fighting, struggling mass as they trampled each other's lives out, even before there was any immediate danger from the fire, which had caught upon the stage. Men and all acted like unreasoning animals, and it was that fact that caused the loss of nearly, perhaps every, life.

WIGGINTON VS. PACHECO.—By virtue of a mandamus sworn out by Wigginton, the County Clerk of Monterey has forwarded to Secretary Beck a certified copy of the returns of Monterey county as canvassed by the Supervisors. This gives Wigginton the benefit of the error of two votes, and his election by one vote. The Secretary, however, will not issue his certificate for some days, so as to give Pacheco a chance to take such legal steps as he may deem advisable to contest the issue.

OREGON'S ELECTORAL VOTE.

Gov. Grover of Oregon saw that something had to be done to checkmate the rascally Republican Returning Boards down South, and he swore by the biggest salmon that ever helped to fatten an Oregonian that do what they would they should not get away with the first premium for scoundrelism; not so long as he was ruler of the Webfoot Nation, and but one electoral vote was needed to fill the order. Thereupon he commenced to investigate the case of Watts, a Republican Elector, who, though having a clear and undisputed majority of the votes for that office, received them at a time when he, Mr. Watts, was a Postmaster. The Governor invited argument, to which he listened for days as a high Court of Elections with great acumen. Finally the question had to be decided, and the Governor was ready, he being a man of decision. Watts had no right to a certificate as an elector; that was clear to the Governor's mind. It was just as clear that Cronin, on the opposite ticket—though a thousand or two in the minority—did have have that right, and accordingly he instructed Chadwick, his Secretary of State, to fix up the paper for Cronin. Chadwick—who claims that he is only a ministerial officer, the same in effect as a flunky in a restaurant—fixed up the certificate for Cronin, and also one each for the two Electors who were not adjudged by His Excellency as disqualified. These he made out all on one papar. Some say when the time for delivery came Chadwick poked it out through the crack of the door into Cronin's ready hands; others say that the ministerial officer walked boldly into the room where sat all the claimants and some others, and then delivered the document into Cronin's hands. However, Cronin got his own and three for the others, too, and wanted to proceed to business and vote for President. Would the others act with him? They declined to say until they had seen their certificates. That they couldn't do, since his own was on the same paper, and they might keep all; he would satisfy them by reading it; this he did, but they were not satisfied yet. Cronin wouldn't stand any more croonin' about it; if they wouldn't serve then there were two vacancies in the Oregon Board of Electors, and it became his constitutional duty to fill those vacancies as the law provided. Cronin called in a couple of chums and swore them in, with orders that they were to vote for Hayes and Wheeler, while he would reserve the honor of voting for Tilden and Hendricks himself. It was so done, and His Excellency duly certified that it was all regular, constitutional, etc., and Cronin was appointed Messenger to go to Washington with the Electoral vote.

Meanwhile the Republican Electors, who had been squealing around for their certificates like Western pigs about a cornerib, got sulky and went of and organized a little Board of Electors of their own. As Watts had no certificate in his own or anybody else's hands, he made some inquiry about Watts the use, and resigned all claims as an Elector—whereupon his chums proceeded, in violation of the intent of the laws of Oregon, to fill the vacancy by reappointing Watts as the third Elector. They all voted, but did not, like the other Board, divide up in favor of Mr. Tilden.

For this simple transaction people everywhere begun to call His Excellency vile names, such as scoundrel, traitor, ass, fool, etc. The Governor saw that there was a misapprehension of facts on the part of the public, and at once telegraphed the facts to a New York paper. These were that he had taken a solemn oath to uphold the Constitution and laws of the State of Oregon; that Watts at the time of his election as an Elector was notoriously a Postmaster, and had been for three years; that there was a vacancy in the Oregon Board of Electors; that the law gave him no choice but to issue a certificate to the person receiving the next highest vote; that that person was Cronin; that the other Electors to whom he had given certificates wouldn't recognize Cronin; that Cronin could do no less than proceed to business and fill the vacancies; that Cronin did do this as provided by law, which gave the Board of Electors authority to fill any accidental vacancies, when such occur through death or refusal to act, but as he understood the law not when there was a disqualification such as affected Watts. In such cases it was the Executive's place to provide for filling the vacancy, and that duty he had deemed it right to delegate to Cronin. It was all square and legitimate. He, the Governor, was a sworn officer.

That is substantially the sum of the Governor's explanation. From it we are given to understand that according to Oregon law it is not only a matter of importance in creating a vacancy of the kind in question that the person voted for should be dead according to law before the legitimate remainder of the Board have any right to fill the vacancy, but it might also be equally important as to the kind of a death he died. That is if the trouble that carried him off was peculiarly of Oregon and indigenous thereto the majority of the Board would fill such vacancy, as he, the Governor, under oath, understood the unwritten intent of the law. If Watts had died from a conglomeration of the diaphragm caused by the absorption of moisture through the webs, or from inflammation of the dew claws superinduced by an over-gorge of salmon with the usual accompaniment of hare, in either case he would be legally dead according to Oregon law in such cases made and provided—and the surviving members could then fill the vacancy. But if Watts was dead through an attack of snakes-in-the-boots, or other diseases not peculiarly Oregonian, or was Postmaster, it made no difference which, then he, the Governor, was satisfied that the Constitution invested himself with the right to fill the vacancy, and that was all he had done; and what was the use of people making such a fuss about one vote any way? Wasn't it a matter of fact that leading politicians on both sides now days admitted that two wrongs might make a right? Therefore a wrong in Oregon, if they chose to call it such, was only a stand-off for a wrong in Louisiana, and out of the two would cause a great right by compelling the Republican Senate to go behind the returns. These were his sentiments and justification.

THE SALE OF TELEGRAPH NEWS. On the 1st of January the Western Union Telegraph Company will discontinue the collection of Pacific coast news, and the sale of it to both city and country papers. It will also discontinue the sale of Eastern dispatches. In view of the new conditions the San Francisco Chronicle at that time will establish a news bureau for the sale of news, solely for the accommodation of interior papers. It asks their co-operation in the enterprise in the expectation of effecting a powerful press association for mutual protection. The Chronicle has for a long time past been waging single handed war against the news monopoly which barred out every paper in the State from its privileges except three; it has made a striking success, if not in breaking down the monopoly, at least in building itself up as a newspaper, and in placing its readers, and country exchanges, under obligations for fuller and fresher telegraph and other news than was obtainable from any other source. This fact, in connection with its manifest business tact and general enterprise, gives ample assurance of the perfect success of its proposed undertaking, and therefore, of advantages to all the papers joining with it. As a matter of course papers situated like THE INDEPENDENT with reference to telegraph lines can only take "scissors dispatches," but are none the less interested in this proposed News Bureau.

WATERING THE DESERT.—It appears from recent explorations and surveys that the work of turning the Atlantic ocean into the great desert of Africa is not so formidable an undertaking as was first supposed. It is only necessary to cut a channel through a bar 300 yards wide. The level of the desert immediately behind this obstruction is some 330 feet below the sea level, which will give a pretty fair depth of water over which to steam into the fertile heart of Africa.

The Railroad.

On the 14th instant a number of prominent citizens of Beaver, Utah, held a meeting at which it was resolved to petition Congress to grant lands for the purpose of aiding in the building of the Utah Southern to connect with the Santa Monica railroad. We understand that the Utah Southern is rapidly approaching Beaver. The people of that city believe that the deflection toward Los Angeles should be made at that point, and they are deeply interested in the prosecution of the road to the ocean outlet at Santa Monica. It is very certain that the lands lying between the Cajon Pass and the Sevier river are worthless without railroad transportation. The rich mining districts which intervene between those two points will remain dormant indefinitely unless facilities for transporting their ores and introducing their supplies are had. Congress could not give away those lands to settlers now, and they will remain utterly worthless as long as they are not tapped by a railroad. We do not, therefore, see how Congress could refuse to make a liberal donation of those lands to any company that would be the means of subjecting them to the uses of civilization. While we do not believe that a liberal land subsidy would go far toward building the road, we have no doubt that it would add to its attractions to capitalists, and thus expedite the completion of an improvement we are anxious to secure. It would be well for the people of this section to aid the people of Beaver, by supplementing their petitition to Congress by one from this place.—Los Angeles Express, Nov. 30.

WHEN TAXES BECOME DELINQUENT.

As the first Monday in January is the last day on which taxes may be paid before becoming delinquent, and as that day this year happens also to be a legal holiday, the question is as to what bearing this latter fact will have in the premises. City Attorney Burnett, San Francisco, decides that "taxes will become delinquent if unpaid at the close of the day on the first Monday in January, 1877, although the day be a legal holiday." According to that, unless the Tax Collector, as a matter of accommodation simply, should keep his office open New Year's day, all taxes remaining unpaid at the close of Saturday preceding would be declared delinquent. Now, we don't believe Burnett's decision to be correct at all; if it is then the legal holiday law is a nullity. In this we are sustained by the opinion of Deputy District Attorney Moffat, of this county, who points out enough law on the subject to show, as we take it, that taxes do not become delinquent until after the close of Tuesday, January 2, 1877, the previous day being a legal holiday, and therefore a day of grace for taxes as for all other monetary transactions in law.

Sections 11, 12 and 13 of the Political Code say in substance that when a day of a month fixed for a legal holiday falls on Sunday the following Monday shall be so observed; that when the last day in which any act provided for or limited by law is to be done is a holiday, then such holiday is excluded from the count, extending the time that much; that, except works of necessity or mercy, all legal contracts to be performed by a given day, and that day falling on a holiday, then such act or contract may be performed on the next succeeding business day with the same effect as if it had been done upon the day appointed.

That is the sum of the law on the subject, and clearly gives us till the evening of January 2 in which to satisfy the rapacious tax gatherer.

But it don't make it any clearer as to where the coin is to come from.

That is a private matter of public interest. We submit it for diligent individual cogitation.

The Defiance Mine.

It has been some time since we have had the pleasure of reporting anything about this grand old mine, for the reason that, in consequence of some financial embarrassment of the Company, work upon the mine and furnaces has been entirely suspended. Now, however, through the indefatigable exertions of P. Reddy, Superintendent, there is every probability that more effective operations are about to be inaugurated, and upon a much safer and better paying basis. His plan of operations was stated to the creditors resident in Darwin, and at a meeting held for that purpose; parties in San Francisco were communicated with, and there was such a general unanimity of good feeling expressed that Mr. Reddy at once put men to work developing the mine and exploring same for ore. A shaft was started in the main tunnel level on the third vein, and on visiting it, some two weeks ago, there were all the indications to show that a good body of ore would be struck at no great depth. The shaft was sunk vertically for about 40 feet and then followed the hanging wall at an angle of about 55 degrees for a distance of some 50 feet, when it assumes an angle of about 65 or 70 degrees to the bottom, its total depth up to last Monday when we visited the mine, being about 130 feet. Ore was encountered at the point where the incline was started from the vertical portion of the shaft, and for that distance to the bottom, over 80 feet, is continuous, having increased in width as sinking progressed. At this date (Monday, Dec. 4th) it is over three feet wide in the bottom, of the finest grey and black carbonate ores, assaying $80 to $85 in silver and 65 to 70 per cent lead. It is the intention to sink 20 or 25 feet deeper and then run a crosscut for the footwall to determine the full extent of the ore-body. It is possible, perhaps quite probable, that at this depth the ore-body will be found to extend entirely back to the second vein, in which case it would be hard to compute the vast quantity of ore contained in that space. We next visited the north stope or raise from the third vein, but a long ways from the shaft just described. We find it gradually raising at an angle of about 35 degrees, ore-body bearing northerly toward the immense chimney found at the surface, from which a great many tons of the best ore were extracted. This will be continued until the connection is made with the shaft at the north, which will furnish good ventilation for further prosecution of work in this portion of the mine. Large quantities of good ore are being taken from this raise, but it partakes more of the solid galena character, interspersed with yellow and red carbonates of lead, so useful in reducing the hard ores. There are now upon the dumps some 150 tons of well assorted ores, and nearly as much more in the mine which has been thrown down but not wheeled out. Altogether we think the Defiance shows better to-day than it ever did before, and we are satisfied that the deeper the explorations the more extensive will the ore-bodies be found and the quality of the ore be enhanced, as in the case of the Cerro Gordo mines, which are now down to a depth of over 700 feet. The Defiance and all the mines in Darwin district are upon the same grand belt, and the formation is pronounced by the best judges to be identical with that at Cerro Gordo, consequently there need be no hesitancy in going down upon the ledge.—Coso News, Dec. 9.

INDEPENDENCE, Dec. 15.

MESSRS. EDITORS—As the public generally are appreciating our stability and permanency of organization and exhibiting an interest in the preparations for the coming Christmas festivities at this place under the auspices of the Inyo Archery Club, we deem it proper to review through the columns of THE INDEPENDENT what is being done by the Executive Committee in the way of perfecting every arrangement and conducing to the general enjoyment of the occasion, and with your favor we submit the following synopsis of what has been already accomplished: First, as a public gathering, toward which a disposition is manifested to contribute by representatives from all parts of the county, the Board of Supervisors have generously tendered the use of the court house, and under the care of the Sheriff the hall has been carefully prepared and convenient to the hall two private rooms will be fitted and warmed for the accommodation of the guests as ladies' and gents' reception rooms. Next in order was the securing of the best music obtainable in the county, and lastly displaying for the inspection of all the valuable and appropriate prizes. Dancing will begin promptly at 8 P. M. and continued without interruption; at 11 P. M. an excellent supper will be spread at the Blaney House and served continuously until 2 A. M., thus giving all an opportunity of going at their pleasure and enjoying the same at their leisure—thus avoiding the confusion attending crowded entertainments. The various Committees are making all the necessary preparations to look after and secure the comfort of all the guests, especially those from a distance; the Reception and Introductory Committees may be depended upon in the performance of their various and responsible duties. A Grand Prize Waltz will occur during the evening and be adjudged by three competent persons selected from different portions of the county, and whose names will be announced only when the hour for the contest arrives, thus securing an equal chance and an impartial decision. In every respect it is the desire and intention to have the contest adjudged on actual merit alone and no favoritism shown. The result will be followed by the presentation of the prize. The Archery contest to occur during the afternoon will be fairly conducted and the different prizes awarded at the close to the parties winning according to their skill. In regard to the valuable prizes referred to, the Committee offer the following, which are placed on exhibition for the inspection of the members: A silk dress pattern, valued at $52 and a silk dress hat, worth $15, presented by the Club. In addition to these are the beautiful prizes donated to the Club—by J. S. Rothschild & Co., a china tea set, valued at $60; by Harris & Rhine, a silver-plated water pitcher, valued at $25; by L. Wood, a musical album, valued at $15 and by THE INDEPENDENT a year's subscription and 500 wedding cards—the latter to be furnished when required—to the successful single or unmarried lady competing in the shooting. In conclusion we will state that we have made ample preparations to accommodate 60 couples and render their enjoyment as full and complete as possible.

Very Respectfully,
W. B. DAUGHERTY,
THOS. PASSMORE,
H. L. CHILDS,
O. I. MAIRS,
T. F. A. CONNELLY,

RACES AT BELLEVILLE.—We are in receipt of a communication from Belleville, Nevada, giving information of the organization of a strong Jockey Club, with some forty members, at that point. They have just completed a first-class half-mile track, and the Secretary, Mr. A. P. Nettleton, announces the following programme of sport: December 25 a race of one-half mile and repeat, free for all horses, for a purse of $400. December 26 single dash of one-half mile, free for all, for a purse of $300. December 27 single dash of one-quarter mile, for saddle horses only, for a purse of $100. The conditions of all the above races are that not less than four horses shall enter and three to start. The Club send a special "invite" for our valley horsemen to be on hand, with their fastest stock.

CHRISTMAS TREE.—Miss Carrie Whitcomb, teacher of our public school here, is making every preparation to get up a well loaded Christmas Tree for her school children, and a separate one, we believe, for the public generally, old and young, all of whom are invited to participate. To this end she and her little soliciting committees have worked zealously and most successfully. The event will take place at the Masonic Hall, Saturday evening, December 23d. Be there, all of you.

DEAD.—"Jenny" and "Big Jim," two Indian women well known to all the housekeepers around here, both died at the Indian camp near town a few days ago. Jenny was quite young, and had mostly lived with white families. Consumption, probably the result of a mistreated attack of the measles, caused her death. The other was rather advanced in age, and her exploits have been made the subject of several newspaper items within the last few years.

AN ERROR.—A note from Victor Von Briesen, Lone Pine, informs us that his new livery stable at that point has not discontinued business.

JIM-JAMS.—Some two weeks since Simon Bowden, a brawny, well-respected and industrious Cornish miner, who for some time previous had been working at the Kearsarge, came down and went in for a good time. He soon brought on a preliminary attack of the jim-jams. Recovering in part, if not wholly, he shouldered his blankets and went to Lone Pine, fully resolved on reform. During his first night there many formidable snakes surrounded his bed and went for him in all conceivable ways. In the night he got up and ran off in deadly fear that parties were trying to kill him. He ran to the river, which, very cold as it was, he swam, in drawers and undershirt. In this condition he wandered through the sage brush for nearly two nights and days. On the second day a Mexican came across him. Inquiring what he was doing there in such a condition, the unfortunate told him that the Sheriff had sent him there to herd the cattle with which he was surrounded. The Mexican went back to Lone Pine and reported the facts to Joe Seeley, who gave him $20 to go and bring in the crazed man. This was soon done. Sheriff Passmore, upon being notified of the facts, went down and brought him here to be taken care of, for which care he stood in the greatest need. His feet and hands were badly frozen, the former being so lacerated by running barefoot over the stones and through the brush as to present a most horrible sight. They were black from the effects of frost-bite, and for a time Dr. Blair, who was called in, feared that both feet would have to be amputated. But the doctor has managed to lessen this danger so much that at the worst the poor man will not lose more than one or two of his toes, and perhaps not them. Bowden has fully recovered his faculties, and is really deserving of sympathy, since the hallucination to which he owes his hapless condition is not wholly due to over indulgence of his appetite for drink, being something of an hereditary character.

TO GET THE MEASURE.—Having seen some of the archery practice we feel constrained to offer some advice: First, secure the services of a competent surveyor with a chain one hundred and fifty links in length, so as to get the string measure of each several six shots without having to double on the chain, and thus create a suspicion of fraud. Second, swear him in, and then have affidavits ready to swear him out if he don't figure up his field notes so as to give everybody a prize. Third, have a committee of disinterestedly prominent gentlemen from Bishop and Darwin (including T. S., of the News) to make folks believe there was a fair count, no fudging, and to guard against intimidation of the shootists. Fourth, the Returning Board to consist of the keenest eyed and longest legged of both parties, so that they may get back with the arrows in time for them to be used a second time that day. (NOTE—Honesty is of secondary consideration in the qualifications of this Board—all their duties are purely ministerial, except that they may return the arrows to whom they please, or claim salvage). Fifth, everybody but the visiting committee, to stand afar off out of harm's way. Sixth and lastly, to call an extra session of the Board of Supervisors so as to get permission to use the side of Bennett's barn for a target.

AURORA ITEMS.—The Marden mill, at Aurora, is now being run by Henry Buckley, on custom ore....Upon Jim Meredith's return from the Centennial, his partner, Deacon Kimball, immediately betook himself Eastward, and now they are waiting for him to get back in order to make him County Treasurer, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Wm. H. Hall. Johnny Novaccovich has succeeded to the position of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s agent. We are promised some reports of the valuable and once greatly noted Bodie mining property, situated in Mono county but considered almost as a part of Aurora.

A HINT FOR THE JUDGES IN THE APPROACHING WALTZ CONTEST.—At a Texas baby show it was a long time before any one could be found to act as judge. Finally five brave men were found to act, on condition that the awards should not be announced until the judges had ten minutes start. The mothers sat in a circle, babies in lap. The judges made their rounds, compared their notes, handed the result to the spokesman, and ran for their lives.

OFFICERS INSTALLED.—The following new officers of Honor (Military) Lodge No. 4, I. O. G. T., were installed November 2: W. C. T., J. J. Dowling; W. R. H. S., H. Cheatam; W. L. H. S., C. Schilpp; W. V. T., C. Huntington; W. S., C. Schmidt; W. A. S., H. Altman; W. F. S., C. B. Terry; W. T., A. Nusser; W. M., H. Freedman; W. D. M., J. Fleming; W. I. G., A. Norton; W. O. G., J. O'Dwyer; W. C., H. Hunter; P. W. C. T., H. J. Ackley.

KEARSARGE.—During the Winter work is to be pushed vigorously on the new 500-foot tunnel of the Kearsarge mine. It is now in about 150 feet, and when completed will strike the ledges at a depth of 400 feet below the present lowest workings.

LAND OFFICE.—Among our new advertisements of this week will be found the official card of Register Briggs and Receiver May, of the United States Land Office at this point.

ASSESSMENT.—An assessment of thirty cents per share has been levied upon the Rex Montis stock, payable immediately; delinquent January 15th next.

THE HEADQUARTERS.—Johnny Irwin, so long known as the chief mixologist at the Aldine Saloon, assumes the management of the Headquarters to-day.

TOYS.—L. Wood has on hand a large assortment of new toys for the holidays—funny things that will amuse the big babies as well as mamas' pet.

BENTON, Cal., Dec. 12.

MESSRS. EDITORS—If the readers of THE INDEPENDENT have noted the late delinquency of your Rural Jacob, he rises for an explanation—i. e.: After the election times took a relapse, and business of every kind was dull. No one had ambition enough left to get killed or to raise an excitement. So you see the source of noteworthy items was exhausted.

THE MINING INTERESTS

Continue to loom up, however, and every day develops something in the mines of the Blind Springs District which is very encouraging to the owners. Deposits of the "black-metallic substance" are being taken out, sacked up, locked up and guarded with the greatest vigilance, and in these critical times considered altogether too valuable to bet on the election.

A RICH MINE.

John Tregembo, of the Tower mine, had a crushing of five tons of ore which assayed $700 per ton, and says he has plenty left. There are other locations in the vicinity of the Tower mine which are now being worked and considered equally as good.

THE COMANCHE MILL

Has been shut down for a few days, owing to the placing of a new hoisting engine on the mine, which renders the raising of ore impracticable.

BUSINESS.

Business is improving; stores are receiving their Winter supplies, and the town is full of freight teams. Saturday evening five large teams arrived, loaded with goods and machinery. Farmers from Bishop Creek are arriving daily with grain, flour and other produce, for which they generally find purchasers at fair prices. Last evening two more large teams arrived, with goods principally for the Chinamen and Finch & Co., the latter of whom have started a store here and are doing a very good business.

BUILDING

Continues active, and new ones are in progress. Harbin is just completing a large and commodious lodging house; Yaney an office, Roberts a dwelling and Mr. Howell a fire-proof warehouse. The demand for lumber is constantly increasing, and our local saw mill is running to its fullest capacity; yet at this rate of demand its stock will be exhausted before Spring.

JUSTICE'S COURT.

Business in Judge Cross' Court has has been quite active for the past few weeks, taxing the Judge's patience to a considerable extent. Yesterday he was hearing a case in which the charges were "assault with deadly weapons with intent to kill." The plaintiff could find no witnesses; two were examined for the defendant, one of whom swore he was so effectually inebriated he did not know what was going on; the other swore he was drawing a picture on the bar and did not think the row worthy of any attention. The prisoner was discharged.

HEALTH

As a general thing is good, with no sickness except a case of mountain fever and a few of neuralgia and sore throat. An old resident and fellow townsman by the name of Jacob Brown was summoned to that bourne from whence no traveler returns, on Saturday evening last, and was followed to his grave by a goodly number of friends and acquaintances. Mr. Brown was born in North Carolina, and raised in Tennessee, near Chattanooga; he was a soldier in the Mexican war—and with this reference endeth the earthy mention of a practical supporter of the American Republic.

A teamster by the name of Fish was struck with paralysis on Sunday night at Mr. Shaw's, Adobe Meadows. Mr. Fish had been to Benton with a load of freight, and was on his road back to Carson. The stage driver reports that he was perfectly helpless and speechless.

BORN—On Saturday evening, December 5, to the wife of J. C. Modie, a Democrat.

PERSONAL.

Nobody married, but a great many would like to be these cold nights—Rural Jacob, for instance. Frank Almon has just returned from Bishop Creek; he thinks his chances good at the hotel. John McBride has returned from the States; he says people in New York asked him if anybody else besides Jones carries on mining.

RURAL JACOB.

P. S.—In perusing your paper this morning I notice a card from Mr. Owen Farrell, foreman of the Comanche mine, but as I had nothing to do with the "Queer Complaint" matter I will have but little to say either way. But at the time the "complaint" was written there was at least one person working at the Comanche whose presence at the dining table would be very objectionable to the average of the almond-eyed Celestials. R. J.

A TRAIN in India recently encountered a herd of elephants that were advancing along the track. The leading elephant, a huge tusker, was apparently enraged by the whistle, and charged the advancing train. There was a tremendous concussion; the elephant was knocked off to one side, mutilated and writhing, and the train after a series of violent jolts, which nearly threw it off the line, came to a standstill against the bodies of two other animals of the herd. No material damage was done, the boss elephant was shot by a passenger, and the rest of the herd scampered off in a bewildered sort of a condition.

CURIOUS DISCOVERY.—Last Tuesday the fossil bones of two animals, evidently of the rodent species and about the size of the largest kind of squirrels, were discovered in the Richmond mine at the depth of 290 feet from the surface, and imbedded in the center of a solid body of ore. How and when they got there is a question for scientists to solve. The bones are in a good state of preservation, and anyone desirous of examining them can do so by calling at the office of Mr. Potts, the foreman of the mine.—Eureka Sentinel, Dec. 7.

The Trick on Robbins.

James Robbins, of National avenue, has been missing for three days, but there is no anxiety around his house to learn his fate. His wife knows what caused him to disappear, and she is willing to let him get a good ready to come back. Robbins married a lone widow about four months ago, and they had not been wedded two weeks when he gave her a beating. She overlooked it then, thinking he would tone down, but in a week more he blacked her eyes. In brief, Robbins turned out to be a brute of a husband, and the ex-widow had the sympathy of the neighbors. She is said to be meek and humble in spirit, and Robbins had no excuse for his brutality. Four or five days ago he knocked her down and started off up town, and the wife crawled over to the butcher's to see about having Robbins arrested. The butcher, who weighs one hundred and ninety pounds and has a fist like a maul, knew a better way than going to the police, and he unfolded a plan.

When Robbins reached home that evening the house was dark, and the butcher, dressed in woman's clothes and his jaws tied up, sat in the rocking chair.

The butcher groaned again.

"You feel too high toned to answer me, do you!" growled the wife-beater. "Well, we'll see about that. Just take this, will you!"

He struck out, but the disguised butcher caught his wrist, sprang up, and there was fun in that cottage. He choked Robbins almost to death, tied him up in hard knots and untied him, drew him around by the heels and hair, and finally picked him up and tossed him over the fence into the mud. The wife-beater had kept up a steady yelling from the first attack, and as he arose from the mud and sped down the street he seemed to think that Sitting Bull's whole fighting force were after him. At 11 o'clock that night he entered a Michigan avenue saloon, and told a story about six men robbing him, and half an hour later, as he was prowling around a shed to find a place to sleep, a policeman heard him saying:

"Nose smashed, eyes bunged up, sore throat, bruised all over, and awful sleepy! What a deceiving person a widow woman is!"—Detroit Free Press.

"Loco" in Horses.

It has been almost universally believed that this so-called disease in horses was induced by eating a weed, which is found in some places in this county, but much more plentifully on Kern Island, and known by the Spanish name of "loco weed." The disease causes the animal to seemingly lose his intelligence, his appetite and ordinary instincts, growing poor and worthless and wandering aimlessly about if permitted to do so. A few weeks since Mr. Ashton, of Tule river, had a couple of horses locoed. They had not been out of his pasture, and no loco weed was to be found growing there. Another cause was sought for and found, and it is believed this discovery is of great importance, as it is destined to save thousands of dollars' worth of stock in this county alone, and many thousands more to stock owners throeghout the State. The seat of the disease has been considered to be in the head or brain, and here Mr. Ashton commenced his investigations. The horse would hardly permit his head to be touched, but when it came to feeling into his ear, with good horse sense he showed his master he was on the right track by holding still. Here was the secret. One after another Mr. Ashton brought out a sort of bug, or ear tick, with about half a dozen legs. A large number were found in the ears of both horses, which speedily recovered their wonted spirits when relieved of these pests. Several tests made at Merrill's drug store for a vermin ointment resulted in finding that a mixture of one drop of carbolic acid to thirty of sweet oil, mixed and placed in the ear would immediately kill the ticks without doing injury to the horse.—Visalia Delta.

Some Funny Things.

Self-possession is ten points of the law.

The man who travels in a plaid suit is leading a checkered life. P. S.—That is a hit at Tweed now that he plays checkers with his nose.

What is that which flies high, flies low, has no feet, yet wears shoes? Dust.

The gambler is child-like in his ways, and wants some one to play with him.

In Norway drunkards are compelled to sweep the streets. It is to their interest to keep the gutters clean.

It is not in good taste to allow the child to sit upon the table, even if it is teething.

Why is dancing like new milk? Because it makes you look warm (lukewarm), and because it strengthens the calves.

"Did you do nothing to resusitate the body?" was recently asked of a witness at a Coroner's inquest. "Yes, sir; we searched the pockets," was the reply.

"Oh, she was a jewel of a wife," said Pat, mourning over the death of his better half; "she always struck me wid the soft end of the mop."

"Come, doctor, it's 10 o'clock; I think we had better be going, for it's time honest folks were at home." "Well, yes," was the reply, "I must be off, but you needn't go on that account."

CALIFORNIA'S BEST PRODUCTION.

The Great Cathartic and Regulator.

Purely a Vegetable Compound!

Harmless but Powerful!

MESSRS. WILLIAMS & CO.—GENTLEMEN: It is with pleasure I indorse your YERBA BUENA BITTERS. I have never found such instant and permanent relief as from the use of your most invaluable compound. I have been subjected to costiveness and a torpid liver for five years, and am now entirely cured, after using only two bottles of your YERBA BUENA. I am certain that it was YERBA BUENA that cured me of the palpitation of the heart. I am happy to state through the use of your BITTERS I am a well man. All wishing to be convinced of the above, I will give you my residence: 209 Liedesdorff street, San Francisco. JOHN R. STERRE.

MESSRS. H. WILLIAMS & Co.: Dear Sirs—As long as I can remember, I have been troubled with Pin Worms, and at times felt as if I was being devoured alive. Early in March, 1875, I was induced to use your YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and within One Month I was entirely cured. I have not been troubled with them since, and am satisfied that I am PERMANENTLY cured. I think it is the best preparation for Constipation and Billious Troubles known.

A. B. HOWARD,
No. 12 Quincy street, San Francisco.

I take pleasure in recommending the YERBA BUENA BITTERS. I have used three bottles and found more relief from them than anything I have ever used. I had been troubled with Constipation of the Bowels, Torpid Liver and general debilty for a long time, and found no relief until the YERBA BUENA BITTERS cured me.

S. BROOKS, Petaluma.

Seeking health on the Pacific Coast, my attention was called to Dr. Warren's YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and took some for headache, which cured me so perfectly that I bought a bottle and have not taken any other medicine since. It is a perfect cure for any derangement of the stomach or constipation, and I recommend it before any other medicine, as it leaves the system in a healthy state and no dieting is necessary. Please send your Bitters all over the world, for it will be a blessing to humanity beyond the power of words to express. I write you freely and from actual experience CYRUS CUMMINGS,

PROSPECTUS.

ST. NICHOLAS

THE THIRD VOLUME OF THIS INCOMPARABLE Magazine is now completed. With its 800 royal octavo pages, and its 600 illustrations, its splendid serials, its shorter stories, poems and sketches, etc., in its beautiful binding of red and gold, it is the most splendid gift book for boys and girls ever issued from the press. Price, $4; in full gilt, $5.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR 1877

Which opens with November, 1876, begins a short and very entertaining serial from the French, "The Kingdom of the Greedy," a story adapted to the Thanksgiving season. Another serial, of absorbing interest to boys, "His Own Master," by J. T. Trowbridge, author of the "Jack Hazard Stories," begins in the Christmas Holiday Number, together with "The Boys of My Boyhood," by William Cullen Bryant, Christmas stories, lively sketches, poems, pictures, etc.

During the year there will be interesting papers for boys, by William Cullen Bryant, John G. Whittier, Thomas Hughes, William Howitt, Dr. Holland, George Macdonald, Sanford B. Hunt, Frank R. Stockton and others.

There will be stories, sketches and poems of special interest to girls, by Harriet Prescott Spofford, Susan Coolidge, Sarah Winter Kellogg, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Louisa Alcott, Lucretia P. Hale, Celia Thaxter, Mary Mapes Dodge and many others. There will also be "Twelve Sky Pictures," by Prof. Proctor, the astronomer, with maps, showing "The Stars of Each Month," which will be likely to surpass in interest any series on popular science recently given to the public.

AMUSEMENT and INSTRUCTION, with FUN and FROLIC, and WIT and WISDOM, will be mingled as heretofore, and ST. NICHOLAS will continue to delight the young and give pleasure to the old.

"ST. NICHOLAS is full of the choicest things. The publishment is, in all respects, the best of its kind. We have never yet seen a number that was not surprisingly good"—The Churchman, Hartford, Conn.

"There is no magazine for the young that can be said to equal this choice publication of Scribner's press. All the articles, whether in prose or rhyme, are throbbing with vitality. * * The literature and artistic illustrations are both superb."—The London Literary World.

"We wish we could point out its equal in our own periodical literature."—London Daily News.

Good News for Boys and Girls.

To meet the demand for a cheaper ST. NICHOLAS Gift-Book, the price of vols. I and II has been reduced to $3 each. The three volumes, in an elegant library case, are sold for $10 (in full gilt, $15) so that all may give their children a complete set. These volumes contain more attractive material than fifty dollars' worth of the ordinary children's books.

Subscription price, $3 a year. The three bound volumes and a subscription for this year, only $12. Subscribe with the nearest news dealer, or send money in check, or postoffice money order, or in registered letter, to

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 7.

MESSRS. EDITORS—The political situation and the proceedings of Congress in relation thereto continue the absorbing topic of the hour. Nothing of special importance transpired in the Senate on the opening day. Yesterday, after prayers, the thirty-fifth rule requiring selection of standing and select committees by ballot was suspended, and the committees were announced. Mr. Withers, of Virginia, then offered a resolution asking the President to inform the Senate why troops had been sent to Petersburg, Virginia, on the day of the last election. This elicited much discussion, participated in by Messrs. Morton, Logan, Edmunds, Thurman and Withers, and was finally agreed to. The Chair then laid before the Senate a message from the President, inclosing the report of Senator Sherman and others who visted New Orleans on his invitation, with a copy of most of the testimony taken before the returning Board relative to the election in Louisiana. A long debate followed a motion to print and lay it on the table, which continued to the hour of adjournment. The affairs of Louisiana were pretty thoroughly ventiliated, and if Mr. Sherman can establish by reliable evidence his allegations of yesterday, the interference of the proper authorities in behalf of the peaceful practice of the right of suffrage could seem to be not only justified but demanded by every consideration of law and humanity. But we have yet to hear from the other side.

The organization of the House was witnessed by crowded galleries. Immediately after Mr. Adams had called the House to order Mr. Banks moved the admission of Colorado's Representative, that he might participate in the election of Speaker, while Mr. Holman had made a motion to complete the organization of the House. The Clerk decided in Mr. Holman's favor, when Mr. Randall was elected Speaker by a vote of 161 votes to 82 for Mr. Garfield and 3 scattering. During the debate at the opening the Democrats made it evident that Colorado's recognition as a State would be stoutly opposed by that side.

Before adjournment the Speaker invited the attacks of the Republican side by a ruling which it was claimed was a violation of both rule and precedent.

The only matter of special interest on Tuesday was with reference to a correction of the record so as to make it appear that Mr. Plaisted, of Maine, voted in the negative on the motion to appoint committees to visit Louisiana, South Carolina and Florida, where he was reported as not voting. The Speaker ruled that the correction should be made, thus defeating the motion, as it only had one vote in its favor above the number necessary to its passage. But the record of a Democrat who voted affirmatively and was reported as not voting, was also corrected, and with the casting vote of the Speaker secured the appointment of the committees.

Yesterday was principally consumed in the House in discussing the special message and accompanying documents, Fernando Wood making a fierce attack on the President, which was loudly applauded on this side of the House. Mr. Cox was also rather caustic in his comments. It is too late, the situation too grave, for a continuation of the partisan policy that the people of this country regret to see has been inaugurated by the House majority; and they unite in the hope that the wisest, most prudent and conservative of both parties may come to the front in the House and Senate, and send to the rear the noisy and injudicious. The overshadowing importance of the events of this session in the minds of Congressmen is illustrated in their departure from old customs, a large majority having come to the National Capital this Winter bringing very few bills for special legislation or of a private character. They say their constituents forgot their local wants, or agreed that they could not receive any attention this Winter.

Ex-Senator Schurz, John B. Henderson and other prominent men of St. Louis have forwarded a letter to the President of the Senate, requesting that he submit it to that body. It proposes that Congress devote the time intervening between this and Christmas in framining and agreeing to a Constitutional amendment transferring the duty of canvassing the electoral vote to the Supreme Court. Both the candidates would, they urge, recognize its wisdom, and the State Legislatures would ratify it.

Rumor says that a Democratic organ is to be soon established here, under the management of Messrs. Manton Marble, Montgomery Blair, Jeremiah Black and Ivory Chamberlain. W. W. Corcoran, of this city, is mentioned as capitalist, and it is well he is amply able to supply the cash, for the starting of a newspaper here, judging by the numerous failures of the past few years, is a hazardous enterprise.

The extradition treaty between this country and England which failed to secure the return of Brent, the Louisville forger, and Gray and Winslow of Boston, accused of the same crime, has been arranged to the satisfaction of both governments, and as a result some or all of those parties have been arrested and will be brought home for trial.

According to the New York World, Secretary Fish indignantly denied the truth of the reports of his hostility to the President's southern policy. On the contrary, he avows himself as in full sympathy and accord with it.

SAXON.

The Little People.

[On the express train—little Eddie, four years old, inclined to be obstreperous]. Mother—"If you don't behave yourself the engine will eat you up."

Mother subsides, and a lively titter all through the cars.

A teacher fainted the other evening, and a little girl, describing it at home, said: "She was so fainted they couldn't come her to."

"Whom do you like best, Aunt Jane or Aunt Mary?" asked a little Miss. "Oh, Aunt Mary, of course, 'cause she keeps the cookies on the lower shelf."

"What did the Puritans come to this country for?" asked a Massachusetts teacher of his class. "To worship in their own way and make other people do the same," was the reply.

A boy was much exercised for fear he wouldn't know his father when he got to Heaven. His mother eased him by saying, "All you will have to do is to look for an angel with a red nose."

A few Sundays since in one of our Sabbath schools, a teacher was approached by a little fellow, who said: "Miss ——, Jimmy swore; he said a bad word." "What did he say?" inquired the anxious teacher. "Oh, I don't like to say it, it's wicked; but I'll write it on the blackboard."

One of the teachers in a Sunday school was badly "stumped," Sunday afternoon. He told the infant class he was teaching they might ask him any question they pleased. He was gratified by a seven year-old girl, who immediately piped out, "Who's elected?" He couldn't tell.

Modes of Adjustment.

Three modes of adjustment of our present national difficulties have already been suggested.

1. The possibility in the event of a failure of the Electoral College or the House to elect a President, that the President of the Senate may become the President of the United States, in which case another election would have to be held next November. If that be the course of the future, it might be possible for Congress and the State Legislatures to to establish in the meantime such rules and regulations that a perfectly fair election would be certain to be held.

2. An amendment to the Constitution to be at once proposed and rushed through the State Legislatures before the middle of February next, conferring on the Supreme Court the power of canvassing the vote for President of the United States. This suggestion has emanated from Carl Schurz. But there is a question as to its constitutionality. Canvassing a vote is an executive function. Can the Supreme Court exercise it under the well-known division of the powers of Government? [In this particular "Government" they can, if the aforesaid "well-known division" is specially upset by the formal adoption of a new fundamental law on the subject—EDS. INDEPENDENT.]

3. A proposition to hold next May a convention at Columbus, Ohio, to revise the Constitution of the United States. No doubt there is some work of this kind to be done, if a convention free from partisan bias could be got together. But such a step would have no effect upon the existing complications, though it would be possible for it to indicate plain sailing for some future period.

These three propositions are radical in their nature and cover the field. Whatever others are made will necessarily be modifications of either one or the other.—S. F. Bulletin.

Mark Twain's Grub Mill.

Having lately opened a hashery, I send you these, my rules and regulations:

This house will be considered strictly intemperate.

None but the brave deserve the fare.

Persons owing bills for board will be bored for bills.

Boarders who do not wish to pay in advance, are requested to advance and pay.

Sheets will be nightly changed once in six months, or more if necessary.

Boarders are requested to wait on colored cooks—for meals.

Double boarders can have two beds with a room in it, or two rooms with a bed in it, as they choose,

All moneys and other valuables are to be left in the care of the proprietor. This is to be insisted on, as he will be responsible for no other losses.

Inside matters will not be furnished editors under any consideration.

Relatives coming to make a six mouths' visit, will be welcomed; but when they bring half their household furniture, virtue will cease to be a forbearance.

Beds with or without board.

Dreams will be charged for by the dozen.

Nightmares hired out at reasonable rates.

Stone vaults will be furnished to snoring boarders, and the proprietor will in no wise be responsible for the broken tin-pan-ums of other ears.

M. TWAIN, Prop'r.

He came back to his mother, looking very forlorn, with a big red swelling under his left eye, and four or five handfuls of torn shirt boiling over his breeches band. "Why, where on earth have you been?" she asked. "Me and Johnny's been a playin'. He played he was a pirate, and I played I was a duke. Then he put on airs, and I got mad—" "Yes, yes!" interupted his mother, her eyes flashing, "and you didn't flinch?" "No, mother; but the pirate licked."

PACHECO VS. WIGGINTON.—Following is a synopsis of the Record-Union's account of the latest phase of the above contest: Pacheco, through his attorneys, Haymond & Coggins, went before Judge Denson, Sixth District Court, and sued out a writ of prohibition and a writ of mandate, both directed to the Secretary of State: the first recites the facts in relation to the mistake made by the Monterey Board of Supervisors in counting 29 votes in Lorenzo precinct for Wigginton when the returns both in words and figures showed but 27; that the Clerk had a perfect legal right to correct any arithmetical error in adding up; that if he had certified to their being correct, knowing they were not, he would have committed a felony; that his second certificate in obedience to the mandate from the Twelfth District Court does not certify the amended returns to be correct, but simply the fact that the Board had stated them to be so; that this second certificate could in nowise affect the right of the contestant to his certificate to which he was shown to be entitled by the original certified return and official canvass, etc. The other writ commanded the Secretary to issue a certificate of election to Pacheco according to the official canvass, which gave the only true returns for the county and precinct in question. Whether Wigginton will make any further contest in the matter is yet unknown.

MEXICO.—Several merchants, who reached New Orleans on the 16th, from the interior of Mexico, confirm the news of the capture of Lerdo, the death of Escobeda, and the capture of the city of Mexico by Gen. Diaz. Iglesais, from Leon, ordered him to hold the city, and proclaim him (Iglesais) Emperor, which Diaz declined to do unless he could name four members of the Cabinet. This was refused by Iglesais, when Diaz proclaimed himself provisional President, and a revolution is now in progress between these rival pretenders. Gen. Revuellas still holds Matamoraa, and refuses all communication with the revolutionary chiefs until some one of them can show proper authority from Iglesais to demand the place, which none of them has; he positively refuses any communication with the cutthroat bandit, Cortina.

A NEW SMELTING PROCESS.—Advices from Lima, Peru, state that a new process for smelting ore has been tested in that country, with very encouraging results. It varies from the common method only in the substitution of crude petroleum and superheated steam in lieu of ordinary fuel. The heat generated is said to be immense. Experiments so far with refractory ores, both copper and silver, are very successful. The process requires much less time than the ordinary one, and a larger percentage of valuable metal is saved, little being lost by volitilization, the heat being so quick and intense.

THEY have a little Returning Board row in Arizona, the trouble being over Delegate to Congress. Some precincts have been thrown out, thereby placing Hardy ahead of Stevens. We don't hear that it was on account of bull-dozing.

IT is now reported that Tom Scott has broken faith with Huntington, and that the war on the Texas Pacific railroad bill will be more bitter than ever.

A NEW LEAF.

Our cotemporary at Darwin, the Coso Mining News, has for several issues past appeared only as a half-sheet, for the reason that the indifference of patrons about paying up promptly would not permit the necessary outlay to produce the regular paper. As a matter of course both outsiders and insiders would naturally conclude the camp was in a nowise flourishing condition when its representative newspaper was compelled to haul in canvas because it couldn't raise wind enough to justify a spread. But the failure of the camp thus implied was nothing more or less than the failure to "pay up" by reason of the temporary scarcity of money, together with the shortsighted indifference of business men, whose every interest demanded extra efforts at such times to maintain appearances for the sake of the future, in accordance with their honest convictions as to the intrinsic merits of the undoubted resources of the district. If these parties would not exert themselves to some extent to this end, then the News, as the business barometer and reflector of Darwin, did just right in adopting the safety course for its own sake.

The actual expenses or outgoes of a newspaper establishment never vary between flush and hard times. If a financial stringency cuts down its income below the outgo—a very common matter for all newspapers—then one of three alternatives must be accepted: either reduce size and expenses accordingly, suspend in toto, or run for a time on credit. The latter plan is too often adopted, so as to "keep up appearances" for the sake of itself and the locality it represents. As intimated, we think the News adopted the wiser course in refusing to carry a load of this kind, when so unnecessarily imposed.

Perhaps even-handed justice to itself would have warranted a similar course on the part of THE INDEPENDENT—and but for its thorough knowledge of the vast natural wealth of the county, coupled with a firm belief that an era of development is close at hand, it would have suspended altogether. But since it has never been prone to growl at the amount of patronage dispensed to its subscription, advertising and job departments, it will not now step out of its usual plane to do so; nevertheless, it has packed a heavy load—and why? Because the matter of prompt, cash payments has never been the practice of but a very small proportion of our patrons. Differing from other business vocations in this respect, the practical newspaper publisher has the least time to devote to hunting up a small army of small debtors than any one else, for the reason that—in order to attain final success—his every working hour must be devoted to the regularly recurring round of mental and mechanical drudgery. If the newspaper's debtors do not receive a personal presentation of accounts it by no means follows that the money is not wanted. Further, where a paper, whatever may be its ability, is conscientiously striving for the best interests of its section (and consequently itself) it ought to be a matter of pride for every citizen to plank up his bills with the smallest amount of trouble to the publisher, always bearing in mind the well-established fact that the newspaper never fails to render value for value, measure for measure.

Under the caption of this article, the News announces the resumption of its full size upon the beginning the New Year, with a "new leaf" turned over to the general effect that no paper will leave the office, and no advertisements inserted until paid for. The latter system is undoubtedly the only correct one, and as soon as possible THE INDEPENDENT proposes to follow suit—must do it.

RESENTENCED. — John McDonald, who, as many of our readers will remember, threw a knife at his wife and killed her with her child in her arms, in Los Angeles about two years ago, now, after a third trial, goes to the State Prison for life—and gets off very cheap at that. He escaped on his first trial because he was indicted for murdering Louisa instead of Eliza McDonald, his wife. The second trial also failed of conviction by reason of some similar technicality.

THE daughter-in-law of Gen. Jackson has been forced by her financial needs to part with vuluable mementoes which were collected by her while she lived at the White House. She is now living at the Hermitage, near Nashville, Tennessee. She married the General's adopted son, and was the constant friend and companion of the President.

A FEW month's ago the trade dollar was a glut in the market at ten per cent discount below other other current silver coin. It is now, when it is no longer a legal tender in any amount, three per cent premium over said coin.

SOMEBODY suggests that the thing to do is to put the Presidency into the hands of a receiver, with power to run the concern and collect the debts.

THE ECLIPSE PROPERTY—BULLION SHIPMENTS.

For the English reputation of Inyo mines it has been the good fortune of one of them—the Eclipse—to have secured for itself a management by a man whose mining education has been gained in the hard school of practical experience peculiar to this coast. We are, of course, alluding to Superintendent Joseph Eudey, whose faith in the ultimate success of the mine and mill seems to have been no less than the great difficulties he has had to overcome since taking charge of them. One of the chief hinderances to success has been the distrust thrown around the property by the almost complete failures of several former managements, together with the fact that the owners are in a distant quarter of the globe. From a close personal examination we have heretofore classed the Eclipse as one of the largest and most permanent gold mines in the State, and while severely criticising the previous costly, un-American and abortive attempts to reduce the ores, have always held that a complete success was perfectly practicable. As in part an indorsement of our judgment, it is certainly a pleasure to record at least the partial success of Capt. Eudey's comprehensive and careful management, differing so widely from that of his predecessors—who thought it necessary to import a crazy, costly and utterly useless milling apparatus from Liverpool; to go into the folly of building a furnace and erecting rattletrap "improvements" with no object discernible to an outsider save that of spending money.

However, as an earnest of future promise of the property as now conducted, we present the following statements of its shipments of bullion, which is classed on the books of Harris & Rhine, the receiving bankers here, as Doré bars:

1876.	OUNCES.	VALUE.
February 2	335	1,677.20
April 6	512	1,798.44
May 4	748	786.92
October 2	648	3,293.00
November 3	465	3,680.89
December 5	868	4,209.00

—Making a gross total for the year of $18,346 02. The steady increase which is notable in the fineness or value of the bullion kept even pace with the mill's improved facilities for saving the fine, but free, gold; while the interruptions in the shipments were due to the time occupied in putting in such additional machinery. But the gold in the first crushings is not really lost, as the tailings have been carefully saved and are undergoing oxidization for future working.

It will be seen that, though the necessary improvements are still very incomplete, enough has been shown to assure a complete success whenever the milling appliances are made sufficient and perfect. The Company heretofore have run a battery of 20 stamps only, which Capt. Eudey is about increasing to 30; but to work the ores which the mine is abundantly able to furnish 100 stamps or even more could be profitably employed, more especially since the mill's motive power—water—is costless and practically unlimited. As instancing one cause of the Company's mishaps and delays, we may mention the rickety tramway from the mine (a relic of the Tregellis management), which has been subject to the constant repairs incidental to a wooden-rail structure of the kind. To fit it with iron T-rails would, in a short time, save to to the Company its total cost by avoiding the expensive delays which the present affair causes. We believe, however that the Eclipse Company are beginning to realize the true value of their property, and will not further delay its successful development by economy which seems as misguided as former lavishness.

THE Eureka Sentinel says that John D. Lee, the Mountain Meadows bulldozer, will be counted out in less than sixty days, and pass to that undiscovered country whence returns of any kind are unknown. [Notwithstanding it's just the place for Returning Boards and committees from the North of national reputation with duties to perform.]

A NEW APPOINTMENT.—Ex-Congressman Wm. Higby has been appointed Internal Revenue Collector for the First District of California, in place of John Sedgwick, who tendered his resignation some time ago. Higby is a lawyer and said to be peculiarly well fitted for his new position.

A SURVEY is being made for an extension of the Virginia and Truckee railroad from Carson to Genoa, and with the view of its ultimate extension still further south wherever timber and fuel for the Comstock can be obtained.

TO BE HUNG.—Judge Rising, at Virginia City, has sentenced James Harrington, who murdered John C. Sullivan, to be hung on the 9th of February.

MAJOR BARLOW, who was to assume command of the Abysinian army, has been stopped and prevented from doing so by the Khedive of Egypt.

A CORRESPONDENT of the New York Herald writes that recent indications show almost conclusively that in the contest about to be waged in Congress over the Presidential succession, Mr. Tilden will receive very strong aid from the action of Senator Conkling. The statement of Dewitt C. West that Conkling was preparing to deal with this subject, has received additional significance from a theory developed to-day by a prominent member of the Electoral College, that the unexpectedly sharp tone of Gov. Seymour's address on taking the chair is a preface to a similar line of argument to be made by Conkling in the United States Senate. Seymour and Conkling are brothers-in-law, with intimate personal relations, unmarred by political disagreement. They both live in Utica, and consult frequently with one another relative to measures of importance to the country where partisan prejudices are not in the way. Conkling has been reticent throughout the campaign, and is believed by his friends to have very serious and well grounded grievances against the Republican leaders who ran the late campaign, and that he has aspirations for the succession, four years hence, and does not like the idea of entering upon a campaign at that time with the cry of "a change" still unsatisfied, and the additional burden of an apparent stigma of a possible fraud in the attainment of the Presidency resting upon his party.

It is believed he will make so strong an argument against the reception of the votes of the three Southern States that the Senate may consent to throw them out. That, it is urged, would give the party a good record, restore peace and, at the same time, divide the honors by giving the Republicans the Vice Presidency and the Presidency to the Democrats. This correspondent further states that the report that Mr. Conkling is preparing a very strong speech upon the matter comes from so direct a source that its truth cannot be doubted.

SOMEBODY has started the yarn that Tilden was not born in the United States, and is therefore not eligible to the Presidency. Now, he was there at the time of the borning, and, long ago as it was, ought to know; but if he don't, and there remain doubts about it let the Joint Committee of Investigation have power to send for Susan B., who ought to have a distinct recollection of such important events occurring anywheres in this country during the present century. True, it was Tilton and not Tilden whom she dandled on her knee, or vice versa, but that circumstance need not materially detract from her value as a witness before a Congressional Investigating Committee, who generally have majority and minority reports fixed up before they call witnesses.

THE Silver Commission, appointed by the last Congress to examine into the silver question and report, will favor the double standard—that is silver to be a legal tender the same as gold. Bland's bill, which lately passed the House and is now pending in the Senate, anticipates the report of the Commission inasmuch as it also places silver dollars on an equality with gold in payment of debts.

A STATE CONVENTION of Democrats will be held in Indianapolis on the 8th of January to decide whether to run up and stand by the flag, "Tilden or fight." Some eleven Congressional districts have pronounced in favor of the plan of action indicated by that motto, and much excitement exists throughout the State. Meantime an address to the people will be issued.

AWHILE ago it was "bull-dozing" in the South; now it is "bull-dogging" in the North, where the politicians have nabbed the people by the scruff of the neck and are shaking them up to a fighting pitch before letting go, as "sports" do with good natured dogs.

THE Moody and Sankey revival meetings in Chicago, which have been attended with very great success, were to close to-morrow.

THERE is talk of removing the Nevada State Prison from Carson to Reno.

THERE is something in a name, Shakespeare's wisdom all the same. Twelve years ago an Illinois farmer and his wife moved to Denver, Col., and were so favorably impressed with the new country that they named their daughter Great Prospects. The child has been true to her name, for she is of abnormal size—a great strapping twelve-year-old, known among the neighbors under the diminutive of Specks, and she is said to be engaged to a man who has successfully reared 37 children. The birth of another daughter, not long ago, gave the parents another chance for the display of originality in nomenclature, and they improved it. The names of Illinois and Colorado were reversed, and the young miss is doomed to work out her destiny under the title of Sionilli Odaroloc.

THE Governor of Oregon, and Secretary Chadwick have been summoned to Washington by the Senate Committee on Elections to tell what they think of the Croninizing method of electing Presidents.

Presidential Elections.

COMMUNICATED.

Owing to the blunders and troubles attending the present election of a President, the question has arisen, "Is it not possible to so amend the Constitution of the United States so that elections may be more honestly and satisfactorally conducted?" It seems strange that so many cases are before the public where ineligible persons occupy the positions of Electors in direct opposition to the Constitution. Through unpardonable stupidity of this kind comes the disgraceful Oregon muddle, which, it cannot be denied, is fraught with grave importance to the whole nation. Politics must indeed be at a low ebb when a citizen aspires to the office of Presidential elector, who is so ignorant of the laws of the country as not to know whether he is eligible or not. We have certainly departed from the original interpretation of the Constitution, for at the beginning the Electors were chosen by the State Legislature. In 1788 the Legislature of Virginia divided the State into electoral districts, each division electing its own Presidential Elector; the other States followed the example of Virginia, or instead, selected the Electors by the aggregate vote of the State. But considered in any light at all, the existing practice of election is a farce, and aside from that, it is quite apparent that the President is not elected by popular suffrage. In America we consider the plurality vote as the choice of the people at all elections, but it can easily be shown that in case of there being only two candidates, the one receiving the highest number can be defeated; for instance, suppose Mr. Lincoln had received the whole votes of Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin, amounting to 2,662,956—a majority of all the votes cast in the Union; yet he would have been signally defeated by the candidate receiving but a plurality of the votes of the other States. His electoral vote would have been 133 and against him 170. It must be remembered that the like of this did take place in 1860. Mr. Breckenridge carried by plurality nine States of the South, in which Mr. Lincoln did not receive a single vote. And further we may add to the proposition—a vote in other States amounted to 1,000,000, making a total of 3,662,956, and yet he would have been defeated by his opponent with a vote of but 999,-204. Organized as our nation was, by sovereign States, it would have been better to have adhered to the mode formerly pursued in the elections of earlier Presidents. It would have been still better to have abandoned all State sovereignties and to have made the States the creatures of the general government, each holding and enjoying delegated instead of vested powers; but the States would never have agreed to the creation of such a consolidated nation? In that case the people might have voted directly for the President: now we vote for a list of Electors selected by ambitious political partisans. If the Union is ever destroyed, the fall will be attributed to the machinations of political demagogues, who slaughter patriotism for the consummation of their own sinister aims. CERRO GORDO.

The Democratic Legislature of South Carolina proclaimed Wade Hampton the duly elected Governor of that State, and he was inaugurated accordingly. The same body also elected M. C. Butler, of Hamburg fame, United States Senator. The Republican body elected United States District Attorney Corbin to the same position, and has since voted to adjourn sine die on the 22d (yesterday). These transactions do not improve the general situation in that State.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 23.....1876.

CHRISTMAS DOINGS.—The programme of holiday amusements throughout Inyo indicates that the good people thereof are planning to enjoy the day to the fullest extent. In our own immediate bailiwick due announcement of the days' proceedings will be found appropriately set forth in our advertising columns—the ball, supper and Christmas tree at Bishop, and the programme of the Archery Club at this point. In the case of the former, the proprietor of the Bishop Creek Hotel, where the supper is to be given, avows that the residents in and around Snedenville rather forced him into it, from the fact that the distance to this point—nearly 50 miles—precluded the practicability of many of the dancers and amusement seekers coming down, so that it was decided not to forego the customary Christmas festivities at that place. No doubt the mistletoe bough will be duly honored. Lone Pine, so far as our information goes, joins into the general affair here, without preparations special to itself. For Darwin, the county's best populated town, we have on our table some elegant and superbly printed invitations from the News office, announcing a Christmas ball under the auspices of the F. & A. M. and I. O. O. F. Associations of Darwin, to take place at Reiter's Hall on Monday evening next, the supper being furnished at the Darwin Hotel—ye hostelrie lately purchased by our old friend Al. Wapelhorst. The Invitation Committee shows a list of thirty-six names of prominent gentlemen of that town, indicating the surprising strength of the combined organizations. The affair will doubtless be a happy one, and we regret the impracticability of having a representative present. To-night, at the Masonic Hall building in Independence, old Santa Claus will be personified, surrounded with trees laden with Christmas gifts for those young in years and experience as well as those old in years and—iniquity. Since the toys and bon-bons are for the former class, most of our readers will fail to get anything of that sort. Of the plans of the Archery Club it is now unnecessary to speak—save that when the time comes it will be found that the Committee have been successful in making every possible arrangement to insure a good time generally. At Camp Independence, on Christmas night, occurs the invitation ball and supper given by Company D, at which an INDEPENDENT man hopes to put in an appearance.

PERSONAL.—Mr. John and Mrs. P. Reddy departed a couple of days since for Darwin, where they will probably make their home for the remainder of the Winter—sorry they couldn't remain in civilization till after the holiday fun was past.... Register Briggs has gone on a business call to Benton.... District Attorney Bennett has returned, somewhat improved in health, for which purpose chiefly he took this trip to Sumner.... Jimmy Sharp went to San Francisco some days ago, with the intention of buying silver—at least that is what we hear—and it may be this accounts for the rise in that commodity to 58½ pence in London.... John Broder returned from his extended trip to the other side several days since.... The senior member of the firm of Rothschild & Co., is here on a semi-occasional visit. Mr. Rothschild thinks a bright future for this section was never better assured to the San Francisco mind than at this time.

TO BEGIN.—The Christmas doin's for this burg begin to-night at the Masonic Hall, and will close some time next Tuesday morning at the Court House, and the whole arrangement from beginning to end promises more of general pleasure than any we have ever had here. The modes in the main are unique, the arrangements excellent. The little ones take their benefit early this evening (colics for the epilogue), and it is to be hoped they will have a rouser (benefit, not the other). Old Santa himself will take a leading part, this positively being his last appearance this season.

THE DEFIANCE.—We understand the Defiance furnace, or furnaces, will be started up for a continuous run directly after New Year's, and under such favorable conditions as to leave no doubt but the property will pull through its embarrassments, not only on time, but a month or two to spare. To this end Superintendent Reddy is directing all his energies and best judgment, so we have no doubt the result will be just as intimated.

WEATHER.—No region was ever more favored with agreeable Winter weather than has this so far this season. Yesterday, though, a zephyr from the north kicked up dust enough to make people who like to see things stirring real happy. There was a fair "tracking snow" to be seen on the high mountains the other morning, and that is all the preparations made up to date to supply the valley water-works next Summer.

TAX VOTED.—At the recent election held for the purpose, the qualified electors of Milton School District voted unanimously for the levy and collection of a special tax for the purpose of liquidating the district's indebtedness and providing for an additional two months' school.

MASONIC.—A special meeting of Inyo Lodge, No. 221, F. & A. M., will be held to-night, for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year.

APPOINTMENT.—The Governor has commissioned A. W. Eibeshutz as a Notary Public, to reside in Independence, vice V. A. Gregg.

HOLLIDAY REVERIE.—He that would a turkey eat, must first secure the friend, who'll buy the fowl, cook the meat, and have a dollar to lend.

JIM HAYS.—Such is the name of the cold-blooded murderer of Goodwin, at Tehachepi, the account of which transaction and his pursuit and final capture in Santa Barbara county, together with his lodgment in the Kern county jail, has been given in this paper. It transpires that the sweet-scented duck is not entirely unknown to Inyo, as will appear from the following: About two years ago a fiendish murder occurred on the roadside near Tehachepi, in which the victim was burned to death, his clothing having been saturated with coal-oil. From attendant circumstances suspicion has since pointed strongly to Hays as one of the perpetrators of that diabolical deed. As soon after that transaction as a stolen horse could carry him here Hays arrived at Independence, and from here he soon transferred himself to Bishop Creek. The animal, having been left on Broder's ranch, was after a few months claimed by the real owner—a poor man, to whom Scott Broder gave up the horse without charging ranch fees. In the upper end of the valley Hays worked a little, but was mainly conspicuous as a "rough" around the saloons. He took in the Bishop Creek Hotel for a time, and neglected to liquidate his reckoning; and upon a later occasion he was quietly but most effectually ordered out of the establishment by Swearingen, the proprietor. Some difficulty had also occurred between Hays and J. M. Horton. One day, about the middle of September last, Hays left Hoover's saloon and proceeded to the hotel stable, where were a horse belonging to J. R. Westerville and a saddle and bridle which was the property of a man named Doherty, who was traveling north from this part of the country. These Hays at once put together and appropriated to his own use. Westerville caught the horse by the bit as he was moving off and ordered the rider to dismount, but Hays protested that he was only going a little ways, which was allowed. As the gay cavalier was about passing the saloon, however, he was tackled by the owner of the saddle, who compelled Hays to start back to the stable for the purpose of leaving the rig there. But at that point Hays put spurs to the animal and started at full speed to the upper town of Bishop, by another road. Doherty mounted his horse, bareback, cocked his six-shooter and started in pursuit; but he missed the road and was compelled to return without bagging his game. Arriving at Spencer's store (where he seems to have been on very familiar terms, since he had been given the lock combination of the safe), Hays found the door locked. Immediately bursting in, he proceeded to "heel" himself with a loaded Henry rifle and a six-shooter. On passing out he met a man near the door, on whom he leveled the rifle with the stern command of "You ——————, unhitch that horse and bring him to me!" Under the persuasive influences surrounding him the man did it; and when, after Hays was mounted, the deadly rifle was again brought down on him with the order, "Now run, you ——————!" he also did that. Hays returned to the lower town and put the rig where he got it. He passed out on to the street, and found an expectant crowd standing on the hotel porch, with cocked six-shooters in hand, awaiting developments. A cool parley concerning an immediate shooting match ensued, between Hays and Westerville and Doherty and Hays, in which all parties expressed an entire willingness to participate in the event the ball was opened. But the redoubtable rifle man saw that in such case he would be promptly perforated from several directions, and withdrew to the saloon, where, in the way of simply common amusement, he turned loose a shot or so into the ceiling. Meanwhile Jack Horton, who was to become Hays' "meat" (as did Goodwin, at Tehachepi), had a man engaged loading his shot-gun, but the fellow left this contract to go and see what the shooting was about at the saloon—to which little circumstance is solely due the fact that Hays has lived to enact the principal rolé in a future hanging drama in Kern. However, Jerome Hoover, of the saloon, induced Hays to get into a buggy with him and take the arms back to Spencer's store. It is stated that the man in charge of that establishment, Mr. Owens, not only failed to lodge a complaint against Hays, but furnished him money on which to leave the county. Hays' next public appearance was in the Hoover saloon again, where Jack Horton, although nursing a wounded hand at the time, gave him a sound mauling. District Attorney Galvin, of Tuolumne, will never cease to mourn the fact that during this operation he handed Jack his cane the wrong way—which resulted in splintering the stick without inflicting any very great damage on Hays.

THE VIRGINIA CONSOLIDATED.—A valuable body of ore has been developed recently in prospecting the Virginia Consolidated, on Kearsarge Mountain. Referring, parenthetically, to the name of this mine, the fact is mentionable that it was so called before the greatest silver mine in the world—the bonanza "Con. Virginia"—was consolidated and named, the difference being that the "Con." is tacked on to the reverse end of the "Virginia." The ore deposits revealed by the work done so far promise to figure prominently when operations shall have been resumed in Kearsarge district next Spring. Foreman Edward Chenot was employed to work out the legal, annual assessment on the mine, and at the same time prospect it as thoroughly as his limited force would permit. With four men he was engaged for about a month, and started in on sinking a shaft some 280 feet in from the mouth of the old tunnel; here he sank 26 feet, reaching a depth of 155 feet from the surface. The vein of quartz had become solid, in very well defined walls, and increased rapidly in volume—widening out in the last 10 feet to over 18 inches between walls. In value the ore contains more gold than silver, and the average assay will go up into the hundreds. Mr. Chenot is enthusiastic, but not over demonstrative, and his report and samples of ore will undoubtedly encourage the Company to push the work rapidly forward as soon as the weather permits.

"NO CATCH 'UM TRAIL?"—While sitting around their camp-fire one night this Fall, Lieut. Birney and others of the Wheeler Expedition party, got to talking about Christmas celebrations, etc. The subject excited the curiosity of Jim, the Piute guide, who asked various questions in in relation to the matter, all of which the Lieutenant—who, by the way, is said to be a man of religious training and inclinations—answered with every possible detail calculated to enlighten the mind of the benighted aborigine. In the course of this he explained that Christ, who was the white man's Great Spirit on earth, being a man in the flesh, was put to death by bad men; that his friends took the body and put it in a rock cave on the side of the mountain, against the mouth of which they rolled an immense stone, nearly as big as a house; that three days after the spirits had rolled the stone away; that the dead Savior had come to life, but was nowhere to be found. Jim, most profoundly inspired with the whole story, here but outlined in part, did not wait for the denoument, but in deep and anxious interest as to what had become of the missing Christ, in a quick voice interposed the query "NO CATCH 'UM TRAIL?" A loud laugh around the circle for a moment disconcerted the solemn-vissaged Indian, but the Lieutenant came to his rescue and finally succeeded in making him understand that it was the workings of the Great Spirit himself, and that Christ, His son, afterwards talked to men, and had died for their sake.

MINING CAVE.—Some time last week a couple of miners working on the 150-foot level of the Comanche mine, Benton, were shut off from the outer world by an extensive cave of ore between them and the shaft. A strong force was promptly set to work in extricating them, but which could not be accomplished until after they had been most unwilling prisoners for some 18 hours. They were uninjured however, and used their picks, and even giant pwder, in trying to work out. Another miner met with a fall of 40 feet, and strangely enough got off without a scratch.

BAD-OFF.—Simon Bowden, who met with the terrible experience of freezing his feet during exposure consequent upon a crazy spell, is now at the county hospital perfectly insane. It said that two men are required to watch him, and that Dr. Colleau naturally desires his removal to the county jail. It is also stated that the amputation of one of his feet will be necessary. The case is one demanding a lunatico inquirendi.

OPPOSITION SANTA CLAUS.—Dr. Blair has resolved himself into a sort of an opposition or independent Santa Claus, having taken steps to insure a full Christmas stocking to every toddler in the place, unless, inadvertently, some should be overlooked. He does this all at his own expense, and the outlay will be no trifle.

AT CERRO GORDO.—We understand that Mr. Beaudry has got back to this flowery sage brush land, after his long sojourn among the Canucks. He and Mr. Belshaw both were at Cerro Gordo and Darwin a few days since looking after their extensive mining and other interests.

SPORTING.—Stargo has given away to that delectable game—male horse poker, and the chiks that are chunk and the smiles that are smole amongst the gambling fraternity is something awful to contemplate.

MEMBERS of the Archery Club are advised to take a little arrow root soup just before participating in the contest. It will give the defeated ones courage to bow before the victors.

NORTON.—The slayer of Jimmy Coyle is said to be rapidly regaining health at the County Hospital, Lone Pine. There is considerable commenting going on about the present singular status of this case.

SCARCE.—There is a great scarcity of eggs—none in market at six bits per dozen. Will some religions old hen strain herself to the situation.

TOO LATE—Some advertisements, received this morning, for this issue.

HUMORS OF THE OSTRICH.—Mr. Hellier thus describes a scene he witnessed in an ostrich inclosure belonging to Mr. Douglas, of Hilton, a farm about 12 miles from Graham's Town. "Out of the inclosure given up to the exclusive use of this polygamous family of three, we entered through a locked gate into a large inclosure or paddock, in which were 58 one and two-year-old birds. They all looked exceedingly well, and though they did not dance, they seemed full of life. They do sometimes favor the spectators with a dance, and it is one of the funniest of all the freaks or habits of animals that evidence a sense of the jokeful we ever beheld.

"We once saw some 20 nearly full grown birds waltzing together. They began with a sort of a sidling, slow revolution on their toes, moving their wings gently up and down, and presently they seemed to get into the spirit of the thing, without the aid of any fiddler that we saw, and spun around at a rate that would have astonished any one but a dancing dervish. In dancing they swept round and round without ever coming into contact with each other.—London Spectator.

CURIOUS FRENCH EXPERIMENTS.—A curious as well as interesting series of experiments made in France, show approximately, that the heaviest load a man of strength can carry for a short distance is 319 pounds; all a man can habitually carry, as, for example, a soldier his knapsack, walking on level ground, is 132 pounds, an extreme load it would seem, or he can carry an aggregate of 1,518 pounds over 3,200 feet as a day's work under like circumstances. If he ascend ladders or stairs, as do hod carriers, then he can carry but 121 pounds continuously, and his day's work cannot exceed 1,232 pounds raised 3,200 feet high. With regard to the effort and the velocity with which a man can produce by pulling or pushing with his arms, it has been estimated by these experiments that under the most favorable circumstances, and for continuous work, an effect cannot be gained exceeding from 26.4 to 33 pounds raised from 1.8 to 2.1 feet per second.

A REVOLUTION has broken out in San Domingo, but for the sake of history it should be stated that it is not the same that broke out last week. That one was captured and put in the lock-up before the new one had fairly started.

Great Britain has 75,000,000 of Mussulmen subjects, and is next to Turkey the largest Mussulman power in the world.

Contested Land Cases prosecuted before the U. S. General Land Office and Department of the Interior. Private Land Claims, Mining and Preemption Claims, and Homestead Cases attended to. Land Scrip in 40, 80, and 160 acre pieces for sale. This Scrip is assignable, and can be located in the name of purchaser upon any Government land subject to private entry, at $1 25 per acre. It is of equal value with Bounty Land Warrants. Send stamp to Gilmore & Co., for pamphlet of Instruction.

Arrears of Pay and Bounty.

Officers, Soldiers and Sailors of the late war, or their heirs, are in many cases, entitled to money from the Government of which they have no knowledge. Write full history of service, and state amount of pay and bounty received. Enclose stamp to Gilmore & Co., and a full reply, after examination, will be given you free.

Pensions.

All Officers, Soldiers, and Sailors wounded, ruptured, or injured in the late war, however slightly, can obtain a pension by addressing Gilmore & Co.

Cases prosecuted by Gilmore & Co., before the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Claims, and the Southern Claims Commission.

Each department of our business is conducted in a separate bureau, under charge of the same experienced parties employed by the old firm. Prompt attention to all business entrusted to Gilmore & Co. is thus secured. We desire to win success by deserving it.

CALIFORNIA'S BEST PRODUCTION.

The Great Cathartic and Regulator.

Purely a Vegetable Compound!

Harmless but Powerful!

MESSRS. WILLIAMS & CO.—GENTLEMEN: It is with pleasure I indorse your YERBA BUENA BITTERS. I have never found such instant and permanent relief as from the use of your most invaluable compound. I have been subjected to costiveness and a torpid liver for five years, and am now entirely cured, after using only two bottles of your YERBA BUENA. I am certain that it was YERBA BUENA that cured me of the palpitation of the heart. I am happy to state through the use of your BITTERS I am a well man. All wishing to be convinced of the above, I will give you my residence: 209 Liedesdorff street, San Francisco. JOHN R. STEERE.

MESSRS. H. WILLIAMS & CO.: Dear Sirs—As long as I can remember, I have been troubled with Pin Worms, and at times felt as if I was being devoured alive. Early in March, 1875, I was induced to use your YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and within One Month I was entirely cured. I have not been troubled with them since, and am satisfied that I am PERMANENTLY cured. I think it is the best preparation for Constipation and Billious Troubles known.

A. B. HOWARD,
No. 12 Quincy street, San Francisco.

I take pleasure in recommending the YERBA BUENA BITTERS. I have used three bottles and found more relief from them than anything I have ever used. I had been troubled with Constipation of the Bowels, Torpid Liver and general debility for a long time, and found no relief until the YERBA BUENA BITTERS cured me.

S. BROOKS, Petaluma.

Seeking health on the Pacific Coast, my attention was called to Dr. Warren's YERBA BUENA BITTERS, and took some for headache, which cured me so perfectly that I bought a bottle and have not taken any other medicine since. It is a perfect cure for any derangement of the stomach or constipation, and I recommend it before any other medicine, as it leaves the system in a healthy state and no dieting is necessary. Please send your Bitters all over the world, for it will be a blessing to humanity beyond the power of words to express. I write you freely and from actual experience CYRUS CUMMINGS,

PROSPECTUS.

ST. NICHOLAS

THE THIRD VOLUME OF THIS INCOMPARABLE Magazine is now completed. With its 800 royal octavo pages, and its 600 illustrations, its splendid serials, its shorter stories, poems and sketches, etc., in its beautiful binding of red and gold, it is the most splendid gift book for boys and girls ever issued from the press. Price, $4; in full gilt, $5.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR 1877

Which opens with November, 1876, begins a short and very entertaining serial from the French, "The Kingdom of the Greedy," a story adapted to the Thanksgiving season. Another serial, of absorbing interest to boys, "His Own Master," by J. T. Trowbridge, author of the "Jack Hazard Stories," begins in the Christmas Holiday Number, together with "The Boys of My Boyhood," by William Cullen Bryant, Christmas stories, lively sketches, poems, pictures, etc.

During the year there will be interesting papers for boys, by William Cullen Bryant, John G. Whittier, Thomas Hughes, William Howitt, Dr. Holland, George MacDonald, Sanford B. Hunt, Frank R. Stockton and others.

There will be stories, sketches and poems of special interest to girls, by Harriet Prescott Spofford, Susan Coolidge, Sarah Winter Kellogg, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Louisa Alcott, Lucretia P. Hale, Celia Thaxter, Mary Mapes Dodge and many others. There will also be "Twelve Sky Pictures," by Prof. Proctor, the astronomer, with maps, showing "The Stars of Each Month," which will be likely to surpass in interest any series on popular science recently given to the public.

AMUSEMENT and INSTRUCTION, with FUN and FROLIC, and WIT and WISDOM, will be mingled as heretofore, and ST. NICHOLAS will continue to delight the young and give pleasure to the old.

"ST. NICHOLAS is full of the choicest things. The publication is, in all respects, the best of its kind. We have never yet seen a number that was not surprisingly good."—The Churchman, Hartford, Conn.

"There is no magazine for the young that can be said to equal this choice publication of Scribner's press. All the articles, whether in prose or rhyme, are throbbing with vitality. * * The literature and artistic illustrations are both superb."—The London Literary World.

"We wish we could point out its equal in our own periodical literature."—London Daily News.

Good News for Boys and Girls.

To meet the demand for a cheaper ST. NICHOLAS Gift-Book, the price of vols. I and II has been reduced to $3 each. The three volumes, in an elegant library case, are sold for $10 (in full gilt, $15) so that all may give their children a complete set. These volumes contain more attractive material than fifty dollars' worth of the ordinary children's books.

Subscription price, $3 a year. The three bound volumes and a subscription for this year, only $12. Subscribe with the nearest news dealer, or send money in check, or postoffice money order, or in registered letter, to

A Fruit Dealer's Troubles.

A staid looking gentleman, apparently a stranger, stopped at an apple-stand.

"What is the price of oranges?" he asked, pointing to a collection of large pears.

"Dees ees not de horange," said the polite fruit vendor. "Dees ees de California paire. One for twenty-fi' cents."

"You don't mean to tell me," said the stranger, putting his hand upon an apple, "that this is a pear?"

"Pardon! no! I say dees ees de paire. Dees ees de appel. Tree for de ten cent."

"Well, I must say," continued the stranger, picking up a handfull of chestnuts and examining them critically, "that these are the queerest apples I ever saw."

"Oh, mon Dieu! no! Dem ees de cheseynut, what grow in your own countree. You roast dem in de fire."

"Roast them in the fire! Well, upon my word," fingering a bunch of bananas curiously, "I don't see how such chestnuts as these can be improved by roasting. They seem to be soft enough now. However, I'm much obliged. I'll see you later. Good day," and the stranger passed up the street.

"Gentechmen," said the fruit dealer, turning in an appealing manner to the crowd that had gathered, "zat man ees one escape fool from ze penitentiary."

LIMIT YOUR WANTS.—From the nature of things, the income of most of the inhabitants of the earth must be limited, and, indeed, within very narrow bounds. The product of labor throughout the world, if equally divided, would not make the share of each individual large. It is impossible that every one should be what is called rich. But it is by no means impossible to be independent. And what is the way to compass this—as Burns appropriately designates it—"glorious privilege?" The method is very simple. It consists in one rule: Limit your wants. Make them few and inexpensive. To do this would interfere but little with your real enjoyment. It is mostly a matter of habit. You require more or you require less, just as you accustomed yourself to the one or the other. Limit your wants, estimate their cost, and never exceed it, taking pains always to keep it inside your income be that ever so small. Thus you secure your lasting independence. Young men, think of this. A great deal of the happiness of lives depends upon it. After having made your money, spend it as you choose, honestly; but be sure you make it first.

THE ceremony of cremation in the case of Baron von Palm is described as follows: The body was taken from the coffin and wrapped in white cloth. It weighed 92 pounds, and was of chocolate color and perfectly oderless. At 8:27 A. M. the body was carried to the mouth of the retort, and on it was placed myrrh, cassia, frankincense and cinnamon, and the winding-sheet was saturated with an alum solution. Roses, evergreens, sprays and immortelles were strewn upon the body. The door was then opened and the body slid in. The fume of smoke from the burnt evergreens rose from the body, and a fainter odor of burning flesh pervaded. At 10:45 the crib was moved back in the retort two inches, and the whole thing was seen to be crumbled. Col. Olcott then pronounced the incineration to be ended and complete in two hours and twenty minutes. After the retort had cooled the ashes were collected and placed in an urn.

A FAMOUS usurer of Paris, being on his death-bed, his confessor presented a silver crucifix to him, with a view to awake him to a sense of his situation. The dying miser, after examining the the cross with the most minute attention, suddenly exclaimed, "Sir, I can lend you but a very small sum on such a pledge."

Emigrant Company's Affairs.

We are glad to hear from Mr. Peter Taylor—who is now Superintendent of that Company—that the Emigrant difficulties have all been satisfactorily adjusted, and that work will at once be recommenced on their mines. Mr. Taylor arrived here about ten days ago, and at once commenced paying up the accounts held against his Company. There has been quite a change made in the Company. Messrs. Shawhan and Falk have resigned from the directory and Messrs. A. C. Swain and John Hobart are elected to take their places. On the representations of the favorable prospects of the Lee mines Mr. Taylor, while below, induced S. E. Phillips, Esq., late Attorney-General of Massachusetts, but now a resident and prominent attorney of San Francisco, to invest money to a considerable extent for the development of these mines. Mr. Phillips is not a mine "speculator," but having cash to spare he desires to invest in good mines and work them for their actual dividends. These are Mr. Taylor's instructions, and he will at once begin the work of sinking to a sufficient depth upon their mines to demonstrate their permanency, and whether the quantity of ore to be obtained from them will warrant the erection of a 20-stamp mill instead of the 10-stamp, as first contemplated. The pipe for conducting the water from the Bureau Springs to the mines, where the mill will be erected, is now in San Francisco, having arrived from Glasgow, Scotland, some time ago. The work of laying down the pipe, however, will hardly be commenced before Spring, as there are places in the mountains where severe frosts will be likely to interfere with the work. Work upon the mines will be actively prosecuted during the Winter; the necessary machinery, timbers, lumber, etc., for the mill will be ordered, and when the Spring opens but a short time will be required to place everything in shape to send out bullion to a large extent. Mr. Phillips has been elected Treasurer of the Company, and his purse-strings will be loosened to any extent wherein a favorable showing is likely to demonstrate a mining property of merit, and this we believe the Cactus and Valentine mines will prove.—Darwin News, Dec. 23.

BLUNDERS IN SPEECH.—It was a Scotch woman who said that a buther of her town only killed half a beast at a time. It was a Dutchman who said a pig had no marks on his ears except a short tail. It was a British magistrate who, being told that he was not married, responded: "That's a good thing for your wife." It was an English reporter who stated at a meeting of the Ethnological Society, there were casts of the skull of an individual at different periods of adult life, to show the changes produced in ten years, though Dean Swift certainly mentions two skulls preserved in Ireland, one of a person when a boy and the other of the same person when he grew to be a man. It was a Portugese mayor who enumerated among the marks by which the body of a drowned man might be identified when found "a marked impediment in speech." It was a Frenchman, the famous Carlino, who, contentedly laying his head upon a large stone jar for a pillow, replied, to one who inquired if it was not rather hard, "Not at all—for I have it stuffed with hay." It was an American lecturer who solemnly said, one evening, "Parents, you may have children: or, if not, your daughters may have."

PROHIBITION IN A NEW QUARTER.—Her Majesty, Queen Ranovalomanjaka, of Madagascar, has issued an address to her subjects admonishing them not to have anything to do with rum. She assures them it does them bodily harm, makes them spend their money foolishly, and incites them to go about beating one another with clubs; which is as true of other States as in the Kingdom of Madagascar. Her Majesty's efforts in the cause of temperance and sobriety are not confined to mere moral suasion; she backs her advice with authority, forbidding the trade in spirits and threatening those who engage in it with severe penalties for their cupidity and disobedience. And now the toping element in Madagascae is clamoring for local option.

IF there is one thing that contributes more than another to success or failure in farming, it seems that it is the changing or not changing of seed. By continued sowing of the same seeds in the same climate, and in the same soil, a serious detoriation seems to take place and the yield becomes less and the quality of the grain poorer and poorer. It is of great importance that farmers should frequently exchange seeds from one neighborhood to another, and from one section of the country to another, and even from one part to another of the same farm.—Ex,

A CORRESPONDENT, writing from Eureka to the Virginia Enterprise says: "Extension of the narrow-gauge toward the Colorado river seems to be accepted as a surety, and the presence of a force of surveyors in the field is an indication of the intention of the company to commence operations in the Spring. In that case Eureka will relapse into a way-station instead of, as now, attaining the dignity of a terminus."

PEOPLE accustomed to hear the not unmusical "co-boss," "co-boss," with which the farmer calls his cattle, will be glad to know that besides a little poetical it is also strictly classical. An ingenious philologist has discovered that it is derived from the Greek word "bosko," signifying to drive cattle. It is quite important that cattle men should know this.

Cure for Hiccoughs and Colds.

Dr. E. M. Willard, of San Francisco, communicates the following to the Rural Press:

I deem it a boon that price will not measure or gratitude fathom in the breast of the afflicted sufferer, when he is informed that "verartria" powder, when agitated in a vial and the stopper removed and the dust thus raised smelled up into the nostrils, so acts upon the mucuous membrane as a stimulant as to stop the hiccough, [in cases of "Hiccoughing to Death"] so that he will not hiccough another single time after so inhaling the powder through the nose.

Nothing can possibly be a more perfect success than the effect of the above remedy. Verartria is a salt chemically produced from the medicinal herb, white hellebore. I would say that verartria, used in the same way, is beneficially employed in colds, where the nostrils are closed or where the eyes are rendered heavy by a stoppage of the lachrymal or tear ducts, and also produces sneezing, which is nature's simplest remedy to clear the organs of the head when oppressed by a sluggish action of the enunctories of the part. We have seen a case of 80 hours' constant distress and many other more ordinary cases of hiccoughs cured as above stated. It can be procured at any drug store.

NEW FURNACE.—Mr. Donnelly, Superintendent of the Eureka Consolidated, has been experimenting with a modification of the present form of smelting furnace, looking to the freer separation of the precious metals and a saving of the dust carried off in the fumes. In an experimental furnace of small capacity his plans met with great success, and we hope he will build one of sufficient capacity to fully test his theory. Any invention that will result in a saving of the large percentage of gold and silver lost by the present method of working, would be of immense benefit to Eureka and a fortune to the inventor, although in this case Mr. Donnelly is not stimulated by any hope of reward.—Eureka Sentinel.

HAPPY NEW YEAR.

In extending the compliments of the season to its readers, "A Happy New Year," THE INDEPENDENT may in truth remark that unless all signs fail the coming year ought to be one of prosperity and happiness for the good people of Inyo. So mote it be.

NEW PATENTS.—Through Dewey & Co., patent agents at San Francisco, we receive the following list of United States patents, granted to Pacific coast inventors: Elizabeth W. T. Keeney, S. F., traveling satchels; Geo. W. Cranston, S. F., apparatus for hydraulic mining; Chas. Kremer, Red Bluff, Cal., farm fences; David Harris, S. F., machines for stitching mattrasses; David Harris, S. F., machines for stuffing mattrasses; Richard Hoskin, Dutch Flat, Cal., section jointed nozzles for hydraulic machines; Joseph Oscar Johnson, Salinas City, Cal., feed racks for horses; Alfred H. Marshall and Geo. W. Marshall, Lower Lake, Cal., oil can and faucets; Gen. R. H. Miller, Oregon City, Oregon, threshing machines; Hiland H. Moore, S. F., settees; Wm. T. Garratt, S. F., oil cups; Hiland G. Hulburd, Placerville, Cal., manufacture of solder wire; Fayette W. Knapp and Christopher Schalbhorn, Fiddletown, Cal., safety guard or cock-eyes for harness.

THE REASON.—A contemperary remarks as follows: The question is often asked why the Democrats are so persistenty seeking to obtain the certificate of Secretary Beck, for Wigginton. The reason is simple enough. The next House will be dangerously close at the opening. Whoever gets the certificate will participate in the organization. If the Democrats can capture the organization, they will soon unseat the members from Louisiana, South Carolina and Florida, who have been returned as elected by the Returning Boards. Wigginton's may be the vote wanted to accomplish this. When that is done, and the Democratic majority is secured, then Mr. Wigginton will be unseated, and Mr. Pacheco be sworn in.

THE Arctic expedition still excites comment in England. The conviction is gaining ground that the outbreak of the disease of scurvy caused the breakdown and return, after one Winter in the Polar circle. The Admiralty authorities are arraigned on the question of an inadequate supply of lime juice. The law compelling small trading vessels to carry antiscorbutics has been disregarded by the Admiralty, thus ruining the finest expedition ever equipped for Polar discovery.

THE political squabble still goes on without results sufficiently marked to justify special mention. The Supreme Court of Florida has ordered the Board of Canvassers to recount the returns on their face without regard to frauds in their original make up. This gives the State to Tilden by a hundred or so. The Southern Committees are yet at work, piling up conflicting testimony ream after ream.

STAGE ROBBERS SENTENCED.—John A. Toney, Frank Chapman and John Allen, alias Sheet-Iron Jack, convicted of stage robberies, committed near Shasta on the nights of November 6th, 8th and 11th, were on December 23 sentenced to imprisonment in the penitentiary, Toney for 21 years, Chapman for four years and Allen for 24 years.

AT the end of the proposed pipe line from the oil regions to Pittsburg is to be built a refinery, which shall send all its products to Europe independent of the old routes—that is, from there to New Orleans, or to Richmond via the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad. The right of way has been procured. The line will be fifty miles long. The project, including the refinery, implies a cost of $500,000.

THE Los Angeles Express says there is a vast accumulation of material at Wilmington for the continuation of the road to the Colorado. A large construction force is soon to begin work at at Indian Wells, and the completion of the road to Fort Yuma in the near future.

THE Santa Rosa Democrat thus emphasizes the importance of schools toward building up a town: It is universally conceded that Santa Rosa owes more to the location of the Pacific and Christian Colleges within her limits for her growth and prosperity than to all things else.

M. ROGERS, former Sheriff of Pinal county, Arizona, has absconded, taking with him $1,700 of the county funds. A reward of $800 is offered for his arrest.

A REMINDER.

It looks a little presumptious for newspapers to be so free in offering so much advice: to farmers, for instance, as to what they should do to improve their farms, how to "get rich," and all that, seeing that each one is properly a better judge of his own particular affairs, and capabilities of his own farm, or calling whatever it may be, than anyone else in a different vocation can be; nevertheless, it is quite within the province of newspapers to offer suggestions in relation to such things, leaving the parties individually concerned to deduce their own advice therefrom.

How to attain an easy competence, if not to get rich, is the problem farmers as well as the followers of all other callings, are trying to solve. Our Inyo farmers are evidently, nearly every one, making substantial progress toward the desired solution, and a good many of them are sure to succeed sooner or later without any change from their present method of sowing in the Spring only to reap in the Fall. Our suggestion is that while planting five or ten acres to be reaped the succeeding Fall as usual, plant at least one-fourth the area in the expectation of reaping in three, five or ten years hence. Those who can and will adopt this plan are as certain of attaining the desired competency in due time as that one season follows another. It can be done, too, in most cases without diminishing the usual yearly harvest ten dollars' worth, if so much.

Of course it will be readily inferred that this means to plant trees, that and nothing more. There is a choice, certainly, to be made in the kind of trees, but the proposition in the main will hold good no matter what kind is planted, so that it is not too slow in growth. A variety, even including some of very slow growth, is best; the black locust offers greater inducements than any other, all considered. Transplanted at a year old, it will require irrigating for a couple of years thereafter, not longer as a matter of necessity as a general thing, except at such times in the season when there is a surplus of water. During those two or more years the same ground will bear full crops of certain kinds just as if there were no trees upon it, so that the latter receive all needed cultivation and water without scarce a dollar's worth of extra time or labor. At the end of that period the trees in the outer rows all around can, if required, be made serviceable as they stand as posts for a cheap wire fence to enclose the whole area, and which from that time can be used as a pasture lot, just such as is needed on every farm, big or little, with or without trees, and all the more valuable as a pasture for the grateful protection afforded by the trees to stock from both sunshine and storm.

But a plot of ground can be devoted wholly to growing trees, and after the second year, be made to return a fair ground rent without lessening the final return in the least. This would be by crowding the ground somewhat at the start with plantings, with the view of cutting out all the inferior ones as soon as they attained a size suitable for a stick of stove wood, or temporary wire-fence post, and similar purposes, this thinning to be done as fast as the welfare of the more thrifty ones demanded. In such case the surplus planting might well be a tree of quickest growth, like cottonwood, the permanent stand being of locust or other harder wood. The product of these thinnings and trimmings would soon supply the demands of the place for fire wood, to procure which as matters now stand, scarcely a farmer in the valley but spends as much time every year on the road to and from the mountains as would be required to set out perhaps half a dozen acres in small trees.

In from eight to ten years growth a locust tree in this valley will be large enough to produce each a merchantable railroad tie, a mining timber and a fence post, or something near their equivalent in value for other purposes. An acre of such trees will never be worth much if any less than $1,000 gold coin. By the time such trees could be grown, say ten years, and beginning now, the demand for timber of the kind here in consideration will, in all reasonable probability, exceed the capabilities of the entire valley if exclusively devoted to its production. We cannot now devote space to show why this is likely to be as stated, nor for other details as to value per foot, number of trees per acre, etc., the object now in view being suggested in the caption to these remarks. We have presented this matter only in its materialistic aspect—dollars and cents to be derived from a crop of trees as the harvest of any other crop, only that the one requires a decade, the other being yearly. There are, however, other inducements for extensive tree planting nearly or quite as great as the matter of cash profits. In part these are sentimental, but of that kind which makes such a vast difference in the valuation between an invitingly improved farm (for which trees in numbers are a necessity), and one alongside of equal richness, but bare of tree, shrub, shady nook or rill. Besides the merely ornamental and cash returns, there also comes in another matter of utility in the way of enhanced comfort to man and beast. It is better to set a tree here and there along any meandering stream on the place than to have none at all because a valuable square cannot be spared for the purpose. A farmer need not wait one season, scarce a week, to become forehanded enough to begin planting this sort of a crop. Given two farms and farmers equal in all respects save judgment of the latter in one particular: one devotes his time and every available acre to the production of his annual crops; the other does about as much in that way, and yet plants at different periods say twenty acres in trees. At the end of a dozen years less or more, each adhering to his own plan, their balance sheets for the ordinary farming transactions, improvements, etc., show almost identical results so far as affected by the outlay for the production of the trees is concerned. But the owner of the acres of trees has yet their value to add in for his side, showing a clear gain over the other amounting to the full value of his timber, whether that should be ten, twenty or more thousands of dollars. The acres devoted to trees have during this period yielded about as much clear profit in ordinary crops, pasturage and small fire-wood as they would have if farmed exclusive of the trees. We feel assured that these estimates, so to call them, are approximately correct and to be depended upon. Further, that ten acres cultivated in timber trees, is much less costly year by year, less risky, and will return more in cash in the same period than a $10,000 endowment policy in any life insurance company. And yet none but quite a well-to-do farmer can afford to carry such a policy, while there are none pecuniarily too poor to do the other, and something more.

OUR MONO LETTER.

BENTON, Cal., Dec. 20.

MESSRS. EDITORS—These cold mornings brings us to a realizing sense that Winter is here and the holidays are fast approaching. The days are still growing shorter, but they are pleasant, made more so by the frequent appearance of the ladies and children on the streets, going from store to shop purchasing Christmas presents for the little ones. So far we have had beautiful weather, but methinks a storm is brewing. For the last few days the skies have been hazy, and last night we had quite a sprinkle of snow on the mountains.

SCHOOL MATTERS.

For the last three or four years Benton has been burdened by a Board of School Trustees in nowise worthy of half the honor attached thereto. It has always been the case that we have had a school barely what the law required, and to teach these short terms they have in many instances been compelled to teach Saturdays in order to put in the time before the school year was out, and in almost every case they have employed incompetent teachers. All this is because of neglect on the part of the Trustees. After so long a time the thing got to be monotonous, and the citizens made a move, called a meeting and nominated an entire new Board. Their names were forwarded to the County Superintendent for final appointment, which was accordingly done. We now have a Board who will take hold, employ a teacher and have an interesting school this Winter, besides paying the balance due on our school house, which is an ornament to the place as well as most useful. At

THE ELEVENTH HOUR

A few of our enterprising citizens have decided to give a ball on Christmas evening, the proceeds of which are to be donated to the Benton school district. Messrs. Creaser and Abernethy are the engineers of this donatable enterprise.

A CLOSE CALL.

Last Friday evening, at the Comanche mine, John Hawthorn, foreman of the night shift, and P. Foley, a miner, went to the 300-foot level (in a portion of the mine which has not been worked recently), for the purpose of opening a winze to procure fresh air. As their business was not particularly anybody else's business, they were not sought for nor thought of until the next morning, when the night shift came off and no foreman came up. A search was immediately commenced and they were discovered to be imprisoned in the back of the 300-feet level, by a cave which occurred about midnight. They were working manfully to free themselves, and occasionally their blasts could be heard; but their liberty was not gained until 10 o'clock A. M. on Saturday.

Shortly afterward another man fell down a shaft in the same mine a distance of 60 feet. His right arm was fractured and shoulder badly bruised, but the hurts are not considered serious.

DIED.

In my last mention was made that Mr. Fish, a teamster, had been paralyzed, at Adobe Meadows. He has since died. He was on the way to Carson, where he was expecting to meet his son from the East.

PERSONAL.

Messrs. Thos. Golden, M. McNamara and Dr. Rankin have been appointed School Trustees of this district. Prof. Andress has just arrived with his "Grand Golden Show." Peter Gelhard is building an ice-house. Hess Yaney is conductor of a train running from Benton to the saw mill, and still Grant is President.

RURAL JACOB.

MARRIED.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY VIRTUE OF AN EXECUTION ISSUED OUT of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, in the suit of Harris & Rhine, Plaintiffs, against the Silver Sprout Mining Company, Defendant, upon a judgment rendered in said Court on the 27th day of November A. D. 1876, for the sum of Three Thousand and Eighty-seven 94-100 Dollars, in gold coin of the United States, besides costs amounting to the sum of $1,014 05-100 dollars, duly attested the 27th day of November, A. D. 1876, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of Four Thousand One Hundred and One 99-100 Dollars in gold coin of the United States, besides accruing costs and interest, I have levied upon all the right, title and interest of the said Defendant in and to the following described real property, to-wit:

All that certain quartz mine or lode containing precious metals known as the Silver Sprout mine or lode, together with all the appurtenances belonging to or in anywise appertaining to said Silver Sprout mine or lode, the same being situated in the Kearsarge mining district, county of Inyo, state of California.

ST. NICHOLAS

THE THIRD VOLUME OF THIS INCOMPARABLE Magazine is now completed. With its 809 royal octavo pages, and its 600 illustrations, its splendid serials, its shorter stories, poems and sketches, etc., in its beautiful binding of red and gold, it is the most splendid gift book for boys and girls ever issued from the press. Price, $4; in full gilt, $5.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR 1877

Which opens with November, 1876, begins a short and very entertaining serial from the French, "The Kingdom of the Greedy," a story adapted to the Thanksgiving season. Another serial, of absorbing interest to boys, "His own Master," by J. T. Trowbridge, author of the "Jack Hazard Stories," begins in the Christmas Holiday Number, together with "The Boys of My Boyhood," by William Cullen Bryant, Christmas stories, lively sketches, poems, pictures, etc.

During the year there will be interesting papers for boys, by William Cullen Bryant, John G. Whittier, Thomas Hughes, William Howitt, Dr. Holland, George Macdonald, Sanford B. Hunt, Frank R. Stockton and others.

There will be stories, sketches and poems of special interest to girls, by Harriet Prescott Spofford, Susan Coolidge, Sarah Winter Kellogg, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Louisa Alcott, Lucretia P. Hale, Celia Thaxter, Mary Mapes Dodge and many others. There will also be "Twelve Sky Pictures," by Prof. Proctor, the astronomer, with maps, showing "The Stars of Each Month," which will be likely to surpass in interest any series on popular science recently given to the public.

AMUSEMENT and INSTRUCTION, with FUN and FROLIC, and WIT and WISDOM, will be mingled as heretofore, and ST. NICHOLAS will continue to delight the young and give pleasure to the old.

"ST. NICHOLAS is full of the choicest things. The publication is, in all respects, the best of its kind. We have never yet seen a number that was not surprisingly good."—The Churchman, Hartford, Conn.

"There is no magazine for the young that can be said to equal this choice publication of Scribner's press. All the articles, whether in prose or rhyme, are throbbing with vitality. * * The literature and artistic illustrations are both superb."—The London Literary World

"We wish we could point out its equal in our own periodical literature."—London Daily News.

Good News for Boys and Girls.

To meet the demand for a cheaper ST. NICHOLAS Gift Book, the price of vols. 1 and 2 has been reduced to $3 each. The three volumes, in an elegant library case, are sold for $10 (in full gilt, $15) so that all may give their children a complete set. These volumes contain more attractive material than fifty dollars' worth of the ordinary children's books.

Subscription price, $3 a year. The three bound volumes and a subscription for this year, only $12. Subscribe with the nearest news dealer, or send money in check, or postoffice money order, or in registered letter, to KRISS KRINGLE.—To give full reports of all of old "Santa Claus'" characteristic appearances throughout Inyo, as per detailed accounts furnished THE INDEPENDENT by our Lokleitems and several valued correspondents, would far exceed the space possible to devote to the subject in this issue. A brief mention thereof must suffice, and we begin with "the little Empire" of Round Valley, the northernmost of our county's settlements. The merrymaking was held at Mr. Olds' residence, which host and lady never fail to secure a crowded attendance. In due time and form the over-ladened evergreen was disclosed, and Santa Claus did ample justice to the occasion. After his departure the music called the young folks to the merry dance, the course of which was only interrupted by a sumptuous supper. The crowd assembled at the observances at Bishop far surpassed all expectations, the number of ladies present at the church, where the Chrismas tree was placed, being more than that edifice could contain at one time. In his rapid rounds Kringle delayed long enough to distribute nearly 1,400 offerings. The dance took in both the school house and hotel dining room floors, while the supper at the hotel received more than a modicum of praise. The Independence affair, projected and engineered by Miss Carrie Whitcomb and a few friends, was a real success. Three evergreens were in requisition to hold the presents, which were both numerous and costly. The audience, comprising well nigh all of the families residing in and around town, dispersed seemingly well satisfied. At Lone Pine the customary tree was gotten up for the entertainment and profit of the school children, articles to the value of several hundred dollars being distributed. The town's holiday ball and supper were deserving of an elaborate mention, but we are forced to forego a detailed account.

TAX MATTERS.—There is hardly a disguisement of the fact that a local financial stringency is telling heavily both upon Inyo's tax-payers and her county treasury. The causes leading to this effect may be numerous, but the principal one may be summed in the two main facts: that the local disbursements of our mining companies are not made in the kind of money required by the State and county; that much of such circulating medium as we had has proved inconvertible into coin of any kind, and practically if not entirely worthless. We doubt, on account of the business system complained of, if there is gold coin enough in the county to pay one-half of the taxes due to-day, even if the people had perfectly good San Francisco gold checks and were willing to stand the "shave." The clear result will be a large delinquency, and until the money is again liberated by the County Treasurer in the redemption of warrants on the expense and old general funds, the same cannot be paid. But the bulk of these warrants are held by dealers, and it is probable that only a small percentage thereof will find its way into general business channels here before the issuance of more warrants by the county in February, during the time the delinquent tax list is being published. Eight or ten thousand dollars of the sum due the county and State will be legally contested until the very edge of the last ditch by the Union Con. Mining Company of Cerro Gordo and the Modoc of Lookout, both paying under protest, alleging a heavy overassessment. The valuation of the former stands at $220,000, tax $6,600; the last named is valued at $151,700, and the tax amounts to $4,531. The total property tax for the year amounts to the sum of $62,456 32, of which the sum of $16,578 66 had been paid up to last night, leaving the sum of $45,877 66 to be paid to-day or else go delinquent—unless the Collector chooses to leave the matter open till Tuesday night, which he will probably do under the law.

MARRIED.—Under the appropriate heading will be found the marriage notice of Dr. J. D. Blair to Mrs. Julia Cook. The Doctor has for a few days past been seriously sick, and the wedding affair was hastened somewhat on that account, it having been intended that the event should transpire in his new building about New Years. His health is slowly improving.

CLOSED.—We are informed by Mr. Dodge, the well-known rancher and livery man of Lone Pine, that he has purchased the stock of the opposition stable in the old Hunt place; that that institution is now closed and the late proprietor is gone. This paper is interested in the latter fact—to the extent of an unpaid bill for printing and advertising.

AN IMPORTANT CHANGE.—Wm. Barrows, of Cerro Gordo, has sold his heavy merchandising establishment at that place to Hugh Morrison, Samuel Cowles and J. T. Belshaw, the transfer taking place about two weeks ago. The co-partnership notification appears in this issue. This is a substantial firm of business men.

THE RACES.—There is considerable excitement in sporting circles over the great racing contest to begin at the Taboose track on New Year's day. There are twenty-eight horses in training, all but seven of which are now on the ground—which would seem to guarantee an immense success for the affair.

A Soldier Killed Near Camp Independence.

About 10 o'clock on the evening of Tuesday last—the night following a bright and merry Christmas—word was telegraphed to the Sheriff, from Camp Independence, that a soldier had been killed by a citizen, and requesting the arrest of the suspected slayer, and subsequently it was found that Wm. Boyd, a citizen residing near the Post, had come in and delivered himself into custody. A messenger who had been dispatched from the Camp returned to that point with word that Boyd had surrendered.

The particulars of the tragedy, as deduced from the testimony at the Coroner's inquest and circumstances surrounding the affair, are condensed and given to our readers as follows:

Two soldiers of Co. D, 12th Infantry, named Thos. F. Leonard and Thos. A. Mackey, in company with Wm. M. Boyd and one or two other citizens, were drinking on Tuesday night at Chenot's saloon, near the Post. There was no quarreling or words passed, and the party broke up peaceably and quietly. The two soldiers were intoxicated when they left, and Chenot had refused them any more liquor. The soldiers' quarters were but a few hundred yards distant, and when about half way home Mackey proposed calling at Uncle Billy Noter's house. It was some ways off the trail, and Leonard refused, saying it was too late; Mackey insisted, and finally went alone. Arriving at the house he knocked at the door and was answered by citizen Boyd, who had gone there in the meantime. Mackey said he wanted to see Uncle Billy; Boyd refused to admit him and ordered him off; Mackey replied that it was after tattoo and he would do as he pleased; Boyd then shut the door and laid down on a bed. In a few moments after Boyd looked out of the window, and jumping up in a rage, said: "He has unhitched my horse," and picking up a shot gun he went out of the door; almost immediately afterward a report of a gun was heard, and as Boyd returned Wm. Noter, who had been asleep and was awakened by the noise, asked "What have you done?" Boyd replied "I have got my man," or "I have dropped a man." Boyd then set down the gun, took his coat and hurriedly left.

The other soldier, Leonard, heard the firing and, upon going over to the house, pushed in the door and demanded what the shooting was about. Noter shoved him out and said, "There lies one of your men out there." Leonard went out and found his comrade, Mackey, dead. He then went to Camp and gave the alarm.

At the inquest next day, held by Justice Schalten, the above facts were elicited; and, also, it was shown that where the body of deceased was found there were no trees or anything else that a horse could have been hitched to; that Boyd's horse was hitched about ten feet from the house, to a locust tree, and that the body was at least 25 yards east of the house.

The remains of the unfortunate Mackey presented a horrible appearance. A charge of No. 3 shot had entered, all in a bunch, tearing a hole an inch and a half in diameter in the side of the neck, and lodging in the large bones of the neck—the four lower cervical vertebræ. Dr. Matthews explained to the Coroner's Jury, by an autopsy, the direction of the shot—it taking a slightly downward course and severing completely the spinal marrow. The shot apparently was fired at very close range—not over ten feet, and the deceased could not possibly have made a step after receiving it.

The Coroner's Jury returned a verdict in accordance with the above facts: "That Thomas A. Mackey came to his death by a gun shot in the hands of Wm. M. Boyd."

The funeral of Mackey took place Thursday, and he was buried according to military rites and honors.

The preliminary examination of Boyd, which was to have been held on Thursday, was postponed till Tuesday next, as his counsel, R. M. Briggs, Esq., will be absent until that time.

AS A MATTER OF JUSTICE.—One fact mentioned in our account of the killing of Private Mackey is calculated to convey a wrong impression of the moral status of the Company to which he belonged: that is that both he and his comrade were on a spree, his death being the bloody sequel. With the exception of these two, and perhaps one or two more at the most, there is not a man in the Company but who is an exemplary member of their Good Templar Lodge, and we do not believe there is a Company in the United States service whose moral standing will equal that of Co. D, 12th Infantry.

REWARD OFFERED.—Some person with malicious intent, a few days since, cut and carried away 50 feet of the local telegraph line running from this town to Camp Independence. It must have been malice and aforethought that prompted the individual to sever the only little piece of civilization that ever took root in a scope of 400 miles of territory. The manager, H. L. Childs, offers a reward of $50 for positive proof sufficient to lead to the conviction of the guilty party.

MASONIC ELECTION.—At a special meeting of Inyo Lodge, No. 221, F. & A. M., held on Saturday evening last, the following officers were elected and appointed to serve for the ensuing Masonic year: A. N. Bell, W. M.; John Shepherd, S. W.; Jas. E. Parker, J. W.; O. I. Mairs, T.; A. R. Conklin, S.; H. M. Isaacs, S. D.; John B. White, J.D.; J. D. Mairs and James Shepherd, Stewards; H. P. Cartier, Tyler.

SHUT DOWN.—But one of the Union Consolidated Company's furnaces at Cerro Gordo—the lower one—is now in operation, the other one having been shut down, probably for the Winter.

A SHORT PAPER.—If an apology is necessitated by reason of our short paper this holiday week, the fact is mentionable that a portion of our force is sick and the rest don't feel very well.

The Archery Club Exercises.

Shortly afternoon Christmas Day the ladies with their beaux and furbelows, and the gentlemen with their bows, arrows, smiles and bows, and the little Calithumpians with their tuneful instruments, and everybody else pretty much, collected at the Court House square to witness or participate in the archery contest as per announcement. A three-foot Creedmoor target was set up at fifty feet distance, and the fun begun. Each couple had six shots, shooting alternately. This last arrangement was not conducive to steady shooting or to steady the nerves. Astonishing how some of them were shaken up! As a rule the practiced shots flew the wildest arrows. Some hit the target, more that didn't, most all hit the barn some place. If the old man Tell had done such shooting as this neither Albert nor the apple would have incurred any risk worth bothering about. However, on the present occasion all were pretty nearly in the same boat in point of skill. The weather was much like Summer, so, with that and the novelty of the contest, the spectators and contestants all enjoyed themselves like school children—which is the acme. There were twenty couples shot—that is, that did shoot. We shall give the scores of the winners only: First prize, a $60 sett of China dishes, won by W. T. Davis and Mrs. John Willett, on a score of 39; second prize, a $50 silk dress on a score of 32 by Dr. Matthews, U. S. A., and Mrs. H. M. Isaacs; third prize, a $15 two-story silk belteazer, by Mr. and Mrs. Steve Gregg, on a score of 28; fourth prize, $8 wedding cards, on a score of 27, by Wm. Matlack and Miss Kate Wallace; fifth prize, (most valuable of all), THE INDEPENDENT one year, by Dr. W. H. Walker and Miss Carrie Whitcomb, same score as the preceding.

The ball was exceptionably well managed and conducted throughout. The Executive Committee and Managers, in regard to both the ball and preceding exercises, left nothing undone that could be done to add to the pleasure or comfort of the guests. They are entitled to praise, decidedly. As a matter of course the ball was a success. The attendance was very large—sixty couples besides the usual proportion of forlorns. There were present a number of very welcome representatives from other localities, notably Big Pine, George's Creek, Lone Pine and Darwin. The supper at the Blaney was excellent—as good if not the best we have ever had on such occasions.

The climax of the evening was the prize waltz, in which ten couples competed. The Judges pressed in, much again their will, were Mrs. A. R. Conklin, of Independence, Mr. C. Cohn, of Lone Pine, and Mr. Savler, of Darwin. Each couple were to take the floor alone and waltz the circuit of the large hall, twice, after which once around all together. For the most part their movements were the very poetry of motion. The first prize, a $20 silver pitcher, was accorded without the slightest subsequent demur from any source, to Geo. M. Gill and Mrs. B. L. Brown; the second, a $10 musical album, to Charle Barry and Mrs. D. P. Macarter.

It was a remarkably pleasant Christmas all through.

CARELESSNESS IN WRITING.—There are so many classifications in the list of fools that it is impossible to adjudge fairly as to who would be entitled to the head of the list. Postmaster Rowley says that out of 3,000 whom he has spotted, the last one to take the prize is an intellectual cuss of Kernville, who writes in a careful hand to have mail letters forwarded immediately to Tehatchapi." No signature is attached to the epistle. Notwithstanding this order Rowley will continue distributing letters as heretofore.

BULLION.—There are 3,000 bars of Cerro Gordo bullion awaiting shipment at Cartago. The Freighting Company are about purchasing more teams, in order to keep up with their increasing business.

MESSRS. C. & M. COHN, the leading merchants of Lone Pine, this week display an addendum to their advertisement, announcing that they will pay the highest market rates for hides and sheepskins.

CHIEF NACHES AT WORK.—Naches, Chief of the Piutes, has had the section of land on the Big Meadows, given him by the Central Pacific Railroad Company, surveyed, and he is now at work with several young men of his tribe clearing off the land, preparatory to seeding it in the Spring. He has had a frame house built on the ground, in which, with his two wives, he lives contentedly in true Mormon style. He intends building a large adobe house in the Spring, for the accommodation of his family and retainers on the ranch. —Silver State.

A COCKNEY at the Falls of Niagara, when asked how he liked them, replied: "They are 'andsome, quite so; but they don't quite hanser my hexpectations; besides, I got thoroughly vetted, and lost my 'at. I prefer to look at 'em in a hengraving, in 'ot weather, and in the 'ouse."

A NEWARK saloon keeper separated from his wife, agreeing to pay her five dollars a week; but when she dropped into his saloon with a strange man, a few days after, and coolly ordered lager for two, it was too much for him, and there was trouble.

RECENTLY the Coroner of Southwark, England, held an inquest over the body of Emma Black, four years of age, who had died of fright in being shut up in a dark cupboard at a boarding school.

DURING the last six weeks Little Rock, Arkansas, has suffered a loss of full $250,000 by fires, of which there were six different ones. They were the work of incendiaries, it is thought.

THE total amount required to pay the mileage of the Presidential Electoral messengers will be $8,857, of which it takes $900 for the one from Oregon.

SPEAKING of "all bets off," that was the way it was with Betts, a grocer of Troy, who went off with another man's wife the other day.

THE New York theaters gave benefits for the Brooklyn sufferers on the 21st instant, netting about $19,000 in the aggregate.

THERE is a destiny that shapes our political ends, rough "Hewitt" how we may.

Contested Land Cases prosecuted before the U. S. General Land Office and Department of the Interior. Private Land Claims, Mining and Preemption Claims, and Homestead Cases attended to. Land Scrip in 40, 80, and 160 acre pieces for sale. This Scrip is assignable, and can be located in the name of purchaser upon any Government land subject to private entry, at $1 25 per acre. It is of equal value with Bounty Land Warrants. Send stamp to Gilmore & Co., for pamphlet of instruction.

Arrears of Pay and Bounty.

Officers, Soldiers and Sailors of the late war, or their heirs, are in many cases, entitled to money from the Government of which they have no knowledge. Write full history of service, and state amount of pay and bounty received. Enclose stamp to Gilmore & Co., and a full reply, after examination, will be given you free.

Pensions.

All Officers, Soldiers, and Sailors wounded, ruptured, or injured in the late war, however slightly, can obtain a pension by addressing Gilmore & Co.

Cases prosecuted by Gilmore & Co., before the Supreme Court of the United States, the Court of Claims, and the Southern Claims Commission.

Each department of our business is conducted in a separate bureau, under charge of the same experienced parties employed by the old firm. Prompt attention to all business entrusted to Gilmore & Co. is thus secured. We desire to win success by deserving it.

PROSPECTUS.

ST. NICHOLAS

THE THIRD VOLUME OF THIS INCOMPARABLE Magazine is now completed. With its 800 royal octavo pages, and its 600 illustrations, its splendid serials, its shorter stories, poems and sketches, etc., in its beautiful binding of red and gold, it is the most splendid gift book for boys and girls ever issued from the press. Price, $4; in full gilt, $5.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR 1877

Which opens with November, 1876, begins a short and very entertaining serial from the French, "The Kingdom of the Greedy," a story adapted to the Thanksgiving season. Another serial, of absorbing interest to boys, "His Own Master," by J. T. Trowbridge, author of the "Jack Hazard Stories," begins in the Christmas Holiday Number, together with "The Boys of My Boyhood," by William Cullen Bryant, Christmas stories, lively sketches, poems, pictures, etc.

During the year there will be interesting papers for boys, by William Cullen Bryant, John G. Whittier, Thomas Hughes, William Howitt, Dr. Holland, George Macdonald, Sanford B. Hunt, Frank R. Stockton and others.

There will be stories, sketches and poems of special interest to girls, by Harriet Prescott Spofford, Susan Coolidge, Sarah Winter Kellogg, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Louisa Alcott, Lucretia P. Hale, Celia Thaxter, Mary Mapes Dodge and many others. There will also be "Twelve Sky Pictures," by Prof. Proctor, the astronomer, with maps, showing "The Stars of Each Month," which will be likely to surpass in interest any series on popular science recently given to the public.

AMUSEMENT and INSTRUCTION, with FUN and FROLIC, and WIT and WISDOM, will be mingled as heretofore, and ST. NICHOLAS will continue to delight the young and give pleasure to the old.

"ST. NICHOLAS is full of the choicest things. The publication is, in all respects, the best of its kind. We have never yet seen a number that was not surprisingly good"—The Churchman, Hartford, Conn.

"There is no magazine for the young that can be said to equal this choice publication of Scribner's press. All the articles, whether in prose or rhyme, are throbbing with vitality. * * The literature and artistic illustrations are both superb."—The London Literary World.

"We wish we could point out its equal in our own periodical literature."—London Daily News.

Good News for Boys and Girls.

To meet the demand for a cheaper ST. NICHOLAS Gift-Book, the price of vols. I and II has been reduced to $3 each. The three volumes, in an elegant library case, are sold for $10 (in full gilt, $15) so that all may give their children a complete set. These volumes contain more attractive material than fifty dollars' worth of the ordinary children's books.

Subscription price, $3 a year. The three bound volumes and a subscription for this year, only $12. Subscribe with the nearest news dealer, or send money in check, or postoffice money order, or in registered letter, to
